FOREWORD

The object of the following work is to present all of the general laws of the state of California, which are now in force, in a single volume, and in as complete a form as possible. With the purpose of rendering the compilation as convenient as practicable in use, the cyclopedic or alphabetical arrangement has been adopted, and no pains have been spared to make the whole as complete as possible, alike in statutes, their histories, and references to the cases decided in which a statute is involved. For the convenience of those who may desire to trace any particular statute from its inception to its present form, in each case the volume and page of the session laws where the original enactment appears is given, as well as the volume and the page of each and every amendment or revision thereof.

The general laws are found in thirty-six volumes of session laws, with many conflicting provisions; which volumes contain also an innumerable mass of conflicting special legislation. With special legislation, nothing has been attempted; it is only the general laws in force that have been collated. Many general laws have been codified and carried into the appropriate codes, and where this has been done the fact is noted and reference made to the appropriate section of the particular code into which the statute, or part of the statute, has been carried.

In the various conflicting enactments, amendments, revisions, and repeals, it is sometimes a difficult matter to decide just what acts, or parts of acts, are still in force, and it will require a decision of the supreme court to finally settle the question. We do not claim to be able to judicially determine whether certain laws are "in force." It is possible that the courts may in some decisions declare that there is some vitality existing in a statute that has been omitted from this volume as "superseded" or repealed; but our effort has been to err, if at all, by inserting statutes where there is doubt as to their vitality, rather than by omitting them.

There are many subjects of legislation having a history, and we have endeavored to give such history by reference, in the notes, to past legislation on such subjects. On the subject of Corporations, the notes embrace upwards of seventy statutes enacted from 1850 to the adoption of the codes. The subjects of Roads and Highways and Municipal Government are exhaustively annotated, and all other subjects are treated with thoroughness; so that it is believed the busy lawyer, the student, the professor, and the judge,—in fact, every one having occasion to consult the laws of this state,—will here find ready the laws as they are today, with references to the decisions construing them, and to the history of the legislation on the subjects they would inquire into.

A table of statutes, from 1872 to 1905, which have been held unconstitutional, or otherwise void, or repealed, in decisions of the supreme court of this state, together with references to the decisions, from volume 45 to volume 145, inclusive, of the California Reports, is given for convenience of ready reference.

Pacific Reporter citations, as well as duplicate references to the American Decisions, American Reports, American State Reports, and the Lawyers' Reports Annotated, are given.

Numerous references are made to the notes or annotations in the Trinity Series and the Lawyers' Reports Annotated, wherein will be found valuable discussions on the points to which the references are made. No pains have been spared to make the work as complete and serviceable to the bench and bar as it is practicable to make it. In the matter of annotation it has not been sought to abstract the point decided or to give the reasoning of the court in arriving at its conclusion; the author has been contented with merely referring to the case and the page where the discussion will be found. The occasional departing from this rule is confined to a few instances only, in which the decision referred to is likely not to be found upon the shelves of the library of many lawyers.

The publication of this series, presenting the codes and statute laws of California as they are to-day, is not a spasmodic effort on the part of the publishers. A staff of trained writers and annotators has for some time been engaged in this work, and will be retained; so that not only the laws of California, as now presented, will be kept up to date in a convenient and inexpensive form in the future, but other valuable publications of various subjects in the different departments of the law will be put forth from time to time, in keeping with the public demand therefor.

PREFACE TO SECOND EDITION

In the second edition, the general arrangement of the matter in the first edition has been preserved. For the sake of facilitating reference to the acts, however, the subject matter has been divided into chapters and the acts themselves have been numbered. For the information of the profession, many acts that have been repealed or codified and many special acts have been given by title. In 1907 the Code Commission, under the authority given them by the legislature, published a list of "statutes in force" from 1850 to 1907. This very valuable report has been made very largely the basis of the acts referred to. The Code Commissioners' notes on these acts have also been given. It has been the object to make the work as complete a history of the statutes as is possible under the circumstances. The general laws in force have been given in full. The other acts have been given by title only.

PREFACE TO THIRD EDITION

In the present edition of Henning's General Laws the general arrangement of the matter in the first and second editions is preserved. The only changes made are such as seemed to facilitate the practical use of the book. Certain acts have been transferred from one chapter to another where such change was believed to be in the interest of a more practical arrangement. All general laws in force are collected and published in full. All local and special acts in force are collected and published either in full or by title. All laws whether general or special that have been repealed or superseded are omitted. Such laws are referred to in the history of the repealing or superseding acts. A large number of acts that have been declared unconstitutional, or found to be obsolete by reason of the accomplishment of their purpose, have been omitted; but wherever the grounds of the unconstitutionality were of such general interest as to make the cases applicable to all other legislation, the acts were retained by title for the purpose of the annotations. No local or special act which carries rights still existing, has been omitted, although the act may have become obsolete for one reason or another. Local acts have been retained, wherever there was the slightest doubt upon the subject, although, in the editor's judgment, they have been repealed or superseded; but in all such cases an editor's explanatory note will be found.

The annotations have been restricted to questions of constitutionality, construction and application, and to the administrative questions which have arisen under the particular act. No attempt has been made to annotate the decisions which present mere principles of substantive law, not arising from the provisions of the act itself. For example, the annotations under the banking act do not include the decisions applicable to the subject of banking in general. The annotations under the motor vehicle act relating purely to questions of negligence, unless affected by provisions of the act itself, have been omitted. Otherwise, it has been the purpose to make the annotations as complete and as serviceable as possible. The editor has sought to bring the annotations down to the date of publication and believes that he has done so as far as the difficulties of the task would permit him.

CONSTITUTION OF THE UNITED STATES—1787.

We the people of the United States, in order to form a more perfect union, establish justice, insure domestic tranquillity, provide for the common defense, promote the general welfare, and secure the blessings of liberty to ourselves and our posterity, do ordain and establish this constitution for the United States of America.

ARTICLE I.

§ 1. All legislative powers herein granted shall be vested in a congress of the United States, which shall consist of a senate and house of representatives.

§ 2. The house of representatives shall be composed of members chosen every second year by the people of the several states, and the electors in each state shall have the qualifications requisite for electors of the most numerous branch of the state legislature.

No person shall be a representative who shall not have attained to the age of twenty-five years, and been seven years a citizen of the United States, and who shall not, when elected, be an inhabitant of that state in which he shall be chosen.

[Representatives and direct taxes shall be apportioned among the several states which may be included within this union, according to their respective numbers, which shall be determined by adding to the whole number of free persons, including those bound to service for a term of years, and excluding Indians not taxed, three fifths of all other persons.] The actual enumeration shall be made within three years after the first meeting of the congress of the United States, and within every subsequent term of ten years, in such manner as they shall by law direct. The number of representatives shall not exceed one for every thirty thousand, but each state shall have at least one representative; and until such enumeration shall be made, the state of New Hampshire shall be entitled to choose three, Massachusetts eight, Rhode Island and Providence Plantations one, Connecticut five, New York six, New Jersey four, Pennsylvania eight, Delaware one, Maryland six, Virginia ten, North Carolina five, South Carolina five, and Georgia three.

When vacancies happen in the representation from any state, the executive authority thereof shall issue writs of election to fill such vacancies.

The house of representatives shall choose their speaker and other officers; and shall have the sole power of impeachment.

§ 3. The senate of the United States shall be composed of two senators from each state, elected by the people thereof for six years; and each senator shall have one vote. The electors in each state shall have the qualifications requisite for electors of the most numerous branch of the state legislature. When vacancies happen in the representation of any state in the senate the executive authority of such state shall issue writs of election to fill such vacancy; provided that the legislature of any state may empower the executive thereof to make temporary appointments until the people fill the vacancies by election, as the legislature may direct. This amendment shall not be so construed to affect the election or term of any senator chosen before it becomes valid as part of the constitution.

[Ratified in 1913.]

Immediately after they shall be assembled in consequence of the first election, they shall be divided as equally as may be into three classes. The seats of the senators of the first class shall be vacated at the expiration of the second year, of the second class at the expiration of the fourth year, and of the third class at the expiration of the sixth year, so that one third may be chosen every second year; and if vacancies happen by resignation, or otherwise, during the recess of the legislature of any state, the executive thereof may make temporary appointments until the next meeting of the legislature, which shall then fill such vacancies.

No person shall be a senator who shall not have attained to the age of thirty years, and been nine years a citizen of the United States, and who shall not, when elected, be an inhabitant of that state for which he shall be chosen.

The vice-president of the United States shall be president of the senate, but shall have no vote unless they be equally divided.

The senate shall choose their other officers, and also a president pro tempore, in the absence of the vice-president, or when he shall exercise the office of president of the United States.

The senate shall have the sole power to try all impeachments. When sitting for that purpose, they shall be on oath or affirmation. When the president of the United States is tried, the chief justice shall preside: And no person shall be convicted without the concurrence of two thirds of the members present.

Judgment in cases of impeachment shall not extend further than to removal from office, and disqualification to hold and enjoy any office of honor, trust or profit under the United States; but the party convicted shall nevertheless be liable and subject to indictment, trial, judgment and punishment, according to law.

§ 4. The times, places and manner of holding elections for senators and representatives, shall be prescribed in each state, by the legislature thereof; but the congress may at any time by law make or alter such regulations, except as to the places of choosing senators.

The congress shall assemble at least once in every year, and such meeting shall be on the first Monday in December, unless they shall by law appoint a different day.

§ 5. Each house shall be the judge of the elections, returns and qualifications of its own members, and a majority of each shall constitute a quorum to do business; but a smaller number may adjourn from day to day, and may be authorized to compel the attendance of absent members, in such manner, and under such penalties as each house may provide.

Each house may determine the rules of its proceedings, punish its members for disorderly behavior, and, with the concurrence of two thirds, expel a member.

Each house shall keep a journal of its proceedings, and from time to time publish the same, excepting such parts as may in their judgment require secrecy; and the yeas and nays of the members of either house on any question shall, at the desire of one fifth of those present, be entered on the journal.

Neither house, during the session of congress, shall without the consent of the other, adjourn for more than three days, nor to any other place than that in which the two houses shall be sitting.

§ 6. The senators and representatives shall receive a compensation for their services, to be ascertained by law, and paid out of the treasury of the United States. They shall in all cases, except treason, felony and breach of the peace, be privileged from arrest during their attendance at the session of their respective houses, and in going to and from the same; and for any speech or debate in either house, they shall not be questioned in any other place.

No senator or representative shall, during the time for which he was elected, be appointed to any civil office under the authority of the United States, which shall have been created, or the emoluments whereof shall have been increased during such time; and no person holding any office under the United States, shall be a member of either house during his continuance in office.

§ 7. All bills for raising revenue shall originate in the house of representatives; but the senate may propose or concur with amendments as on other bills.

Every bill which shall have passed the house of representatives and the senate, shall, before it become a law, be presented to the president of the United States; if he approve he shall sign it, but if not he shall return it, with his objections, to that house in which it shall have originated, who shall enter the objections at large on their journal, and proceed to reconsider it. If after such reconsideration two thirds of that house shall agree to pass the bill, it shall be sent, together with the objections, to the other house, by which it shall likewise be reconsidered, and if approved by two thirds of that house, it shall become a law. But in all such cases the votes of both houses shall be determined by yeas and nays, and the names of the persons voting for and against the bill shall be entered on the journal of each house respectively. If any bill shall not be returned by the president within ten days (Sundays excepted) after it shall have been presented to him, the same shall be a law, in like manner as if he had signed it, unless the congress by their adjournment prevent its return, in which case it shall not be a law.

Every order, resolution, or vote to which the concurrence of the senate and house of representatives may be necessary (except on a question of adjournment) shall be presented to the president of the United States; and before the same shall take effect, shall be approved by him, or being disapproved by him, shall be repassed by two thirds of the senate and house of representatives, according to the rules and limitations prescribed in the case of a bill.

§ 8. The congress shall have power to lay and collect taxes, duties, imposts and excises, to pay the debts and provide for the common defense and general welfare of the United States; but all duties, imposts and excises shall be uniform throughout the United States;

To borrow money on the credit of the United States;

To regulate commerce with foreign nations, and among the several states, and with the Indian tribes;

To establish a uniform rule of naturalization, and uniform laws on the subject of bankruptcies throughout the United States;

To coin money, regulate the value thereof, and of foreign coin, and fix the standard of weights and measures;

To provide for the punishment of counterfeiting the securities and current coin of the United States;

To establish post-offices and post-roads;

To promote the progress of science and useful arts, by securing for limited times to authors and inventors the exclusive right to their respective writings and discoveries;

To constitute tribunals inferior to the supreme court;

To define and punish piracies and felonies committed on the high seas, and offenses against the law of nations;

To declare war, grant letters of marque and reprisal, and make rules concerning captures on land and water;

To raise and support armies, but no appropriations of money to that use shall be for a longer term than two years;

To provide and maintain a navy;

To make rules for the government and regulation of the land and naval forces;

To provide for calling forth the militia to execute the laws of the Union, suppress insurrections and repel invasions;

To provide for organizing, arming, and disciplining the militia, and for governing such part of them as may be employed in the service of the United States, reserving to the states, respectively, the appointment of the officers, and the authority of training the militia according to the discipline prescribed by congress;

To exercise exclusive legislation in all cases whatsoever, over such district (not exceeding ten miles square) as may, by cession of particular states, and the acceptance of congress, become the seat of the government of the United States, and to exercise like authority over all places purchased by the consent of the legislature of the state in which the same shall be, for the erection of forts, magazines, arsenals, dockyards, and other needful buildings;—And

To make all laws which shall be necessary and proper for carrying into execution the foregoing powers, and all other powers vested by this constitution in the government of the United States, or in any department or officer thereof.

§ 9. The migration or importation of such persons as any of the states now existing shall think proper to admit, shall not be prohibited by congress prior to the year one thousand eight hundred and eight, but a tax or duty may be imposed on such importation, not exceeding ten dollars for each person.

The privilege of the writ of habeas corpus shall not be suspended, unless when in cases of rebellion or invasion the public safety may require it.

No bill of attainder or ex post facto law shall be passed.

No capitation, or other direct, tax shall be laid, unless in proportion to the census or enumeration hereinbefore directed to be taken.

No tax or duty shall be laid on articles exported from any state.

No preference shall be given by any regulation of commerce or revenue to the ports of one state over those of another: nor shall vessels bound to, or from, one state, be obliged to enter, clear, or pay duties in another.

No money shall be drawn from the treasury but in consequence of appropriations made by law; and a regular statement and account of the receipts and expenditures of all public money shall be published from time to time.

No title of nobility shall be granted by the United States: And no person holding any office or profit or trust under them, shall, without the consent of the congress, accept of any present, emolument, office, or title, of any kind whatever, from any king, prince, or foreign state.

§ 10. No state shall enter into any treaty, alliance, or confederation; grant letters of marque and reprisal; coin money, emit bills of credit; make anything but gold and silver coin a tender in payment of debts; pass any bill of attainder, ex post facto law, or law impairing the obligation of contracts, or grant any title of nobility.

No state shall, without the consent of the congress, lay any imposts or duties on imports or exports, except what may be absolutely necessary for executing its inspection laws: and the net produce of all duties and imposts, laid by any state on imports or exports, shall be for the use of the treasury of the United States; and all such laws shall be subject to the revision and control of the congress.

No state shall, without the consent of Congress, lay any duty of tonnage, keep troops, or ships of war in time of peace, enter into any agreement or compact with another state, or with a foreign power, or engage in war, unless actually invaded, or in such imminent danger as will not admit of delay.

ARTICLE II.

§ 1. The executive power shall be vested in a president of the United States of America. He shall hold his office during the term of four years, and, together with the vice-president, chosen for the same term, be elected as follows:

Each state shall appoint, in such manner as the legislature thereof may direct, a number of electors, equal to the whole number of senators and representatives to which the state may be entitled in the congress; but no senator or representative, or person holding an office of trust or profit under the United States, shall be appointed an elector.

[The electors shall meet in their respective states, and vote by ballot for two persons, of whom one at least shall not be an inhabitant of the same state with themselves. And they shall make a list of all the persons voted for, and of the number of votes for each; which list they shall sign and certify, and transmit sealed to the seat of the government of the United States, directed to the president of the senate. The president of the senate shall, in the presence of the senate and house of representatives, open all the certificates, and the votes shall then be counted. The person having the greatest number of votes shall be the president, if such number be a majority of the whole number of electors appointed; and if there be more than one who have such majority, and have an equal number of votes, then the house of representatives shall immediately choose by ballot one of them for president; and if no person have a majority, then from the five highest on the list the said house shall in like manner choose the president. But in choosing the president, the votes shall be taken by states, the representation from each state having one vote; a quorum for this purpose shall consist of a member or members from two thirds of the states, and a majority of all the states shall be necessary to a choice. In every case, after the choice of the president, the person having the greatest number of votes of the electors shall be the vice-president. But if there should remain two or more who have equal votes, the senate shall choose from them by ballot the vice-president.] [This paragraph is superseded by article XII of the Amendments to the Constitution, post p. xxvi.]

The congress may determine the time of choosing the electors and the day on which they shall give their votes; which day shall be the same throughout the United States.

No person except a natural-born citizen, or a citizen of the United States, at the time of the adoption of this constitution, shall be eligible to the office of president; neither shall any person be eligible to that office who shall not have attained to the age of thirty-five years, and been fourteen years a resident within the United States.

In case of the removal of the president from office, or of his death, resignation, or inability to discharge the powers and duties of the said office, the same shall devolve on the vice-president, and the congress may by law provide for the case of removal, death, resignation, or inability, both of the president and vice-president, declaring what officer shall then act as president, and such officer shall act accordingly, until disability be removed, or a president shall be elected.

The president shall, at stated times, receive for his services, a compensation, which shall neither be increased nor diminished during the period for which he shall have been elected, and he shall not receive within that period any other emolument from the United States, or any of them.

Before he enter on the execution of his office, he shall take the following oath or affirmation:—"I do solemnly swear (or affirm) that I will faithfully execute the office of president of the United States, and will to the best of my ability, preserve, protect and defend the constitution of the United States."

§ 2. The president shall be commander-in-chief of the army and navy of the United States, and of the militia of the several states, when called into the actual service of the United States; he may require the opinion, in writing, of the principal officer in each of the executive departments, upon any subject relating to the duties of their respective offices, and he shall have power to grant reprieves and pardon for offenses against the United States, except in cases of impeachment.

He shall have power, by and with the advice and consent of the senate, to make treaties, provided two thirds of the senators present concur; and he shall nominate, and by and with the advice and consent of the senate, shall appoint ambassadors, other public ministers and consuls, judges of the supreme court, and all other officers of the United States, whose appointment are not herein otherwise provided for, and which shall be established by law; but the congress may by law vest the appointment of such inferior officers, as they think proper, in the president alone, in the courts of law, or in the heads of departments.

The president shall have power to fill up all vacancies that may happen during the recess of the senate, by granting commissions which shall expire at the end of their next session.

§ 3. He shall from time to time give to the congress information of the state of the Union, and recommend to their consideration such measures as he shall judge necessary and expedient; he may, on extraordinary occasions, convene both houses, or either of them, and in case of disagreement between them, with respect to the time of adjournment, he may adjourn them to such time as he shall think proper; he shall receive ambassadors and other public ministers; he shall take care that the laws be faithfully executed, and shall commission all the officers of the United States.

§ 4. The president, vice-president and all civil officers of the United States, shall be removed from office on impeachment for, and conviction of, treason, bribery, or other high crimes and misdemeanors.

ARTICLE III.

§ 1. The judicial power of the United States shall be vested in one supreme court, and in such inferior courts as the congress may from time to time ordain and establish. The judges, both of the supreme and inferior courts, shall hold their offices during good behavior, and shall, at stated times, receive for their services a compensation which shall not be diminished during their continuance in office.

§ 2. The judicial power shall extend to all cases, in law and equity, arising under this constitution, the laws of the United States, and treaties made, or which shall be made, under their authority;—to all cases affecting ambassadors, other public ministers, and counsels;—to all cases of admiralty and maritime jurisdiction;—to controversies to which the United States shall be a party;—to controversies between two or more states;—between a state and citizens of another state;—between citizens of different states,—between citizens of the same state claiming lands under grants of different states, and between a state, or the citizens thereof, and foreign states, citizens or subjects.

In all cases affecting ambassadors, other public ministers and consuls, and those in which a state shall be party, the supreme court shall have original jurisdiction. In all the other cases before mentioned, the supreme court shall have appellate jurisdiction, both as to law and fact, with such exceptions, and under such regulations as the congress shall make.

The trial of all crimes, except in cases of impeachment, shall be by jury; and such trial shall be held in the state where the said crime shall have been committed; but when not committed within any state, the trial shall be at such place or places as the congress may by law have directed.

§ 3. Treason against the United States shall consist only in levying war against them or in adhering to their enemies, giving them aid and comfort. No person shall be convicted of treason unless on the testimony of two witnesses to the same overt act, or on confession in open court.

The congress shall have power to declare the punishment of treason, but no attainder of treason shall work corruption of blood, or forfeiture except during the life of the person attainted

ARTICLE IV.

ARTICLE VI.

All debts contracted and engagements entered into, before the adoption of this constitution, shall be as valid against the United States under this constitution, as under the confederation.

The senators and representatives before mentioned, and the members of the several state legislatures, and all executive and judicial officers, both of the United States and of the several states, shall be bound by oath or affirmation, to support this constitution; but no religious test shall ever be required as a qualification to any office or public trust under the United States.

ARTICLE VII.

PREAMBLE AND DECLARATION OF RIGHTS.

PREAMBLE.

We, the people of the state of California, grateful to Almighty God for our freedom, in order to secure and perpetuate its blessings, do establish this Constitution.

ARTICLE I.

DECLARATION OF RIGHTS.

Section 1. All men are by nature free and independent, and have certain inalienable rights, among which are those of enjoying and defending life and liberty; acquiring, possessing, and protecting property; and pursuing and obtaining safety and happiness.

Sec. 2. All political power is inherent in the people. Government is instituted for the protection, security, and benefit of the people, and they have the right to alter or reform the same whenever the public good may require it.

Sec. 3. The state of California is an inseparable part of the American Union, and the Constitution of the United States is the supreme law of the land.

Sec. 4. The free exercise and enjoyment of religious profession and worship, without discrimination or preference, shall forever be guaranteed in this state; and no person shall be rendered incompetent to be a witness or juror on account of his opinions on matters of religious belief; but the liberty of conscience hereby secured shall not be so construed as to excuse acts of licentiousness, or justify practices inconsistent with the peace or safety of this state.

Sec. 5. The privilege of the writ of habeas corpus shall not be suspended unless when, in cases of rebellion or invasion, the public safety may require its suspension.

Sec. 6. All persons shall be bailable by sufficient sureties, unless for capital offenses when the proof is evident or the presumption great. Excessive bail shall not be required, nor excessive fines imposed; nor shall cruel or unusual punishments be inflicted. Witnesses shall not be unreasonably detained, nor confined in any room where criminals are actually imprisoned.

Sec. 7. The right of trial by jury shall be secured to all, and remain inviolate; but in civil actions three-fourths of the jury may render a verdict. A trial by jury may be waived in all criminal cases not amounting to felony, by the consent of both parties, expressed in open court, and in civil actions by the consent of the parties, signified in such manner as may be prescribed by law. In civil actions and cases of misdemeanor, the jury may consist of twelve, or of any number less than twelve upon which the parties may agree in open court.

Sec. 8. Offenses heretofore required to be prosecuted by indictment shall be prosecuted by information, after examination and commitment by a magistrate, or by indictment, with or without such examination and commitment, as may be prescribed by law. A grand jury shall be drawn and summoned at least once a year in each county.

Sec. 9. Every citizen may freely speak, write, and publish his sentiments on all subjects, being responsible for the abuse of that right; and no law shall be passed to restrain or abridge the liberty of speech or of the press. In all criminal prosecutions for libels, the truth may be given in evidence to the jury; and if it shall appear to the jury that the matter charged as libelous is true, and was published with good motives, and for justifiable ends, the party shall be acquitted; and the jury shall have the right to determine the law and the fact. Indictments found, or information laid, for publications in newspapers, shall be tried in the county where such newspapers have their publication office, or in the county where the party alleged to be libeled resided at the time of the alleged publication, unless the place of trial shall be changed for good cause.

Sec. 10. The people shall have the right to freely assemble together to consult for the common good, to instruct their representatives, and to petition the legislature for redress of grievances.

Sec. 11. All laws of a general nature shall have a uniform operation.

Sec. 12. The military shall be subordinate to the civil power. No standing army shall be kept up by this state in time of peace, and no soldier shall, in time of peace, be quartered in any house without the consent of the owner; nor in time of war, except in the manner prescribed by law.

Sec. 13. In criminal prosecutions, in any court whatever, the party accused shall have the right to a speedy and public trial; to have the process of the court to compel the attendance of witnesses in his behalf, and to appear and defend, in person and with counsel. No person shall be twice put in jeopardy for the same offense; nor be compelled, in any criminal case, to be a witness against himself; nor be deprived of life, liberty or property without due process of law. The legislature shall have power to provide for the taking, in the presence of the party accused and his counsel, of depositions of witnesses, in criminal cases other than cases of homicide, when there is reason to believe that the witness, from inability or other cause, will not attend at the trial.

Sec. 14. Private property shall not be taken or damaged for public use without just compensation having first been made to, or paid into court for, the owner, and no right of way shall be appropriated to the use of any corporation, except a municipal corporation or a county, until full compensation therefor be first made in money or ascertained and paid into court for the owner, irrespective of any benefits from any improvement composed by such corporation, which compensation shall be ascertained by a jury, unless a jury be waived, as in other civil cases in a court of record, as shall be prescribed by law; provided, that in an action in eminent domain brought by the state, or a county, or a municipal corporation, or a drainage, irrigation, levee, or reclamation district, the aforesaid state or political subdivision thereof or district may take immediate possession and use of any right of way required for a public use whether the fee thereof or an easement therefor be sought upon first commencing eminent domain proceedings according to law in a court of competent jurisdiction and thereupon giving such security in the way of money deposits as the court in which such proceedings are pending may direct, and in such amounts as the court may determine to be reasonably adequate to secure to the owner of the property sought to be taken immediate payment of just compensation for such taking and any damage incident thereto, including damages sustained by reason of an adjudication that there is no necessity for taking the property, as soon as the same can be ascertained according to law. The court may, upon motion of any party to said eminent domain proceedings, after such notice to the other parties as the court may prescribe, alter the amount of such security so required in such proceedings. The taking of private property for a railroad run by steam or electric power for logging or lumbering purposes shall be deemed a taking for a public use, and any person, firm, company or corporation taking private property under the law of eminent domain for such purposes shall thereupon and thereby become a common carrier. [Amendment adopted November 5, 1918.]

Sec. 15. No person shall be imprisoned for debt in any civil action, on mesne or final process, unless in cases of fraud, nor in civil actions for torts, except in cases of wilful injury to person or property; and no person shall be imprisoned for a militia fine in time of peace.

CONSTITUTION OF THE STATE OF CALIFORNIA.

Sec. 16. No bill of attainder, ex post facto law, or law impairing the obligations of contracts, shall ever be passed.

Sec. 17. Foreigners, of the white race, or of African descent, eligible to become citizens of the United States under the naturalization laws thereof, while bona fide residents of this state, shall have the same rights in respect to the acquisition, possession, enjoyment, transmission, and inheritance of all property, other than real estate, as native born citizens; provided, that such aliens owning real estate at the time of the adoption of this amendment may remain such owners; and provided, further, that the legislature may, by statute, provide for the disposition of real estate which shall hereafter be acquired by such aliens by descent or devise. [Amendment adopted November 6, 1894.]

Sec. 18. Neither slavery nor involuntary servitude, unless for the punishment of crime, shall ever be tolerated in this state.

Sec. 19. The right of the people to be secure in their persons, houses, papers and effects, against unreasonable seizures and searches, shall not be violated; and no warrant shall issue but on probable cause, supported by oath or affirmation, particularly describing the place to be searched and the person and things to be seized.

Sec. 20. Treason against the state shall consist only in levying war against it, adhering to its enemies, or giving them aid and comfort. No person shall be convicted of treason unless on the evidence of two witnesses to the same overt act, or confession in open court.

Sec. 21. No special privileges or immunities shall ever be granted which may not be altered, revoked, or repealed by the legislature, nor shall any citizen, or class of citizens, be granted privileges or immunities which, upon the same terms, shall not be granted to all citizens.

Sec. 22. The provisions of this Constitution are mandatory and prohibitory, unless by express words they are declared to be otherwise.

Sec. 23. This enumeration of rights shall not be construed to impair or deny others retained by the people.

Sec. 24. No property qualification shall ever be required for any person to vote or hold office.

Sec. 25. The people shall have the right to fish upon and from public lands of the state and in the waters thereof, excepting upon lands set aside for fish hatcheries, and no land owned by the state shall ever be sold or transferred without reserving in the people the absolute right to fish thereupon; and no law shall ever be passed making it a crime for the people to enter upon the public lands within this state for the purpose of fishing in any water containing fish that have been planted therein by the state; provided, that the legislature may by statute, provide for the season when and the conditions under which the different species of fish may be taken. [New section adopted November 8, 1910.]

ARTICLE II.

RIGHT OF SUFFRAGE.

Section 1. Every native citizen of the United States, every person who shall have acquired the rights of citizenship under or by virtue of the treaty of Queretaro, and every naturalized citizen thereof, who shall have become such ninety days prior to any election, of the age of twenty-one years, who shall have been resident of the state one year next preceding the election, and of the county in which he or she claims his or her vote ninety days, and in the election precinct thirty days, shall be entitled to vote at all elections which are now or may hereafter be authorized by law; provided, no native of China, no idiot, no insane person, no person convicted of any infamous crime, no person hereafter convicted of the embezzlement or misappropriation of public money, and no person who shall not be able to read the Constitution in the English language and write his or her name, shall ever exercise the privileges of an elector in this state; provided, that the provisions of this amendment relative to an educational qualification shall not apply to any person prevented by a physical disability from complying with its requisitions, nor to any person who now has the right to vote, nor to any person who shall be sixty years of age and upwards at the time this amendment shall take effect. [Amendment adopted October 10, 1911.]

CONSTITUTION OF THE STATE OF CALIFORNIA.

Sec. 2. Electors shall in all cases, except treason, felony, or breach of the peace, be privileged from arrest on the days of election, during their attendance at such election, going to and returning therefrom.

Sec. 2½. The legislature shall have the power to enact laws relative to the election of delegates to conventions of political parties; and the legislature shall enact laws providing for the direct nomination of candidates for public office, by electors, political parties, or organizations of electors without conventions, at elections to be known and designated as primary elections; also to determine the tests and conditions upon which electors, political parties, or organizations of electors may participate in any such primary election. It shall also be lawful for the legislature to prescribe that any such primary election shall be mandatory and obligatory. The legislature shall also have the power to establish the rates of compensation for primary election officers serving at such primary elections in any city, or city and county, or county, or other subdivision of a designated population, without making such compensation uniform, and for such purpose such law may declare the population of any city, city and county, county or political subdivision; provided, however, that until the legislature shall enact a direct primary election law under the provisions of this section, the present primary election law shall remain in force and effect. [Amendment adopted November 3, 1911.]

Sec. 3. No elector shall be obliged to perform militia duty on the day of election, except in time of war or public danger.

Sec. 4. For the purpose of voting, no person shall be deemed to have gained or lost a residence by reason of his presence or absence while employed in the service of the United States; nor while engaged in the navigation of the waters of this state, or of the United States, or of the high seas; nor while a student at any seminary of learning; nor while kept in any almshouse or other asylum, at public expense; nor while confined in any public prison.

Sec. 5. All elections by the people shall be by ballot or by such other method as may be prescribed by law; provided, that secrecy in voting be preserved. [Amendment adopted November 3, 1896.]

Sec. 6. The inhibitions of this constitution to the contrary notwithstanding, the legislature shall have power to provide that in different parts of the state different methods may be employed for receiving and registering the will of the people as expressed at elections, and may provide that mechanical devices may be used within designated subdivisions of the state at the option of the local authority indicated by the legislature for that purpose. [New section adopted November 4, 1902.]

ARTICLE III. DISTRIBUTION OF POWERS.

Section 1. The powers of the government of the state of California shall be divided into three separate departments—the legislative, executive, and judicial; and no person charged with the exercise of powers properly belonging to one of these departments shall exercise any functions appertaining to either of the other, except as in this Constitution expressly directed or permitted.

ARTICLE IV.

LEGISLATIVE DEPARTMENT.

Section 1. The legislative power of this state shall be vested in a senate and assembly which shall be designated "The Legislature of the State of California," but the people reserve to themselves the power to propose laws and amendments to the Constitution, and to adopt or reject the same, at the polls independent of the legislature, and also reserve the power, at their own option, to so adopt or reject any act, or section or part of any act, passed by the legislature. The enacting clause of every law shall be "The People of the State of California do enact as follows:"

The first power reserved to the people shall be known as the initiative. Upon the presentation to the secretary of state of a petition certified as herein provided to have been signed by qualified electors, equal in number to eight per cent of all the votes cast for all candidates for governor at the last preceding general election, at which a governor was elected, proposing a law or amendment to the Constitution, set forth in full in said petition, the secretary of state shall submit the said proposed law or amendment to the Constitution to the electors at the next succeeding general election occurring subsequent to ninety days after the presentation aforesaid of said petition, or at any special election called by the governor in his discretion prior to such general election. All such initiative petitions shall have printed across the top thereof in twelve point black-face type the following: "Initiative measure to be submitted directly to the electors."

Upon the presentation to the secretary of state, at any time not less than ten days before the commencement of any regular session of the legislature, of a petition certified as herein provided to have been signed by qualified electors of the state equal in number to five per cent of all the votes cast for all candidates for governor at the last preceding general election, at which a governor was elected, proposing a law set forth in full in said petition, the secretary of state shall transmit the same to the legislature as soon as it convenes and organizes. The law proposed by such petition shall be either enacted or rejected without change or amendment by the legislature, within forty days from the time it is received by the legislature. If any law proposed by such petition shall be enacted by the legislature it shall be subject to referendum, as hereinafter provided. If any law so petitioned for be rejected, or if no action is taken upon it by the legislature, within said forty days, the secretary of state shall submit it to the people for approval or rejection at the next ensuing general election. The legislature may reject any measure so proposed by initiative petition and propose a different one on the same subject by a yea and nay vote upon separate roll call, and in such event both measures shall be submitted by the secretary of state to the electors for approval or rejection at the next ensuing general election or at a prior special election called by the governor, in his discretion, for such purpose. All said initiative petitions last above described shall have printed in twelve point black-face type the following: "Initiative measure to be presented to the legislature."

The second power reserved to the people shall be known as the referendum. No act passed by the legislature shall go into effect until ninety days after the final adjournment of the session of the legislature which passed such act, except acts calling elections, acts providing for tax levies or appropriations for the usual current expenses of the state, and urgency measures necessary for the immediate preservation of the public peace, health or safety, passed by a two-thirds vote of all the members elected to each house. Whenever it is deemed necessary for the immediate preservation of the public peace, health or safety that a law shall go into immediate effect, a statement of the facts constituting such necessity shall be set forth in one section of the act, which section shall be passed only upon a yea and nay vote, upon a separate roll call thereon; provided, however, that no measure creating or abolishing any office or changing the salary, term or duties of any officer, or granting any franchise or special privilege, or creating any vested right or interest, shall be construed to be an urgency measure. Any law so passed by the legislature and declared to be an urgency measure shall go into immediate effect.

Upon the presentation to the secretary of state within ninety days after the final adjournment of the legislature of a petition certified as herein provided, to have been signed by qualified electors equal in number to five per cent of all the votes cast for all candidates for governor at the last preceding general election at which a governor was elected, asking that any act or section or part of any act of the legislature be submitted to the electors for their approval or rejection, the secretary of state shall submit to the electors for their approval or rejection, such act, or section or part of such act, at the next succeeding general election occurring at any time subsequent to thirty days after the filing of said petition or at any special election which may be called by the governor, in his discretion, prior to such regular election, and no such act or section or part of such act shall go into effect until and unless approved by a majority of the qualified electors voting thereon; but if a referendum petition is filed against any section or part of any act the remainder of such act shall not be delayed from going into effect.

Any act, law or amendment to the constitution submitted to the people by either initiative or referendum petition and approved by a majority of the votes cast thereon, at any election, shall take effect five days after the date of the official declaration of the vote by the secretary of state. No act, law or amendment to the constitution, initiated or adopted by the people, shall be subject to the veto power of the governor, and no act, law or amendment to the constitution, adopted by the people at the polls under the initiative provisions of this section, shall be amended or repealed except by a vote of the electors, unless otherwise provided in said initiative measure; but acts and laws adopted by the people under the referendum provisions of this section may be amended by the legislature at any subsequent session thereof. If any provision or provisions of two or more measures, approved by the electors at the same election, conflict, the provision or provisions of the measure receiving the highest affirmative vote shall prevail. Until otherwise provided by law, all measures submitted to a vote of the electors, under the provisions of this section, shall be printed, and together with arguments for and against each such measure by the proponents and opponents thereof, shall be mailed to each elector in the same manner as now provided by law as to amendments to the constitution, proposed by the legislature; and the persons to prepare and present such arguments shall, until otherwise provided by law, be selected by the presiding officer of the senate.

If for any reason any initiative or referendum measure, proposed by petition as herein provided, be not submitted at the election specified in this section, such failure shall not prevent its submission at a succeeding general election, and no law or amendment to the constitution, proposed by the legislature, shall be submitted at any election unless at the same election there shall be submitted all measures proposed by petition of the electors, if any be so proposed, as herein provided.

Any initiative or referendum petition may be presented in sections, but each section shall contain a full and correct copy of the title and text of the proposed measure. Each signer shall add to his signature his place of residence, giving the street and number if such exist. His election precinct shall also appear on the paper after his name. The number of signatures attached to each section shall be at the pleasure of the person soliciting signatures to the same. Any qualified elector of the state shall be competent to solicit said signatures within the county or city and county of which he is an elector. Each section of the petition shall bear the name of the county or city and county in which it is circulated, and only qualified electors of such county or city and county shall be competent to sign such section. Each section shall have attached thereto the affidavit of the person soliciting signatures to the same, stating his own qualifications and that all the signatures to the attached section were made in his presence and that to the best of his knowledge and belief each signature to the section is the genuine signature of the person whose name it purports to be, and no other affidavit thereto shall be required. The affidavit of any person soliciting signatures hereunder shall be verified free of charge by any officer authorized to administer oaths. Such petitions so verified shall be prima facie evidence that the signatures thereon are genuine and that the persons signing the same are qualified electors. Unless and until it be otherwise proven upon official investigation, it shall be presumed that the petition presented contains the signatures of the requisite number of qualified electors.

Each section of the petition shall be filed with the clerk or registrar of voters of the county or city and county in which it was circulated, but all said sections circulated in any county or city and county shall be filed at the same time. Within twenty days after the filing of such petition in his office the said clerk, or registrar of voters, shall determine from the records of registration what number of qualified electors have signed the same, and if necessary the board of supervisors shall allow said clerk or registrar additional assistants for the purpose of examining such petition and provide for their compensation. The said clerk or registrar, upon the completion of such examination, shall forthwith attach to said petition, except the signatures thereto appended, his certificate, properly dated, showing the result of said examination and shall forthwith transmit said petition, together with his said certificate, to the secretary of state and also file a copy of said certificate in his office. Within forty days from the transmission of the said petition and certificate by the clerk or registrar to the secretary of state, a supplemental petition identical with the original as to the body of the petition but containing supplemental names, may be filed with the clerk or registrar of voters, as aforesaid. The clerk or registrar of voters shall within ten days after the filing of such supplemental petition make like examination thereof, as of the original petition, and upon the completion of such examination shall forthwith attach to said petition his certificate, properly dated, showing the result of said examination, and shall forthwith transmit a copy of said supplemental petition, except the signatures thereto appended, together with his certificate, to the secretary of state.

When the secretary of state shall have received from one or more county clerks or registrars of voters a petition certified as herein provided to have been signed by the requisite number of qualified electors, he shall forthwith transmit to the county clerk or registrar of voters of every county or city and county in the state his certificate showing such fact. A petition shall be deemed to be filed with the secretary of state upon the date of the receipt by him of a certificate or certificates showing said petition to be signed by the requisite number of electors of the state. Any county clerk or registrar of voters shall, upon receipt of such copy, file the same for record in his office. The duties herein imposed upon the clerk or registrar of voters shall be performed by such registrar of voters in all cases where the office of registrar of voters exists.

The initiative and referendum powers of the people are hereby further reserved to the electors of each county, city and county, city and town of the state, to be exercised under such procedure as may be provided by law. Until otherwise provided by law, the legislative body of any such county, city and county, city or town may provide for the manner of exercising the initiative and referendum powers herein reserved to such counties, cities and counties, cities and towns, but shall not require more than fifteen per cent of the electors thereof to propose any initiative measure nor more than ten per cent of the electors thereof to order the referendum. Nothing contained in this section shall be construed as affecting or limiting the present or future powers of cities or cities and counties having charters adopted under the provisions of section eight of article eleven of this constitution. In the submission to the electors of any measure under this section, all officers shall be guided by the general laws of this state, except as is herein otherwise provided. This section is self-executing, but legislation may be enacted to facilitate its operation, but in no way limiting or restricting either the provisions of this section or the powers herein reserved. [Amendment adopted October 10, 1911.]

Sec. 2. The sessions of the legislature shall be biennial, unless the governor shall, in the interim, convene the legislature, by proclamation, in extraordinary session. All sessions, other than extraordinary, shall commence at twelve o'clock M., on the first Monday after the first day of January next succeeding the election of its members, and shall continue in session for a period not exceeding thirty days thereafter; whereupon a recess of both houses must be taken for not less than thirty days. On the reassembling of the legislature, no bill shall be introduced in either house without the consent of three-fourths of the members thereof, nor shall more than two bills be introduced by any one member after such reassembling. [Amendment adopted October 10, 1911.]

Sec. 3. Members of the assembly shall be elected in the year eighteen hundred and seventy-nine, at the time and in the manner now provided by law. The second election of members of the assembly, after the adoption of this constitution, shall be on the first Tuesday after the first Monday in November, eighteen hundred and eighty. Thereafter members of the assembly shall be chosen biennially, and their term of office shall be two years; and each election shall be on the first Tuesday after the first Monday in November, unless otherwise ordered by the legislature.

Sec. 4. Senators shall be chosen for the term of four years, at the same time and places as members of the assembly, and no person shall be a member of the senate or assembly who has not been a citizen and inhabitant of the state three years, and of the district for which he shall be chosen one year, next before his election.

Sec. 5. The senate shall consist of forty members, and the assembly of eighty members, to be elected by districts, numbered as hereinafter provided. The seats of the twenty senators elected in the year eighteen hundred and eighty-two from the odd-numbered districts shall be vacated at the expiration of the second year, so that one-half of the senators shall be elected every two years; provided, that all the senators elected at the first election under this constitution shall hold office for the term of three years.

Sec. 6. For the purpose of choosing members of the legislature, the state shall be divided into forty senatorial and eighty assembly districts, as nearly equal in population as may be, and composed of contiguous territory, to be called senatorial and assembly districts. Each senatorial district shall choose one senator and each assembly district shall choose one member of assembly. The senatorial districts shall be numbered from one to forty, inclusive, in numerical order, and the assembly districts shall be numbered from one to eighty in the same order, commencing at the northern boundary of the state and ending at the southern boundary thereof. In the formation of such districts no county, or city and county, shall be divided, unless it contains sufficient population within itself to form two or more districts, nor shall a part of any county, or of any city and county, be united with any other county, or city and county, in forming any district. The census taken under the direction of the congress of the United States in the year one thousand eight hundred and eighty, and every ten years thereafter, shall be the basis of fixing and adjusting the legislative districts; and the legislature shall, at its first session after each census, adjust such districts and reapportion tion the representation so as to preserve them as near equal in population as may be. But in making such adjustment no persons who are not eligible to become citizens of the United States, under the naturalization laws, shall be counted as forming a part of the population of any district. Until such districting as herein provided for shall be made, senators and assemblymen shall be elected by the districts according to the apportionment now provided for by law.

Sec. 7. Each house shall choose its officers, and judge of the qualifications, elections, and returns of its members.

Sec. 8. A majority of each house shall constitute a quorum to do business, but a smaller number may adjourn from day to day, and may compel the attendance of absent members in such manner and under such penalties as each house may provide.

Sec. 9. Each house shall determine the rule of its proceeding, and may, with the concurrence of two-thirds of all the members elected, expel a member.

Sec. 10. Each house shall keep a journal of its proceedings, and publish the same: and the yeas and nays of the members of either house, on any question, shall, at the desire of any three members present, be entered on the journal.

Sec. 11. Members of the legislature shall, in all cases, except treason, felony, and breach of the peace, be privileged from arrest, and shall not be subject to any civil process during the session of the legislature, nor for fifteen days next before the commencement and after the termination of each session.

Sec. 12. When vacancies occur in either house, the governor, or the person exercising the functions of the governor, shall issue writs of election to fill such vacancies.

Sec. 13. The doors of each house shall be open, except on such occasion as, in the opinion of the house, may require secrecy.

Sec. 14. Neither house shall, without the consent of the other, adjourn for more than three days, nor to any place other than that in which they may be sitting. Nor shall the members of either house draw pay for any recess of adjournment for a longer time than three days.

Sec. 15. No law shall be passed except by bill. Nor shall any bill be put upon its final passage until the same, with the amendments thereto, shall have been printed for the use of the members; nor shall any bill become a law unless the same be read on three several days in each house, unless, in case of urgency, two-thirds of the house where such bill may be pending, shall, by a vote of yeas and nays, dispense with this provision. Any bill may originate in either house, but may be amended or rejected by the other; and on the final passage of all bills they shall be read at length, and the vote shall be by yeas and nays upon each bill separately, and shall be entered on the journal, and no bill shall become a law without the concurrence of a majority of the members elected to each house.

Sec. 16. Every bill which may have passed the legislature shall, before it becomes a law, be presented to the governor. If he approve it, he shall sign it; but if not, he shall return it, with his objections, to the house in which it originated, which shall enter such objections upon the journal and proceed to reconsider it. If after such reconsideration, it again pass both houses, by yeas and nays, two-thirds of the members elected to each house voting therefor, it shall become a law, notwithstanding the governor's objections. If any bill shall not be returned within ten days after it shall have been presented to him (Sundays excepted), the same shall become a law in like manner as if he had signed it, unless the legislature, by adjournment, prevents such return, in which case it shall not become a law, unless the governor, within thirty days after such adjournment (Sundays excepted), shall sign and deposit the same in the office of the secretary of state, in which case it shall become a law in like manner as if it had been signed by him before adjournment. If any bill presented to the governor contains several items of appropriation of money, he may object to one or more items, while approving other portions of the bill. In such case he shall append to the bill at the time of signing it, a statement of the items to which he objects, and the reasons therefor, and the appropriation so objected to shall not take effect unless passed over the governor's veto, as hereinbefore provided. If the legislature be in session, the governor shall transmit to the house in which the bill originated a copy of such statement, and the items so objected to shall be separately reconsidered in the same manner as bills which have been disapproved by the governor. [Amendment adopted November 3, 1908.]

Sec. 17. The assembly shall have the sole power of impeachment, and all impeachments shall be tried by the senate. When sitting for that purpose, the senators shall be upon oath or affirmation, and no person shall be convicted without the concurrence of two-thirds of the members elected.

Sec. 18. The governor, lieutenant governor, secretary of state, controller, treasurer, attorney general, surveyor general, chief justice and associate justices of the supreme court, judges of the district court of appeal, and judges of the superior courts, shall be liable to impeachment for any misdemeanor in office but judgment in such cases shall extend only to removal from office, and disqualification to hold any office of honor, trust, or profit under the state; but the party convicted or acquitted shall nevertheless be liable to indictment, trial and punishment according to law. All other civil officers shall be tried for misdemeanor in office in such manner as the legislature may provide. [Amendment adopted October 10, 1911.]

Sec. 19. No senator or member of assembly shall, during the term for which he shall have been elected, hold or accept any office, trust, or employment under this state; provided, that this provision shall not apply to any office filled by election by the people. [Amendment adopted November 7, 1916.]

Sec. 20. No person holding any lucrative office under the United States, or any other power, shall be eligible to any civil office of profit under this state; provided, that officers in the militia who receive no annual salary, local officers, or postmasters whose compensation does not exceed five hundred dollars per annum, shall not be deemed to hold lucrative offices.

Sec. 21. No person convicted of the embezzlement or defalcation of the public funds of the United States, or of any state, or of any county or municipality therein, shall ever be eligible to an office of honor, trust, or profit under this state, and the legislature shall provide, by law, for the punishment of embezzlement or defalcation as a felony.

Sec. 22. No money shall be drawn from the treasury but in consequence of appropriation made by law, and upon warrants duly drawn thereon by the controller; and no money shall ever be appropriated or drawn from the state treasury for the purpose or benefit of any corporation, association, asylum, hospital, or any other institution not under the exclusive management and control of the state as a state institution, nor shall any grant or donation of property ever be made thereto by the state; provided, that notwithstanding anything contained in this or any other section of the constitution, the legislature shall have the power to grant aid to the institutions conducted for the support and maintenance of minor orphans, or half-orphans, or abandoned children, or children of a father who is incapacitated for gainful work by permanent physical disability or is suffering from tuberculosis in such a stage that he can not pursue a gainful occupation, or aged persons in indigent circumstances—such aid to be granted by a uniform rule, and proportioned to the number of inmates of such respective institutions; provided, further, that the state shall have at any time the right to inquire into the management of such institutions; provided, further, that whenever any county, or city and county, or city, or town, shall provide for the support of minor orphans, or half-orphans, or abandoned children, or children of a father who is incapacitated for gainful work by permanent physical disability or is suffering from tuberculosis in such a stage that he can not pursue a gainful occupation, or aged persons in indigent circumstances, such county, city and county, city, or town shall be entitled to receive the same pro rata appropriations as may be granted to such institutions under church, or other control. An accurate statement of the receipts and expenditures of public moneys shall be attached to and published with the laws at every regular session of the legislature; provided, however, that for the purpose of raising five million dollars, to be used in establishing, maintaining, and supporting in the city and county of San Francisco, state of California, an exposition in commemoration of the completion of the Panama canal, to be known as the Panama-Pacific international exposition, the state board of equalization shall, for the fiscal year beginning July 1, 1911, and for each fiscal year thereafter, to and including the fiscal year beginning July 1, 1914, fix, establish, and levy such an ad valorem rate of taxation, as when levied upon all the taxable property in the state, after making due allowance for delinquency, shall produce for each of such fiscal years a sum of one million two hundred fifty thousand dollars. The said taxes shall be levied, assessed, and collected upon every kind and character of property in the state of California not exempt from taxation under the law, and subject to taxation on the first day of July, 1910, and in the same manner, and by the same method, as other state taxes were levied, assessed, and collected under the law, as the same existed on the first day of July, 1910. The state board of equalization shall each year, at the time it determines the amount of revenue required for other state purposes, determine, fix, and include the rate of tax necessary to raise the revenue herein provided for.

There is hereby created in the state treasury a fund to be known as the Panama-Pacific international exposition fund, and all moneys collected pursuant to this provision, after deducting the proportionate share of the expense for the collection of the same, shall be paid into the state treasury, and credited to such fund. All moneys so paid into such fund are hereby appropriated, without reference to fiscal years, for the use, establishment, maintenance and support of said Panama-Pacific international exposition. No tax, license fee, or charge of any kind or character shall ever be levied or assessed or charged against any property of said Panama-Pacific international exposition, or against any property used as exhibit therein, while being used or exhibited in connection therewith.

There is hereby created a commission to be known as the Panama-Pacific international exposition commission of the state of California, which shall consist of the governor of said state and four other members to be appointed by the governor, by and with the advice and consent of the senate of said state. The governor shall have the power to fill all vacancies occurring at any time in said commission. The members of said commission shall receive no compensation and shall hold office until such exposition shall have been closed and its affairs settled. Said four members of said commission shall be selected from different sections of the state, and the appointment thereof shall be made by the governor of the state during the month of February, 1911. The commission hereby created shall have the exclusive charge and control of all moneys paid into the Panama-Pacific international exposition fund; and provided, further, that the legislature shall pass all laws necessary to carry out the provisions of this act, including the times and the manner in which and the terms and conditions upon which moneys shall be drawn from the state treasury by said commission; where contracts and vouchers shall be filed; to whom and how often reports shall be made; what disposition shall be made of any sum left unexpended or received from the sale of any property or buildings purchased or constructed by said commission for the use of said exposition, or of any disposition of any building or improvement constructed by said commission out of said fund, and to provide for the transfer to the general fund of the state of California, of any portion of said Panama-Pacific international exposition fund unused.

The commission herein created is authorized and directed to make such proper contract with the Panama-Pacific International Exposition Company, a corporation organized under the laws of the state of California on the twenty-second day of March, 1910, as will entitle the state of California to share proportionately with the contributors to the said Panama-Pacific international exposition in the returns from the holding of said exposition at the city and county of San Francisco. [Amendment adopted November 2, 1920.]

Sec. 23. The members of the legislature shall receive for their services the sum of one thousand dollars each for each regular session, to be paid at such times during the session as may be provided by law, and the sum of ten dollars each for each day while in attendance at a special or extraordinary session, for a number of days not exceeding thirty; and mileage to be fixed by law, all paid out of the state treasury; such mileage shall not exceed ten cents per mile; and each member shall be allowed contingent expenses not exceeding twenty-five dollars per member for each regular biennial session. The legislature may also provide for additional help; but in no case shall the total expense for officers, employees and attaches exceed the sum of five hundred dollars per day for either house, at any regular or biennial session, nor the sum of two hundred dollars per day for either house at any special or extraordinary session, nor shall the pay of any officer, employee or attache be increased after he is elected or appointed. [Amendment adopted November 3, 1908.]

The legislature shall have no power to grant, or authorize any county or municipal authority to grant, any extra compensation or allowance to any public officer, agent, servant, or contractor, after service has been rendered, or a contract has been entered into and performed, in whole or in part, nor to pay, or to authorize the payment of, any claim hereafter created against the state, or any county or municipality of the state, under any agreement or contract made without express authority of law; and all such unauthorized agreements or contracts shall be null and void.

Sec. 33. The legislature shall pass laws for the regulation and limitation of the charges for services performed and commodities furnished by telegraph and gas corporations, and the charges by corporations or individuals for storage and wharfage in which there is a public use; and where laws shall provide for the selection of any person or officer to regulate and limit such rates, no such person or officer shall be selected by any corporation or individual interested in the business to be regulated, and no person shall be selected who is an officer or stockholder in any such corporation.

Any member of the legislature who shall be influenced, in his vote or action upon any matter pending before the legislature, by any reward, or promise of future reward, shall be deemed guilty of a felony, and upon conviction thereof, in addition to such punishment as may be provided by law, shall be disfranchised and forever disqualified from holding any office or public trust. Any person may be compelled to testify in any lawful investigation or judicial proceeding against any person who may be charged with having committed the offense of bribery or corrupt solicitation, or with having been influenced in his vote or action, as a member of the legislature, by reward, or promise of future reward, and shall not be permitted to withhold his testimony upon the ground that it may criminate himself, or subject him to public infamy; but such testimony shall not afterwards be used against him in any judicial proceeding, except for perjury in giving such testimony.

Sec. 36. The legislature shall have power to establish a system of state highways or to declare any road a state highway, and to pass all laws necessary or proper to construct and maintain the same, and to extend aid for the construction and maintenance in whole or in part of any county highway. Section 1. The judicial power of the state shall be vested in the senate, sitting as a court of impeachment, in a supreme court, district courts of appeal, superior courts and such inferior courts as the legislature may establish in any incorporated city or town, township, county, or city and county. [Amendment adopted October 10, 1911.]

Sec. 2. The supreme court shall consist of a chief justice and six associate justices. The court may sit in departments and in bank, and shall always be open for the transaction of business. There shall be two departments, denominated, respectively, department one and department two. The chief justice shall assign three of the associate justices to each department, and such assignment may be changed by him from time to time. The associate justices shall be competent to sit in either department, and may interchange with each other by agreement among themselves, or as ordered by the chief justice. Each of the departments shall have the power to hear and determine causes, and all questions arising therein, subject to the provisions hereinafter contained in relation to the court in bank. The presence of three justices shall be necessary to transact any business in either of the departments, except such as may be done at chambers, and the concurrence of three justices shall be necessary to pronounce a judgment. The chief justice shall apportion the business to departments, and may, in his discretion, order any cause pending before the court to be heard and decided by the court in bank. The order may be made before or after judgment pronounced by a department; but where a cause has been allotted to one of the departments, and a judgment pronounced thereon, the order must be made within thirty days after such judgment, and concurred in by two associate justices, and if so made it shall have the effect to vacate and set aside the judgment. Any four justices may, either before or after judgment by a department, order a case to be heard in bank. If the order be not made within the time above limited, the judgment shall be final. No judgment by a department shall become final until the expiration of the period of thirty days aforesaid, unless approved by the chief justice, in writing, with the concurrence of two associate justices. The chief justice may convene the court in bank at any time, and shall be the presiding justice of the court when so convened. The concurrence of four justices present at the argument shall be necessary to pronounce a judgment in bank; but if four justices, so present, do not concur in a judgment, then all the justices qualified to sit in the cause shall hear the argument; but to render a judgment a concurrence of four judges shall be necessary. In the determination of causes, all decisions of the court, in bank or in department, shall be given in writing, and the grounds of the decision shall be stated. The chief justice may sit in either department, and shall preside when so sitting, but the justices assigned to each department shall select one of their number as presiding justice. In case of the absence of the chief justice from the place at which the court is held, or his inability to act, the associate justices shall select one of their own number to perform the duties and exercise the powers of the chief justice during such absence or inability to act.

Sec. 3. The chief justice and the associate justices shall be elected by the qualified electors of the state at large at the general state elections, at the time and places at which state officers are elected; and the term of office shall be twelve years from and after the first Monday after the first day of January next succeeding their election; provided, that the six associate justices elected at the first election shall, at their first meeting, so classify themselves, by lot, that two of them shall go out of office at the end of four years, two of them at the end of eight years, and two of them at the end of twelve years, and an entry of such classification shall be made in the minutes of the court in bank, signed by them, and a duplicate thereof shall be filed in the office of the secretary of state. If a vacancy occur in the office of a justice, the governor shall appoint a person to hold the office until the election and qualification of a justice to fill the vacancy, which election shall take place at the next succeeding general election, and the justice so elected shall hold the office for the remainder of the unexpired term. Sec. 4. The supreme court shall have appellate jurisdiction on appeal from the superior courts in all cases in equity, except such as arise in justices' courts; also, in all cases at law which involve the title or possession of real estate, or the legality of any tax, impost, assessment, toll, or municipal fine, or in which the demand, exclusive of interest, or the value of the property in controversy, amounts to two thousand dollars; also, in all such probate matters as may be provided by law; also, on questions of law alone, in all criminal cases, where judgment of death has been rendered; the said court shall also have appellate jurisdiction in all cases, matters and proceedings pending before a district court of appeal, which shall be ordered by the supreme court to be transferred to itself for hearing and decision, as hereinafter provided. The said court shall also have power to issue writs of mandamus, certiorari, prohibition, and habeas corpus, and

Said district courts of appeal shall hold their regular sessions respectively at San Francisco, Los Angeles and Sacramento, and they shall always be open for the transaction of business.

The district courts of appeal shall have appellate jurisdiction on appeal from the superior courts in all cases at law in which the demand, exclusive of interest, or the value of the property in controversy, amounts to three hundred dollars, and does not amount to two thousand dollars; also, in all cases of forcible and unlawful entry and detainer (except such as arise in justices' courts), in proceedings in insolvency, and in actions to prevent or abate a nuisance; in proceedings of mandamus, certiorari and prohibition, usurpation of office, contesting elections and eminent domain, and in such other special proceedings as may be provided by law (excepting cases in which appellate jurisdiction is given to the supreme court); also, on questions of law alone, in all criminal cases prosecuted by indictment or information in a court of record, excepting criminal cases where judgment of death has been rendered. The said courts shall also have appellate jurisdiction in all cases, matters, and proceedings pending before the supreme court which shall be ordered by the supreme court to be transferred to a district court of appeal for hearing and decision. The said courts shall also have power to issue writs of mandamus, certiorari, prohibition and habeas corpus, and all other writs necessary or proper to the complete exercise of their appellate jurisdiction.

The judgments of the district courts of appeal shall become final therein upon the expiration of thirty days after the same shall have been pronounced.

The supreme court shall have power to order causes pending before a district court of appeal for one district to be transferred to the district court of appeal of another district, or from one division thereof to another, for hearing and decision.

The justices of the district courts of appeal shall be elected by the qualified electors within their respective districts at the general state elections; and the term of office of said justices shall be twelve years from and after the first day of January next succeeding their election.

Upon the adoption by the people of this section by amendment at the general election of the year one thousand nine hundred eighteen, the governor shall appoint six persons to serve as justices of the district courts of appeal—three as justices of division two of the first appellate district, and three as justices of division two of the second appellate district—from and after their qualification and until the next general election and qualification of their successors. The justices of divisions two of the first and second appellate districts elected as above provided, shall so classify themselves by lot that one of them shall go out of office at the end of four years, one of them at the end of eight years, and one of them at the end of twelve years, and entry of such classification shall be made in the minutes of said division, signed by the three justices thereof, and a duplicate thereof filed in the office of the secretary of state.

One of the justices of each of the district courts of appeal, and of each division of said courts, shall be the presiding justice thereof, and as such shall be appointed or elected, as the case may be.

The presence of two justices shall be necessary for the transaction of any business by such court except such as may be done at chambers, and the concurrence of two justices shall be necessary to pronounce a judgment.

Whenever any justice of the supreme court is for any reason disqualified or unable to act in a cause pending before it, the remaining justices may select one of the justices of a district court of appeal or a judge of the superior court to act pro tempore in the place of the justice so disqualified or unable to act.

Whenever any justice of a district court of appeal, or any division thereof, is for any reason disqualified or unable to act in any cause pending before it, the other justices of said court or division may appoint a justice of a district court of appeal of another district or division, or a judge of the superior court who has not acted in the cause in a court below, to act pro tempore in the place of the justice so disqualified or unable to act.

No appeal taken to the supreme court or to a district court of appeal shall be dismissed for the reason only that the same was not taken to the proper court, but the cause shall be transferred to the proper court upon such terms as to costs or otherwise as may be just, and shall be proceeded with therein as if regularly appealed thereto.

All statutes now in force allowing, providing for or regulating appeals to the supreme court shall apply to appeals to the district courts of appeal so far as such statutes are not inconsistent with this article and until the legislature shall otherwise provide.

No judgment shall be set aside, or new trial granted, in any case, on the ground of misdirection of the jury, or of the improper admission or rejection of evidence, or for any error as to any matter of pleading, or for any error as to any matter of procedure, unless, after an examination of the entire cause, including the evidence, the court shall be of the opinion that the error complained of has resulted in a miscarriage of justice. [Amendment adopted November 3, 1914.]

Sec. 5. The superior court shall have original jurisdiction in all cases in equity, and in all cases at law which involve the title or possession of real property, or the legality of any tax, impost, assessment, toll, or municipal fine, and in all other cases in which the demand, exclusive of interest or the value of the property in controversy amounts to three hundred dollars, and in all criminal cases amounting to felony, and cases of misdemeanor not otherwise provided for; of actions of forcible entry and detainer; of proceedings in insolvency; of actions to prevent or abate a nuisance; of all matters of probate; of divorce and for annulment of marriage; and of all such special cases and proceedings as are not otherwise provided for, and said court shall have the power of naturalization, and to issue papers therefor. They shall have appellate jurisdiction in such cases arising in inferior courts in their respective counties as may be prescribed by law. They shall be always open (legal holidays and non-judicial days excepted), and their process shall extend to all parts of the State; provided, that all actions for the recovery of the possession of, quieting the title to, or for the enforcement of liens upon real estate, shall be commenced in the county in which the real estate, or any part thereof, affected by such action or actions, is situated. Said courts, and their judges, shall have power to issue writs of mandamus, certiorari, prohibition, quo warranto, and habeas corpus, on petition by or on behalf of any person in actual custody, in their respective counties. court among the judges thereof, and prescribe the order of business. In each of the counties of Sacramento, San Joaquin, Los Angeles, Sonoma, Santa Clara, and Alameda there shall be elected two such judges. The term of office of judges of the superior courts shall be six years from and after the first Monday of January next succeeding their election; provided, that the twelve judges of the superior court elected in the city and county of San Francisco, at the first election held under this constitution, shall at their first meeting so classify themselves, by lot, that four of them shall go out of office at the end of two years, and four of them shall go out of office at the end of four years, and four of them shall go out of office at the end of six years, and an entry of such classification shall be made in the minutes of the court, signed by them, and a duplicate thereof filed in the office of the secretary of state. In any county, or city and county, other than the city and county of San Francisco, in which there shall be more than one judge of the superior court, the judges of such court may hold as many sessions of said court at the same time as there are judges thereof, and shall apportion the business among themselves as equally as may be.

Sec. 8. A judge of any superior court may hold a superior court in any county, at the request of a judge of the superior court thereof, and upon the request of the governor it shall be his duty so to do. But a cause in the superior court may be tried by a judge pro tempore, who must be a member of the bar, agreed upon in writing by the parties litigant, or their attorneys of record, and sworn to try the cause, and the person so selected shall be empowered to act in such capacity in all further proceedings in any suit or proceedings tried before him until the final determination thereof. There may be as many sessions of a superior court at the same time as there are judges thereof, including any judge or judges acting upon request, or any judge or judges pro tempore. The judgments, orders, acts and proceedings of any session of any superior court held by one or more judges acting upon request, or judge or judges pro tempore, shall be equally effective as if the judge or all of the judges of such court presided at such session. [Amendment adopted November 8, 1910.]

Sec. 9. The legislature shall have no power to grant leave of absence to any judicial officer; and any such officer who shall absent himself from the state for more than sixty consecutive days shall be deemed to have forfeited his office. Sec. 10. Justices of the supreme court, and of the district courts of appeal, and judges of the superior courts may be removed by concurrent resolution of both houses of the legislature adopted by a two-thirds vote of each house. All other judicial officers, except justices of the peace, may be removed by the senate on the recommendation of the governor; but no removal shall be made by virtue of this section unless the cause thereof be entered on the journal, nor unless the party complained of has been served with a copy of the complaint against him and shall have had an opportunity of being heard in his defense. On the question of removal the ayes and noes shall be entered on the journal. [Amendment adopted November 8, 1904.]

The justices of the supreme court and of the district courts of appeal, and the judges of the superior courts, shall severally, at stated times during their continuance in office, receive for their service such compensation as is or shall be provided by law. The salaries of the judges of the superior court, in all counties having but one judge, and in all counties in which the terms of the judges of the superior court expire at the same time, shall not hereafter be increased or diminished after their election, nor during the term for which they shall have been elected. COUNTIES, CITIES, AND TOWNS.

Section 1. The several counties, as they now exist, are hereby recognized as legal subdivisions of this state.

Sec. 2. No county seat shall be removed unless two-thirds of the qualified electors of the county, voting on the proposition at a general election, shall vote in favor of such removal. A proposition of removal shall not be submitted in the same county more than once in four years.

Sec. 3. The legislature, by general and uniform laws, may provide for the alteration of county boundary lines, and for the formation of new counties; provided, however, that no new county shall be established which shall reduce any county to a population of less than twenty thousand; nor shall a new county be formed containing a less population than eight thousand; nor shall any line thereof pass within five miles of the exterior boundary of the city or town in which the county seat of any county proposed to be divided is situated. Every county which shall be enlarged or created from territory taken from any other county or counties, shall be liable for a just proportion of the existing debts and liabilities of the county or counties from which such territory shall be taken. organizations, under which any county may organize whenever a majority of the qualified electors of such county, voting at a general election, shall so determine; and whenever a county shall adopt township organization, the assessment and collection of the revenue shall be made, and the business of such county and the local affairs of the several townships therein shall be managed and transacted, in the manner prescribed by such general laws.

Sec. 5. The legislature, by general and uniform laws, shall provide for the election or appointment, in the several counties, of boards of supervisors, sheriffs, county clerks, district attorneys, and such other county, township, and municipal officers as public convenience may require, and shall prescribe their duties and fix their terms of office. It may regulate the compensation of grand and trial jurors in all courts within the classes of counties herein permitted to be made; such compensation, however, shall not, in any class, exceed the sum of three dollars per day and mileage. [Amendment adopted November 3, 1908.]

Sec. 6. Corporations for municipal purposes shall not be created by special laws; but the legislature shall, by general laws, provide for the incorporation, organization, and classification, in proportion to population, of cities and towns, which laws may be altered, amended, or repealed; and the legislature may, by general laws, provide for the performance by county officers of certain of the municipal functions of cities and towns so incorporated, whenever a majority of the electors of any such city or town voting at a general or special election shall so determine. Cities and towns heretofore organized or incorporated may become organized under the general laws passed for that purpose, whenever a majority of the electors voting at a general election shall so determine, and shall organize in conformity therewith. Cities and towns hereafter organized under charters framed and adopted by authority of this constitution are hereby empowered, and cities and towns heretofore organized by authority of this constitution may amend their charters in the manner authorized by this constitution so as to become likewise empowered hereunder, to make and enforce all laws and regulations in respect to municipal affairs, subject only to the restrictions and limitations provided in their several charters, and in respect to other matters they shall be subject to and controlled by general laws. Cities and towns heretofore or hereafter organized by authority of this constitution may, by charter provision or amendment, provide for the performance by county officers of certain of their municipal functions, whenever the discharge of such municipal functions by county officers is authorized by general laws or by the provisions of a county charter framed and adopted by authority of this constitution. [Amendment adopted November 3, 1914.]

Sec. 7. City and county governments may be merged and consolidated into one municipal government, with one set of officers, and may be incorporated under general laws providing for the incorporation and organization of corporations for municipal purposes. The provisions of this constitution applicable to cities, and also those applicable to counties, so far as not inconsistent or prohibited to cities, shall be applicable to such consolidated government. [Amendment adopted November 6, 1894.]

Sec. 7½. Any county may frame a charter for its own government consistent with and subject to the constitution (or, having framed such a charter, may frame a new one), and relating to matters authorized by provisions of the constitution, by causing a board of fifteen freeholders, who have been for at least five years qualified electors thereof, to be elected by the qualified electors of said county, at a general or special election. Said board of freeholders may be so elected in pursuance of an ordinance adopted by the vote of three-fifths of all the members of the board of supervisors of such county, declaring that the public interest requires the election of such board for the purpose of preparing and proposing a charter for said county, or in pursuance of a petition of qualified electors of said county as hereinafter provided. Such petition, signed by fifteen per centum of the qualified electors of said county, computed upon the total number of votes cast therein for all candidates for governor at the last preceding general election at which a governor was elected, praying for the election of a board of fifteen freeholders to prepare and propose a charter for said county, may be filed in the office of the county clerk. It shall be the duty of said county clerk, within twenty days after the filing of said petition, to examine the same, and to ascertain from the record of the registration of electors of the county, whether said petition is signed by the requisite number of qualified electors. If required by said clerk, the board of supervisors shall authorize him to employ persons specially to assist him in the work of examining such petition, and shall provide for their compensation. Upon the completion of such examination, said clerk shall forthwith attach to said petition his certificate, properly dated, showing the result thereof, and if, by said certificate, it shall appear that said petition is signed by the requisite number of qualified electors, said clerk shall immediately present said petition to the board of supervisors, if it be in session, otherwise at its next regular meeting after the date of such certificate. Upon the adoption of such ordinance, or the presentation of such petition, said board of supervisors shall order the holding of a special election for the purpose of electing such board of freeholders, which said special election shall be held not less than twenty days nor more than sixty days after the adoption of the ordinance aforesaid or the presentation of said petition to said board of supervisors; provided, that if a general election shall occur in said county not less than twenty days nor more than sixty days after the adoption of the ordinance aforesaid, or such presentation of said petition to said board of supervisors, said board of freeholders may be elected at such general election. Candidates for election as members of said board of freeholders shall be nominated by petition, substantially in the same manner as may be provided by general law for the nomination, by petition of electors, of candidates for county offices, to be voted for at general elections. It shall be the duty of said board of freeholders, within one hundred and twenty days after the result of such election shall have been declared by said board of supervisors, to prepare and propose a charter for said county, which shall be signed in duplicate by the members of said board of freeholders, or a majority of them, and be filed, one copy in the office of the county clerk of said county and the other in the office of the county recorder thereof. Said board of supervisors shall thereupon cause said proposed charter to be published for at least ten times in a daily newspaper of general circulation, printed, published and circulated in said county; provided, that in any county where no such daily newspaper is printed, published and circulated, such proposed charter shall be published for at least three times in at least one weekly newspaper, of general circulation, printed, published and circulated in such county; and provided, that in any county where neither such daily nor such weekly newspaper is printed, published and circulated, a copy of such proposed charter shall be posted by the county clerk in three public places in said county, and on or near the entrance to at least one public school-house in each school district in said county, and the first publication or the posting of such proposed charter shall be made within fifteen days after the filing of a copy thereof, as aforesaid, in the office of the county clerk. Said proposed charter shall be submitted by said board of supervisors to the qualified electors of said county at a special election held not less than thirty days nor more than sixty days after the completion of such publication, or after such posting; provided, that if a general election shall occur in said county not less than thirty days nor more than sixty days after the completion of such publication, or after such posting, then such proposed charter may be so submitted at such general election. If a majority of said qualified electors, voting thereon at such general or special election, shall vote in favor of such proposed charter, it shall be deemed to be ratified, and shall be forthwith submitted to the legislature, if it be in regular session, otherwise at its next regular session, or it may be submitted to the legislature in extraordinary session, for its approval or rejection as a whole, without power of alteration or amendment. Such approval may be made by concurrent resolution, and if approved by a majority vote of the members elected to each house, such charter shall become the charter of such county and shall become the organic law thereof relative to the matters therein provided, and supersede any existing charter framed under the provisions of this section, and all amendments thereof, and shall supersede all laws inconsistent with such charter relative to the matters provided in such charter. A copy of such charter, certified and authenticated by the chairman and clerk of the board of supervisors under the seal of said board and attested by the county clerk of said county, setting forth the submission of such charter to the electors of said county, and its ratification by them, shall, after the approval of such charter by the legislature, be made in duplicate, and filed, one in the office of the secretary of state and the other, after being recorded in the office of the recorder of said county, shall be filed in the office of the county clerk thereof, and thereafter all courts shall take judicial notice of said charter.

The charter, so ratified, may be amended by proposals therefor submitted by the board of supervisors of the county to the qualified electors thereof at a general or special election held not less than thirty days nor more than sixty days after the publication of such proposals for ten times in a daily newspaper of general circulation, printed, published and circulated in said county; provided, that in any county where no such daily newspaper is printed, published and circulated, such proposed charter shall be published for at least three times in at least one weekly newspaper, of general circulation, printed, published and circulated in such county; provided, that in any county where neither such daily nor such weekly newspaper is printed, published and circulated, a copy of such proposed charter shall be posted by the county clerk in three public places in said county, and on or near the entrance to at least one public school-house in each school district in said county. If a majority of such qualified electors voting thereon, at such general or special election, shall vote in favor of any such proposed amendment or amendments, or any amendment or amendments proposed by petition as hereinafter provided, such amendment or amendments shall be deemed to be ratified, and shall be forthwith submitted to the legislature, if it be in regular session, otherwise at its next regular session, or may be submitted to the legislature in extraordinary session, for approval or rejection as a whole, without power of alteration or amendment, and if approved by the legislature, as herein provided for the approval of the charter, such charter shall be amended accordingly. A copy of such amendment or amendments shall, after the approval thereof by the legislature, be made in duplicate, and shall be authenticated, certified, recorded and filed as herein provided for the charter, and with like force and effect. Whenever a petition signed by ten per centum of the qualified electors of any county, computed upon the total number of votes cast in said county for all candidates for governor at the last general election, at which a governor was elected, is filed in the office of the county clerk of said county, petitioning the board of supervisors thereof to submit any proposed amendment or amendments to the charter of such county, which amendment or amendments shall be set forth in full in such petition, to the qualified electors thereof, such petition shall forthwith be examined and certified by the county clerk, and if signed by the requisite number of qualified electors of such county, shall be presented to the said board of supervisors, by the said county clerk, as hereinbefore provided for petitions for the election of boards of freeholders. Upon the presentation of said petition to said board of supervisors, said board must submit the amendment or amendments set forth therein to the qualified electors of said county at a general or special election held not less than thirty days nor more than sixty days after the publication or posting of such proposed amendment or amendments in the same manner as hereinbefore provided in the case of the submission of any proposed amendment or amendments to such charter, proposed and submitted by the board of supervisors. In submitting any such charter, or amendments thereto, any alternative article or proposition may be presented for the choice of the electors, and may be voted on separately without prejudice to others.

Every special election held under the provisions of this section, for the election of boards of freeholders or for the submission of proposed charters, or any amendment or amendments thereto, shall be called by the board of supervisors, by ordinance, which shall specify the purpose and time of such election and shall establish the election precincts and designate the polling places therein, and the names of the election officers of each such precinct. Such ordinance, prior to such election, shall be published five times in a daily newspaper, or twice in a weekly newspaper, if there be no such daily newspaper, printed, published and circulated in said county; provided, that if no such daily or weekly newspaper be printed or published in such county, then a copy of such ordinance shall be posted by the county clerk in three public places in such county and in or near the entrance to at least one public schoolhouse in each school district therein. In all other respects, every such election shall be held and conducted, the returns thereof canvassed and the result thereof declared by the board of supervisors in the same manner as provided by law for general elections. Whenever boards of freeholders shall be elected, or any such proposed charter, or amendment or amendments thereto, submitted, at a general election, the general laws applicable to the election of county officers and the submission of propositions to the vote of electors, shall be followed in so far as the same may be applicable thereto.

1. For boards of supervisors and for the constitution, regulation and government thereof, for the times at which and the terms for which the members of said board shall be elected, for the number of members, not less than three, that shall constitute such boards, for their compensation and for their election, either by the electors of the counties at large or by districts; provided, that in any event said board shall consist of one member for each district, who must be a qualified elector thereof; and indebtedness shall not be incurred without the assent of two-thirds of the qualified electors of the county, district or division, as the case may be, voting at an election to be held for that purpose, nor unless before or at the time of incurring such indebtedness provision shall be made for the collection of an annual tax sufficient to pay the interest on such indebtedness as it falls due, and also for a sinking fund for the payment of the principal thereof on or before maturity, which shall not exceed forty years from the time of contracting the same, and the procedure for voting, issuing and selling such bonds shall, except in so far as the same shall be prescribed in such charters, conform to general laws for the authorizing and incurring by counties of bonded indebtedness, so far as applicable; provided, further, that provisions in such charters for the construction, care, maintenance, repair, inspection and supervision of roads, highways and bridges for which aid from the state is granted, shall be subject to such regulations and conditions as may be imposed by the legislature.

Whenever any county has framed and adopted a charter, and the same shall have been approved by the legislature, as herein provided, the general laws adopted by the legislature in pursuance of sections four and five of this article, shall, as to such county, be superseded by said charter as to matters for which, under this sections it is competent to make provision in such charter, and for which provision is made therein, except as herein otherwise expressly provided; and except that any such charter shall not affect the tenure of office of the elective officers of the county, or of any district, township or division thereof, in office at the time such charter goes into effect, and such officers shall continue to hold their respective offices until the expiration of the term for which they shall have been elected, unless sooner removed in the manner provided by law.

The charter of any county, adopted under the authority of this section, may be surrendered and annulled with the assent of two-thirds of the qualified electors of such county, voting at a special election, held for that purpose, and to be ordered and called by the board of supervisors of the county upon receiving a written petition, signed and certified as hereinabove provided for the purposes of the adoption of charters, requesting said board to submit the question of the surrender and annulment of such charter to the qualified electors of such county, and, in the event of the surrender and annulment of any such charter, such county shall thereafter be governed under general laws in force for the government of counties.

The provisions of this section shall not be applicable to any county that is consolidated with any city. [Amendment adopted November 3, 1914.]

Sec. 7½a. Any county organized under the general law, and having, at the time this section takes effect, a population of two hundred thousand inhabitants or over, as ascertained by the last preceding census taken under the authority of the congress of the United States, and having within its territorial boundaries one or more incorporated cities or towns, may frame a charter for a consolidated city and county government, by causing a board of fifteen freeholders, who have been for at least five years qualified electors of the county, to be elected by the qualified electors of said county, at a special election. Said board of freeholders may be so elected in pursuance of an ordinance adopted by the vote of three-fifths of all of the members of the board of supervisors of such county, declaring that public interest requires the election of such board of freeholders for the purpose of preparing and proposing a charter for a consolidated city and county, with or without a system of boroughs, with combined powers of a city and county, as in this constitution provided for city and county government; or in pursuance of a petition of qualified electors of said county as hereinafter provided; which said petition must state the name and address of a person or persons to whom notice of the insufficiency of the petition shall be sent in the event that the petition shall not have the required number of signatures of the qualified electors signed thereto. Such petition, signed by fifteen per centum of the qualified electors of said county, computed upon the total number of votes cast therein for all candidates for governor at the last preceding general election at which a governor was elected, praying for the election of a board of fifteen freeholders to prepare and propose a charter for a consolidated city and county government, with or without a system of boroughs, with combined powers of a city and a county, as in this constitution provided, may be filed in the office of the county clerk. It shall be the duty of the said county clerk, within twenty days after the filing of said petition, to examine the same, and to ascertain from the record of the registration of the electors of the county, whether said petition is signed by the requisite number of qualified electors. If required by said clerk, the board of supervisors shall authorize him to employ persons to assist him in the work of examining such petition, and the board shall provide for their compensation. Upon the completion of such examination, said clerk shall forthwith attach to said petition his certificate, properly dated, showing the results of his examination, and if, by said certificate, it shall appear that said petition is signed by the requisite number of qualified electors, said clerk shall immediately present said petition to the board of supervisors, if it be in session, otherwise at its next regular meeting after the date of such certificate. If it appear by said certificate that said petition has not the required number of signatures of the qualified electors signed thereto, the said clerk shall so notify the person or persons whose name or names are mentioned therein, to whom the notification of the insufficiency of the petition shall be sent. Whereupon the petitioners shall have thirty days from and after the date of receiving the notice of insufficiency from the clerk, to present and file additional signatures. Upon the receipt of the additional signatures, the clerk shall proceed forthwith to examine the petition of additional signatures, so that such examination shall be completed within ten days from the date of his receiving same. If it appear that the number of additional signatures added to those who have not been legally rejected upon the original petition, shall total the requisite number of qualified electors necessary as provided in this section, the clerk shall forthwith attach to said petition his certificate, properly dated, showing that said petition has been signed by the requisite number of qualified electors, and said clerk shall immediately present said petition to the board of supervisors, if it be in session, otherwise at the next regular meeting after the date of such certificate. Upon the adoption of such ordinance, or the presentation of such petition, said board of supervisors shall order the holding of a special election for the purpose of electing such board of freeholders, which said special election shall be held not less than forty days nor more than ninety days after the adoption of the ordinance aforesaid or the presentation of said petition to said board of supervisors. Candidates for election as members of said board of freeholders shall be nominated by petition, substantially in the same manner as may be provided by general law for the nomination, by petition of electors, of candidates for county offices, to be voted at general elections. The election shall be conducted and the ballots canvassed and result declared substantially as are other elections for county offices, except that there shall be only one election, and the fifteen persons receiving the highest vote shall be declared the duly elected board of freeholders. All ties shall be broken by lot.

It shall be the duty of said board of freeholders within one hundred eighty days after the result of such election shall have been declared by the board of supervisors, to prepare and propose a charter for a consolidated city and county government, and it may prescribe the existing boundary lines of the county as the territorial limits of said proposed city and county, and propose the formation of all of the incorporated cities and towns and all of the unincorporated territory within the county into a consolidated city and county government, to be governed by said charter, and to have combined powers of a city and a county, as provided in this constitution for consolidated city and county government. Or said board of freeholders may propose, in the alternative, that a lesser area than that of the whole county, to consist of those incorporated cities and towns hereinafter required to be designated and named by the board of freeholders as necessary and essential to effect consolidation, also those incorporated cities and towns, which as hereinafter provided, may by a majority vote of the qualified electors voting thereon separately, vote in favor of such consolidation, together with any unincorporated territory within the county proposed to be added, may be formed into a consolidated city and county government, to be governed by said charter, and to have combined powers of a city and a county as provided in this constitution for consolidated city and county government.

When such proposal is submitted in the alternative, the board of freeholders must designate and name as necessary and essential to effect city and county consolidation, all of the incorporated cities within the county having a population of one hundred fifty thousand inhabitants or over, as ascertained by the last preceding census taken under the authority of the congress of the United States, and no consolidation shall be effected unless, as hereinafter provided, a majority of the qualified electors, voting separately thereon in each of said designated and named incorporated cities vote in favor of such proposal.

The charter proposed shall be signed by the members of the board of freeholders, or a majority of them, and be filed, one copy in the office of the county recorder, one in the office of the county clerk, and certified copies thereof duly attested by the president and secretary of the board of freeholders shall be filed in the clerk's office of each incorporated city and town in the county. The board of freeholders shall thereupon take a recess until called together by the board of supervisors as hereinafter provided. Thereupon the board of supervisors shall cause said proposed charter to be published in at least two daily newspapers of general circulation published, printed and circulated in the county, for at least six consecutive times, and shall also cause said proposed charter to be published for at least three consecutive times in a daily newspaper of general circulation, printed, published and circulated in each of the incorporated cities and towns within the county, and if there be no daily newspaper printed, published and circulated in any of such incorporated cities and towns then once in a weekly newspaper published, printed and circulated therein; provided, however, if there be no daily or weekly newspaper published, printed and circulated in any of such incorporated cities or towns, then said publication shall be made by posting in three public places in each of said incorporated cities or towns having no such newspaper, for at least three days. All of such publication shall be completed within fifty days of the filing of the proposed charter with the county clerk. The board of supervisors shall cause to be printed in pamphlet form, at least as many copies of such proposed charter, plus an additional fifteen per cent, as there are registered electors in the county. The county clerk shall forthwith deliver to the clerk of the legislative body of each and every incorporated city or town within the county, a number of the printed copies of the proposed charter, equal at least to the number of registered electors residing in any such incorporated city or town. The county clerk shall thereupon give notice, by advertising in one and not more than two daily newspapers of general circulation published, printed and circulated in the county, and if there be a newspaper published, printed and circulated in any of such incorporated cities and towns, in one such newspaper of each said city or town, that copies of the proposed charter can be had at his office or at the office of the several city or town clerks, designating them, upon application. Upon the completion of the publication of the proposed charter as above required, and not later than fifteen days thereafter, the board of supervisors must pass an ordinance or resolution calling a separate election in each of the incorporated cities and towns within the county, for submitting the proposal for consolidation to the electors thereof. Each incorporated city or town shall be considered one separate district, and the proposal for such consolidation shall be submitted separately to the electors thereof, as hereinafter provided. The date of such election shall be fixed in the resolution or ordinance adopted by the board of supervisors, which date shall not be less than forty days nor more than ninety days from the date of the passage of such resolution or ordinance calling the election for the submission of said proposal. The separate elections held in the several cities and towns must all be held on the same day. The resolution or ordinance calling such elections shall be published for five successive days in one daily newspaper of general circulation published, printed and circulated in the county, so that the last publication shall have been completed at least five days before the date of the election. The resolution or ordinance calling such elections, shall also be published for three successive days in one daily newspaper of general circulation, published, printed and circulated in each of the incorporated cities and towns, and if there be no daily newspaper published, printed and circulated in any of such incorporated cities and towns, then twice in a weekly newspaper; provided, however, that if there be no daily or weekly newspaper published, printed and circulated in any such incorporated city or town, such publication may be made by posting in three public places in said incorporated city or town for at least three days before the date of election.

The board of supervisors must appoint election officers in the same manner and give notice of such appointment by publication, as provided by the general law for the appointment of election officers at general elections; provided, however, that the board of supervisors shall not appoint more than four election officers to each election precinct; and provided, further, that the number of precincts in each city or town comprising an election district shall not be less than the number of precincts used at the last general election. In all other respects, every such election shall be held and conducted, the returns canvassed and the result thereof declared by the board of supervisors in the same manner as provided by law for general elections.

The proposal to be submitted to the electors of each of said incorporated cities and towns shall be substantially as follows: "Shall the (herein designate by name the incorporated city or town) join with the other incorporated cities and towns within the county of (herein insert name of county) together with the unincorporated territory within the said county, and form and establish a consolidated city and county (herein insert whether it is proposed to have a system of boroughs) to be known as the city and county of (herein insert the name proposed) to be governed by the charter proposed by the board of freeholders, which charter has been filed in the office of the county clerk and duly published, said charter to take effect on (herein insert date mentioned in charter when city and county consolidation shall take effect)?" If the board of freeholders have proposed an alternative proposition, the ballot shall, in addition to the above proposal, state substantially: that if said principal proposal does not receive a majority vote of the electors, voting thereon, in all of the incorporated cities and towns within the county, but receives a majority vote of the electors, voting thereon in each of the incorporated cities within the county (naming them) which have been designated and named as the cities necessary and essential in which a favorable vote must be had to effect consolidation of an area less than the whole of the county, then the proposition of the formation and establishment of a district into a consolidated city and county, which district shall include said named incorporated cities, also other contiguous incorporated cities and towns in which a favorable vote was had on the proposition, and certain unincorporated territory (which district shall be the area described in the proposed amended charter), shall be thereafter submitted to the qualified electors of such district for their approval. Also there must be stated in such proposal such reference to taxation and bonded indebtedness and the liability therefor as is provided in the proposed charter.

If after the canvass of the votes and the declaration of the result by the board of supervisors, it appear that a majority of the electors in each of the incorporated cities and towns in the county, voting separately thereon at said election, have voted in favor of said proposal, the board of supervisors shall so certify such fact to the board of freeholders and set a day for the reconvening of said board of freeholders which day shall not be later than ten days after the certification by the board of supervisors. The board of freeholders shall enter the certificate of the board of supervisors in its minutes and shall have no power to change or alter in any manner any of the provisions of the charter as heretofore prepared and published. It shall thereupon adjourn.

Whereupon the said proposed charter shall be submitted by said board of supervisors to the qualified electors of the whole of said county at a special election to be held not less than thirty nor more than sixty days after the adjournment of the board of freeholders, or if there be a general election held within ninety days after the adjournment of the said board of freeholders, then at such general election.

If a majority of the qualified electors voting thereon in the county, at such special or general election, shall vote in favor of such proposed charter, it shall be deemed to be ratified, and shall be forthwith submitted to the legislature, if it be in session, otherwise at its next regular or special session, for its approval or rejection as a whole, without power of alteration or amendment. Such approval may be by concurrent resolution, and if approved by a majority vote of the members elected to each house, such charter shall become the charter of such consolidated city and county and shall become the organic law thereof relative to matters therein provided, and shall supersede any existing municipal charter of the cities within the county and all amendments thereof and shall supersede all laws inconsistent with such charter relative to matters provided in such charter.

If it appear, after a canvass of the votes by the board of supervisors, that the proposal has not received a favorable vote in all of the incorporated cities and towns within the county, and the proposal submitted shall have provided in the alternative that a lesser territory than that of the whole, not less than the incorporated cities designated and set forth in the proposal as necessary and essential to effect consolidation, may form and establish a consolidated city and county government, and a majority of the electors in each of the said incorporated cities designated as necessary and essential to effect consolidation have voted in favor of such proposal, the board of supervisors shall so certify the fact to the board of freeholders, and also certify all other incorporated cities or towns in which a majority of the electors have voted in favor of such proposal. The board of freeholders shall, within fifteen days thereafter, reconvene and meet upon a day to be fixed by the board of supervisors, and shall proceed to rearrange and define the boundaries for the proposed new city and county, including therein all of the incorporated cities certified by the board of supervisors, in which a majority of the electors have voted in favor thereof, and which by the terms of the proposal were designated as necessary and essential to effect consolidation. The board of freeholders must also include in the boundaries for the new proposed city and county any incorporated city or town having a population of less than ten thousand inhabitants, as ascertained by the last preceding census taken under the authority of the congress of the United States, which, if such new proposed city and county is formed, would be surrounded by such area proposed to be formed into a city and county, or which is contiguous thereto and not contiguous to the largest area of the remainder of the original county from which the proposed city and county proposes to separate, notwithstanding that the result of the election in any such incorporated city or town as shown by the canvass of the votes of the board of supervisors, was unfavorable thereto. The board of freeholders may also include in the boundaries of the proposed new city and county, other incorporated cities or towns, not designated and named as necessary and essential to effect consolidation, but in each of which a majority of the electors have voted in favor of such proposal, together with such unincorporated rated territory within the county as it may desire, the whole to form one compact area, no part of which shall be disconnected from the remainder thereof.

No amendment or changes in the provisions or sections of the proposed charter as originally prepared, published and filed in the office of the county clerk, shall be made by the board of freeholders at its second session, except as herein provided. The board of freeholders at its second session, shall have power to change the territorial limits or boundaries in such charter as hereinbefore provided. It shall also have power to change the number, by reduction thereof, of boroughs and of the councilmanic or supervisorial districts and the number of councilmen or supervisors to be elected, and to rearrange and number said districts to conform to the area to be formed into a city and county, except that boroughs previously established by the charter, if their territory is within the area of the proposed city and county shall not be changed. It may also provide a lesser salary to be paid to any officer of the proposed city and county, if such salary is stated and fixed by the original proposed charter, and it may correct any mistake or clerical or typographical errors.

The board of freeholders shall complete its labors, as above required, within ten days after the date fixed by the board of supervisors for its second meeting unless given an additional ten days time by said board of supervisors. Within said ten days and not later than twenty days, if such time has been extended, the members of the board of freeholders, or a majority thereof, shall sign the proposed charter as amended, and file one copy thereof in the county recorder's office and two copies in the county clerk's office, one of which copies shall thereafter be filed by the county clerk, in the archives of the new city and county government, when the charter shall have been approved by the legislature.

The provisions of section two of this article, and also those provisions of section three of this article which refer to the passing of any county line within five miles of the exterior boundary of a city or town in which a county seat of any county proposed to be divided is situated, shall not apply to the formation of such consolidated cities and counties, nor to the formation of new counties or of any city and county as herein specified under any of the provisions of this section.

Within ten days after the filing of the proposed charter, as amended by the board of freeholders, with the county clerk, the whole area of the proposed new city and county shall, by resolution of the board of supervisors, be created into a district, for the purpose of submitting the proposed charter, as amended, to the electors thereof, for their approval. The question of the adoption of the proposed charter as amended, shall be submitted to the electors of the whole of the area proposed to be formed into a consolidated city and county as one proposal.

The board of supervisors shall forthwith, and not later than twenty days from the date of the resolution creating said district, pass an ordinance or resolution calling an election in the whole county, for the purpose of submitting the question of the consent of the electors of the whole county to the separation, of the district proposed in the charter, from the original county, and for the purpose of submitting the question of the adoption of the proposed charter to the electors residing within the district created, or the proposed territory described in the charter as amended, as the territorial boundaries of the proposed new city and county.

Both propositions or proposals shall be submitted at one election, as hereinafter provided. The date of such election shall be fixed in the resolution or ordinance calling such election, which date shall not be less than twenty days nor more than sixty days from the date of the passage of the resolution or ordinance calling such election.

The resolution or ordinance calling such election shall be published for five consecutive days in not less than two daily newspapers, if there be two, if not, in one daily newspaper of general circulation published, printed and circulated in the county; or if there be no such daily newspapers, then twice in at least one weekly newspaper published, printed and circulated in the county. Such resolution or ordinance shall also be published for a like time in at least one daily newspaper of general circulation published, printed and circulated within the area or territory proposed to be formed into a consolidated city and county.

The amended sections of the charter shall also be published for three consecutive days in at least one daily newspaper published, printed and circulated in the county, and if there be no daily newspaper published, printed and circulated in the county, then twice in a weekly newspaper published, printed and circulated in the county. Such amended sections of the charter shall likewise be published in at least one daily newspaper published, printed and circulated within the area or district proposed to be formed into a city and county, and if there be no such daily newspaper then twice in a weekly newspaper published, printed and circulated in such area.

The board of supervisors must appoint election officers in the same manner, and give notice of such appointment by publication, as provided by the general law for the appointment of election officers at general elections, except that no more than four election officers shall be appointed to each election precinct. In all other respects, every such election shall be conducted, the returns canvassed and the result declared by the board of supervisors in the same manner as provided by law for general elections.

The proposal to be submitted to the electors of the whole of the county and the proposals to be submitted to the electors of the district or area described in the charter as the territorial boundaries of the proposed new city and county, shall be as follows:

In the county outside of the district or area described in the charter as the territorial boundaries of the new consolidated city and county, the only proposal to be submitted to the electors thereof shall be substantially as follows:

“Shall the incorporated cities and towns (herein name them) and the unincorporated territory (if any) herein describe the unincorporated territory) be permitted to separate from (herein name the county) and establish a consolidated city and county to be known as (herein insert name of new county) the separation to take effect on (herein name date fixed in the proposed charter for the taking effect of the new city and county government) ?”

In the district created by the resolution of the board of supervisors, which shall be the area described in the amended proposed charter, the same proposal as above shall be submitted to the electors, and also shall be submitted separately the question of the establishing of the area into a new consolidated city and county and the approval and ratification of such charter, substantially in the following form: “Shall the (herein describe the territory as described in the proposed amended charter) consolidate and be formed and established into a city and county government to be known as (herein state name of city and county) (herein state whether there shall be a system of boroughs) and shall the charter prepared, published and filed in the office of the county clerk on (herein state the date upon which the amended charter as to boundaries was filed) be adopted as the charter of the consolidated city and county, to take effect (herein state date mentioned in the charter when the consolidation shall take effect) ?” Also may be stated in this proposal such reference to taxation and bonded indebtedness and the liability therefor as provided in the proposed charter.

Upon consent to the separation of such district being given by a majority of the qualified electors, voting thereon, at such election, in the whole of the county, and upon the approval and ratification of such charter by a majority of the qualified electors voting thereon in the district or area which is to be formed into a consolidated city and county, and by the approval of said charter by the legislature, as hereinbefore provided in this section for the submission of the charter to the legislature when the whole of the county is to be formed into a consolidated city and county, said charter shall be deemed adopted, and upon the date fixed in said charter such district shall be and become one consolidated city and county, and the charter shall become the organic law thereof relative to matters therein provided, and shall supersede any existing municipal charter of the cities consolidated by it, and shall likewise supersede all laws inconsistent with such charter relative to matters provided in such charter.

It shall be competent, in any charter, or amendment thereof, framed under the authority given by this section, to provide in addition to those provisions allowable by the constitution and laws of the state as follows:

1. For the merging and consolidating the cities and county into one municipal government with one set of officers; for the establishment of a borough system of government for the whole or any part of the territory of said city and county, by which one or more districts may be created therein, which districts may be known as boroughs and shall exercise such municipal powers as may be granted by such charter, and for the organization, constitution, regulation, government and jurisdiction of such boroughs, which organization, constitution, regulation, government and jurisdiction may provide for rural districts, with different powers and organization, constitution, regulation, government and jurisdiction from other boroughs; provided, that in the event of such establishment or creation of a borough or boroughs, as hereinabove permitted, the boundaries thereof shall never afterwards be changed or altered, nor shall the governmental rights, powers or jurisdiction of any such borough or boroughs be thereafter limited, extended, modified or taken away, unless and until the borough or boroughs affected by such proposed change or alteration of boundaries, or by the proposed limitation, extension, modification or taking away of governmental rights, powers or jurisdiction, as the case may be, shall each have consented thereto, by the vote of a majority of the electors in each and every such borough voting at an election or elections called and held for such purpose in each of the boroughs so affected.

Any charter framed under the provisions of this section, which charter provides for the formation of the whole territory of the county into a consolidated city and county, may provide for the termination of the tenure of office of all county officers elected after the adoption of such charter by the electors of such county and prior to the approval of such charter by the legislature.

8. No property in any city or town or territory hereinafter consolidated into a city and county shall be taxed for the payment of any indebtedness outstanding at the time the charter takes effect and for the payment of which indebtedness the property in such city or town or territory was not, prior to the taking effect of such charter, subject to such taxation, unless there shall have been submitted to the qualified electors of such city or town or territory, at the separate election submitting the proposal in the first instance to join, the proposition regarding the assumption of such indebtedness as hereinbefore set forth and the same shall have been approved by a majority of such electors voting thereon.

In all cases of consolidation of two or more incorporated cities and towns, or of one or more incorporated cities or towns within unincorporated territory, into a city and county, assumption of existing bonded indebtedness by such city or town or by such unincorporated territory or by either of the cities and towns so consolidating may be made by a majority of the qualified electors voting thereon in the territory or city or town which shall assume an existing bonded indebtedness, and the provisions of section eighteen of this article shall not be a prohibition thereof.

Every city and county which shall be formed, under the provisions of this section, of territory which shall have been taken from the original county, shall be liable for a just proportion of the debts and liabilities and be entitled to a just proportion of the property and assets of such county existing at the time of such separation.

CONSTITUTION OF THE STATE OF CALIFORNIA.

If the population in the territory formed into a city and county, by separation from the original county, is equal to or greater in number than two-thirds of the population of the whole of the original county at the time of the formation of such city and county, the city and county so formed and separating itself from the original county, shall be entitled to the original records and books of the original county, upon supplying to the original county certified copies of all records, documents and books properly bound and indexed, which affects or may affect the property of the remaining portion of the original county, or which it may in the future have occasion to refer to; and such certified copies so furnished and certified by the county clerk if the copies are issued from his office, and by the recorder if issued from his office, or by any other officer of the county if they be copies of records in his office, shall be competent evidence in any court proceeding or action which may thereafter be commenced.

The legislature of the state may enact such general laws as may be necessary to carry out the provisions of subdivision eight of this section.

If by the formation of a city and county, under the provisions of this section, any territory whether incorporated or unincorporated is separated from the original county, and by such separation, any of the elective officers of the original county, have by reason of such separation ceased to be residents or electors of the original county, such elective officers shall continue to serve, and be charged with all of the powers and duties of the office to which they were elected, until the expiration of the term for which they were elected, and their salaries shall be paid, by both the new city and county and the remaining portion of the original county, in proportion and in the ratio as the population of each bears to the whole population of the original county.

If under the provisions of this section, any city and county is formed which does not include the whole of the original county, and by reason of the separation of the territory comprising the new city and county, any incorporated city or town or any unincorporated territory is separated from the largest area of the remainder of the county, by reason of its exterior boundary not being contiguous thereto, the legislature shall provide for the transfer of such portion or portions to an adjoining county or counties whose exterior boundary or boundaries may be contiguous thereto, or it may transfer such portion or portions to the new consolidated city and county; provided, however, if there be formed and established under the provisions of this section, a consolidated city and county government of a lesser area than that of the whole county, and there be any incorporated city having a population of forty thousand inhabitants or over, within the county, as ascertained by the last preceding census taken under the authority of the congress of the United States, which is not included therein, or if by the formation and establishment of any lesser area than that of the whole county into a consolidated city and county, any such incorporated city having such population is separated and detached from the largest area of the remainder of the original county, by reason of its exterior boundaries not being contiguous thereto, then such incorporated city, together with all other incorporated cities or towns or unincorporated territory in such original county, which if said new city and county is formed and established would likewise be so separated and detached, and which are contiguous to each other and form one compact area, may organize and establish a consolidated city and county government for the whole of such detached territory under the provisions of section eight of this article, by adopting a freeholders charter in accordance with the provisions of said section, and to have all of the powers conferred by said section; except, that for the purpose of the election of the members of the board of freeholders, and the organization and establishment of such consolidated city and county government, the whole of such detached area proposed to be formed into such consolidated city and county, shall be treated and considered as a city, within the meaning of section eight of this article; and except that all elections thereunder and all proceedings for the adoption of such charter shall be initiated and conducted by the governing body of the incorporated city having the largest population in such detached area. Such charter may be submitted to the electors within the area of the detached territory, for their approval, at any time subsequent to the adoption of the charter prepared by the freeholders elected by the electors of the whole of the original county, but the same shall not be ratified by the legislature of this state until after the ratification by the legislature of the charter adopted in the first instance, which provided for the formation of a lesser territory than that of the whole county into a consolidated city and county government.

If under the provisions of this section any city and county is formed, which does not include the whole of the area of the original county from which it is permitted to separate, and any remainder of the county is not transferred to another county as in this section provided, but is to continue as a county, the governor of the state shall designate and assign, from among the judges of the superior court of the original county in office at the time of the taking effect of the new city and county government, as many judges as the ratio of the population contained in the area formed by the new city and county bears to the population of the whole of the original county at the time of the approval of the charter by the legislature, and the judges so assigned shall be and become the judges of the superior court of the new city and county, to hold office during the term for which each of them shall have been elected.

Upon the approval by the legislature of any charter framed under the provisions of this section, which charter provides for the separation of any new city and county from the original county, the board of supervisors of the original county, shall, at the time and in the manner set forth in such charter so approved, pass an ordinance calling an election in the area which is consolidated into a city and county, for the purpose of nominating and electing the first officers thereunder. Said board of supervisors shall canvass the votes and declare the result of such election. The county clerk or other officer having charge of registration of electors shall furnish to the district or city and county so consolidated, the voting list and precinct registers of all the electors residing in the area of the territory wherein the election is to be held.

The provisions of this constitution applicable to cities, and cities and counties, and also applicable to counties, so far as not inconsistent or prohibited to cities or cities and counties, except in the method of procedure of calling elections for the election of freeholders and the submission of the question of the formation of a consolidated city and county, shall be applicable to such consolidated city and county.

Any charter framed under the provisions of this section may be amended as provided in section eight of article eleven of this constitution.

Nothing in this section shall be construed to repeal or alter in any way the provisions of section eight and one-half of article eleven of this constitution, providing a different method and procedure for the formation of cities and counties, wherein the initiative is taken by a city or city and county. Nor shall the provisions of this section apply to any consolidated city and county, organized as such at the time this section takes effect; nor shall the provisions of this section apply to any county, which at the time this section takes effect, had adopted a freeholders charter, and was organized and operating under such freeholders charter. The legislature shall enact such general or special laws as may be necessary to carry out the provisions of this section and such general special laws, as may be necessary to effect city and county consolidation thereunder, or as may be necessary to provide for any period after such consolidation, by reason of the separation from the original county of such consolidated city and county, or to provide for the government of the remainder of the original county from which separation was had. [Amendment adopted November 5, 1918.]

SEC. 8. Any city or city and county containing a population of more than three thousand five hundred inhabitants, as ascertained by the last preceding census taken under the authority of the congress of the United States or of the legislature of California, may frame a charter for its own government, consistent with and subject to this constitution; and any city, or city and county having adopted a charter may adopt a new one. Any such charter shall be framed by a board of fifteen freeholders chosen by the electors of such city at any general or special election, but no person shall be eligible as a candidate for such board unless he shall have been, for the five years next preceding, an elector of said city. An election for choosing freeholders may be called by a two-thirds vote of the legislative body of such city, and, on presentation of a petition signed by not less than fifteen per cent of the registered electors of such city, the legislative body shall call such election at any time not less than thirty nor more than sixty days from date of the filing of the petition. Any such petition shall be verified by the authority having charge of the registration records of such city or city and county and the expenses of such verification shall be provided by the legislative body thereof. Candidates for the office of freeholders shall be nominated either in such manner as may be provided for the nomination of officers of the municipal government or by petition, substantially in the same manner as may be provided by general laws for the nomination by petition of electors of candidates for public offices to be voted for at general elections. The board of freeholders shall, within one hundred and twenty days after the result of the election is declared, prepare and propose a charter for the government of such city; but the said period of one hundred and twenty days may with the consent of the legislative body of such city be extended by such board not exceeding a total of sixty days. The charter so prepared shall be signed by a majority of the board of freeholders and filed in the office of the clerk of the legislative body of said city. The legislative body of said city shall within fifteen days after such filing cause such charter to be published once in the official paper of said city; (or in case there be no such paper, in a paper of general circulation); and shall cause copies of such charter to be printed in convenient pamphlet form, and shall, until the date fixed for the election upon such charter, advertise in one or more papers of general circulation published in said city a notice that such copies may be had upon application therefor. Such charter shall be submitted to the electors of such city at a date to be fixed by the board of freeholders, before such filing and designated on such charter, either at a special election held not less than sixty days from the completion of the publication of such charter as above provided, or at the general election next following the expiration of said sixty days. If a majority of the qualified voters voting thereon at such general or special election shall vote in favor of such proposed charter, it shall be deemed to be ratified, and shall be submitted to the legislature, if then in session, or at the next regular or special session of the legislature. The legislature shall by concurrent resolution approve or reject such charter as a whole, without power of alteration or amendment; and if approved by a majority of the members elected to each house it shall become the organic law of such city or city and county, and supersede any existing charter and all laws inconsistent therewith. One copy of the charter so ratified and approved shall be filed with the secretary of state, one with the recorder of the county in which such city is located, and one in the archives of the city; and thereafter the court shall take judicial notice of the provisions of such charter. The charter of any city or city and county may be amended by proposals therefor submitted by the legislative body of the city on its own motion or in petition signed by fifteen per cent of the registered electors, or both. Such proposals shall be submitted to the electors only during the six months next preceding a regular session of the legislature or thereafter and before the final adjournment of that session and at either a special election called for that purpose or at any general or special election. Petitions for the submission of any amendment shall be filed with the legislative body of the city or city and county not less than sixty days prior to the general election next preceding a regular session of the legislature. The signatures on such petitions shall be verified by the authority having charge of the registration records of such city or city and county, and the expenses of such verification shall be provided by the legislative body thereof. If such petitions have a sufficient number of signatures the legislative body of the city or city and county shall so submit the amendment or amendments so proposed to the electors. Amendments proposed by the legislative body and amendments proposed by petition of the electors may be submitted at the same election. The amendments so submitted shall be advertised in the same manner as herein provided for the advertisement of a proposed charter, and the election thereon held at a date to be fixed by the legislative body of such city, not less than forty and not more than sixty days after the completion of the advertising in the official paper. If a majority of the qualified voters voting on any such amendment vote in favor thereof it shall be deemed ratified, and shall be submitted to the legislature at the regular session next following such election; and approved or rejected without power of alteration in the same manner as herein provided for the approval or rejection of a charter. In submitting any such charter or amendment separate propositions, whether alternative or conflicting, or one included within the other, may be submitted at the same time to be voted on by the electors separately, and, as between those so related, if more than one receive a majority of the votes, the proposition receiving the larger number of votes shall control as to all matters in conflict. It shall be competent in any charter framed under the authority of this section to provide that the municipality governed thereunder may make and enforce all laws and regulations in respect to municipal affairs, subject only to the restrictions and limitations provided in their several charters and in respect to other matters they shall be subject to general laws. It shall be competent in any charter to provide for the division of the city or city and county governed thereby into boroughs or districts, and to provide that each such borough or district may exercise such general or special municipal powers, and to be administered in such manner, as may be provided for each such borough or district in the charter of the city or city and county.

The percentages of the registered electors herein required for the election of freeholders or the submission of amendments to charters shall be calculated upon the total vote cast in the city or city and county at the last preceding general state election; and the qualified electors shall be those whose names appear upon the registration records of the same or preceding year. The election laws of such city or city and county shall, so far as practicable, govern all elections held under the authority of this section. [Amendment adopted November 3, 1914.]

(b) Providing that any bonded indebtedness incurred for the purposes aforesaid shall be exclusive of the bonded indebtedness of the said city and county limited by section nine of article XII of said charter;

(d) Granting to said Panama-Pacific International Exposition Company the exclusive possession and use, together with the management and control, for such exposition purposes, of any lands held by the board of education of the city and county of San Francisco, and by the city and county of San Francisco, not in actual use, such possession and use, also management and control, to terminate not later than one year after the closing of such exposition;

(e) Authorizing said Panama-Pacific International Exposition Company to temporarily close streets in the city and county of San Francisco westerly from Twentieth avenue, for such exposition purposes, and to have the exclusive possession and use, together with the management and control, of said streets for such exposition purposes, such possession and use, also management and control of said streets, to terminate not later than one year after the closing of such exposition.

CONSTITUTION OF THE STATE OF CALIFORNIA.

Proposals to amend the charter of the city and county of San Francisco in the foregoing particulars may be submitted by the legislative authority of said city and county to the electors of said city and county, at any general or special election (and a special election may be called therefor) held in said city and county, after the publication of such proposals in a newspaper of general circulation in said city and county, for such time as shall be determined by said legislative authority. Upon the ratification of any such proposed amendment by a majority of the electors of said city and county voting at such election on such proposed amendment, said proposed amendment receiving such majority vote shall become operative immediately as an amendment to said charter, without the necessity of approval thereof by the legislature.

Any act of the legislative authority of the city and county of San Francisco, in submitting to the electors of said city and county, at any general or special election, proposals to amend the charter of said city and county in the foregoing particulars, including any notice by publication or otherwise of such proposals, and of such election, and the holding of such election, in accordance with the provisions hereof, before the adoption of this amendment, are hereby validated in all respects as if performed subsequent to the adoption of this amendment. The disbursement of all funds obtained from said bonds shall be accounted for by said Panama-Pacific International Exposition Company by an itemized statement thereof to be filed with the auditor of the city and county of San Francisco. [New section adopted November 8, 1910.]

1. In any city or any city and county, when such municipal court has been established, there shall be no other court inferior to the superior court; and pending actions, trials, and all pending business of inferior courts within the territory of such city or city and county, upon the establishment of any such municipal court, shall be and become pending in such municipal court, and all records of such inferior courts shall thereupon be and become the records of such municipal court.

and for the number of deputies, clerks and other employees that each shall have, and for the compensation, method of appointment, qualifications, tenure of office and removal of such deputies, clerks and other employees. All provisions of any charter of any such city or consolidated city and county, heretofore adopted, and amendments thereto, which are in accordance herewith, are hereby confirmed and declared valid.

5. It shall be competent in any charter or amendment thereof, which shall hereafter be framed under the authority given by section eight of this article, by any city having a population in excess of fifty thousand ascertained as prescribed by said section eight, to provide for the separation of said city from the county of which it has theretofore been a part and the formation of said city into a consolidated city and county to be governed by such charter, and to have combined powers of a city and county, as provided in this constitution for consolidated city and county government, and further to prescribe in said charter the date for the beginning of the official existence of said consolidated city and county.

It shall also be competent for any such city, not having already consolidated as a city and county to hereafter frame, in the manner prescribed in section eight of this article, a charter providing for a city and county government, in which charter there shall be prescribed territorial boundaries which may include contiguous territory not included in such city, which territory, however, must be included in the county within which such city is located.

If no additional territory is proposed to be added, then, upon the consent to the separation of any such city from the county in which it is located, being given by a majority of the qualified electors voting thereon in such county and upon the ratification of such charter by a majority of the qualified electors voting thereon in such city, and the approval thereof by the legislature, as prescribed in section eight of this article, said charter shall be deemed adopted and upon the date fixed therein said city shall be and become a consolidated city and county.

If additional territory which consists wholly of only one incorporated city or town, or which consists wholly of unincorporated territory, is proposed to be added, then, upon the consent to such separation of such territory and of the city initiating the consolidation proposal being given by a majority of the qualified electors voting thereon in the county in which the city proposing such separation is located, and upon the ratification of such charter by a majority of the qualified electors voting thereon in such city so proposing the separation, and also upon the approval of the proposal hereinafter set forth, by a majority of the qualified electors voting thereon in the whole of such additional territory, and the approval of said charter by the legislature, as prescribed in section eight of this article, said charter shall be deemed adopted, the indebtedness hereinafter referred to shall be deemed to have been assumed, and upon the date fixed in said charter such territory and such city shall be and become one consolidated city and county.

The proposal to be submitted to the territory proposed to be added shall be substantially in the following form and submitted as one indivisible question:

“Shall the territory (herein designate in general terms the territory to be added) consolidate with the city of (herein insert the name of the city initiating the proposition to form a city and county government) in a consolidated city and county government, and shall the charter as prepared by the city of (herein insert the name of the city initiating such proposition) be adopted as the charter of the consolidated city and county, and shall the said added territory become subject to taxation along with the entire territory of the proposed city and county, in accordance with the assessable valuation of the property of the said territory, for the following indebtedness of said city (herein insert name of the city initiating such proposition) to wit: (herein insert in general terms reference to any debts to be assumed, and if none insert ‘none’)?”

If additional territory is proposed to be added, which includes unincorporated territory and one or more incorporated cities or towns, or which includes more than one incorporated city or town, the consent of any such incorporated city or town shall be obtained by a majority vote of the qualified electors thereof voting upon a proposal substantially as follows:

“Shall (herein insert the name of the city or town to be included in such additional territory) be included in a district to be hereafter defined by the city of (herein insert the name of the city initiating the proposition to form a city and county government) which district shall, within two years from the date of this election, vote upon a proposal submitted as one indivisible question that such district to be then described and set forth shall consolidate with (herein insert name of the city initiating said consolidation proposition) in a consolidated city and county government, and also that a certain charter, to be prepared by the city of (herein insert name of the city initiating such proposition) be adopted as the charter of such consolidated city and county, and that such district become subject to taxation along with the entire territory of the proposed city and county in accordance with the assessable valuation of the property of said district for the following indebtedness of said city of (herein insert name of the city initiating such proposition) to wit: (herein insert in general terms, reference to any debts to be assumed and if none insert 'none')?"

Any and all incorporated cities or towns to which the foregoing proposal shall have been submitted and a majority of whose qualified electors voting thereon shall have voted in favor thereof, together with such unincorporated territory as the city initiating such consolidation proposal may desire to have included, the whole to form an area contiguous to said city, shall be created into a district by such city, and the proposal substantially as above prescribed to be used when the territory proposed to be added consists wholly of only one incorporated city or town, or wholly of unincorporated territory, shall, within two years, be submitted to the voters of said entire district as one indivisible question.

Upon consent to the separation of such district and of the city initiating the consolidation proposal being given by a majority of the qualified electors voting thereon in the county in which the city proposing such separation is located, and upon the ratification of such charter by a majority of the qualified electors voting thereon in such city, and upon the approval of the proposal hereinbefore set forth by a majority of the qualified electors voting thereon in the whole of said district so proposed to be added, and upon the approval of said charter by the legislature, as prescribed in section eight of this article, said charter shall be deemed adopted, the said indebtedness referred to in said proposal shall be deemed to have been assumed, and upon the date fixed in said charter, such district and such city shall be and become one consolidated city and county.

6. It shall be competent for any consolidated city and county now existing, or which shall hereafter be organized, to annex territory contiguous to such consolidated city and county, unincorporated or otherwise, whether situated wholly in one county, or parts thereof be situate in different counties, said annexed territory to be an integral part of such city and county; provided, that such annexation of territory shall only include any part of the territory which was at the time of the original consolidation of the annexing city and county, within the county from which such annexing city and county was formed, together with territory which was concurrently, or has since such consolidation been joined in a county government with the area of the original county not included in such consolidated city and county.

If additional territory, which consists wholly of only one incorporated city, city and county or town, or which consists wholly of unincorporated territory, is proposed to be annexed to any consolidated city and county now existing or which shall hereafter be organized, then, upon the consent to any such annexation being given by a majority of the qualified electors voting thereon in any county or counties in which any such additional territory is located, and upon the approval of such annexation proposal by a majority of the qualified electors voting thereon in such city and county, and also upon the approval of the proposal hereinafter set forth by a majority of the qualified electors voting thereon in the whole of such territory proposed to be annexed, the indebtedness hereinafter referred to shall be deemed to have been assumed, and at the time stated in such proposal, such additional territory and such city and county shall be and become one consolidated city and county, to be governed by the charter of the city and county proposing such annexation and any subsequent amendment thereto.

The proposal to be submitted to the territory proposed to be annexed, shall be substantially in the following form and submitted as one indivisible question:

"Shall the territory (herein designate in general terms the territory to be annexed) consolidate with the city and county of (herein insert the name of the city and county initiating the annexation proposal) in a consolidated city and county government, said consolidation to take effect (herein insert date when such consolidation shall take effect) and shall the said annexed territory become subject to taxation, as an integral part of the city and county so formed, in accordance with the assessable valuation of property of said territory for the following indebtedness of said city and county of (herein insert name of the city and county) to-wit: (herein insert in general terms, reference to any debts to be assumed and if none insert 'none')?"

If additional territory including unincorporated territory and one or more incorporated cities, cities and counties, or towns, or including more than one incorporated city, city and county, or town, is proposed to be annexed to any consolidated city and county now existing or which shall hereafter be organized, the consent of each such incorporated city, city and county, or town, shall be obtained by a majority vote of the qualified electors of any such incorporated city, city and county, or town, voting upon a proposal substantially as follows:

"Shall (herein insert name of the city, city and county, or town, to be included in such annexed territory) be included in a district to be hereafter defined by the city and county of (herein insert the name of the city and county initiating the annexation proposal) which district shall within two years from the date of this election vote upon a proposal submitted as one indivisible question, that such district to be then described and set forth shall consolidate with (herein insert name of the city and county initiating the annexation proposal) in a consolidated city and county government, and that such district become subject to taxation, along with the entire territory of the proposed city and county in accordance with the assessable valuation of the property of said district for the following indebtedness of said city and county of (herein insert name of the city and county initiating the annexation proposal) to wit: (herein insert in general terms, reference to any debts to be assumed and if none insert 'none')?"

Any and all incorporated cities, cities and counties, or towns, to which the foregoing proposal shall have been submitted, and a majority of whose qualified electors voting thereon shall have voted in favor thereof, together with such unincorporated territory as the city and county initiating such annexation proposal may desire to have included, the whole to form an area contiguous to said city and county, shall be created into a district by said city and county, and the proposal substantially in the form above set forth to be used when the territory proposed to be added consists wholly of only one incorporated city, city and county, or town, or wholly of unincorporated territory, shall, within said two years, be submitted to the voters of said entire district as one indivisible question.

Upon consent to any such annexation being given by a majority of the qualified electors voting thereon in any county or counties in which any such territory proposed to be annexed to said city and county is located, and upon the approval of any such annexation proposal by a majority of the qualified electors voting thereon in such city and county proposing such annexation, and also upon the approval of the proposal hereinbefore set forth by a majority of the qualified electors voting thereon in the whole of the district so proposed to be annexed, then, the said indebtedness referred to in said proposal shall be deemed to have been assumed, and upon the date stated in such annexation proposal such district and such city and county shall be and become one consolidated city and county, to be governed by the charter of the city and county proposing such annexation, and any subsequent amendment thereto.

Whenever any proposal is submitted to the electors of any county, territory, district, city, city and county, or town, as above provided, there shall be published, for at least five successive publications, in a newspaper of general circulation printed and published in any such county, territory, district, city, city and county, or town, the last publication to be not less than twenty days prior to any such election, a particular description of any territory or district to be separated, added, or annexed, together with a particular description of any debts to be assumed, as above referred to, unless such particular description is contained in the said proposal so submitted. In addition to said description, such territory shall also be designated in such notice by some appropriate name or other words of identification, by which such territory may be referred to and indicated upon the ballots to be used at any election at which the question of annexation or consolidation of additional territory is submitted as herein provided. If there be no such newspaper so printed and published in any such county, territory, district, city, city and county, or town, then such publication may be made in any newspaper of general circulation printed and published in the nearest county, city, city and county, or town where there may be such a newspaper so printed and published.

If, by the adoption of any charter, or by annexation, any incorporated municipality becomes a portion of a city and county, its property, debts and liabilities of every description shall be and become the property, debts and liabilities of such city and county.

Every city and county which shall be formed, or the territory of which shall be enlarged as herein provided from territory taken from any county or counties, shall be liable for a just proportion of the debts and liabilities and be entitled to a just proportion of the property and assets of such county or counties, existing at the time such territory is so taken.

The provisions of this constitution applicable to cities, and cities and counties, and also those applicable to counties, so far as not inconsistent or prohibited to cities, or cities and counties, shall be applicable to such consolidated city and county government; and no provision of subdivision five or six of this section shall be construed as a restriction upon the plenary authority of any city or city and county having a freeholders' charter, as provided for in this constitution, to determine in said charter any and all matters elsewhere in this constitution authorized and not inconsistent herewith.

The legislature shall provide for the formation of one or more counties from the portion or portions of a county or counties remaining after the formation of or annexation to a consolidated city and county, or for the transfer of such portion or portions of such original county or counties to adjoining counties. But such transfer to an adjoining county shall only be made after approval by a majority vote of the qualified electors voting thereon in such territory proposed to be so transferred.

The provisions of section two of this article, and also those provisions of section three of this article which refer to the passing of any county line within five miles of the exterior boundary of a city or town in which a county seat of any county proposed to be divided is situated, and to the reducing of the population of any county upon the establishment of a new county, and to the minimum population on the forming of a new county, shall not apply to the formation of, nor to the extension of the territory of such consolidated cities and counties, nor to the formation of new counties, nor to the annexation of existing counties, as herein specified.

Any city and county formed under this section shall have the right, if it so desires, to be designated by the official name of the city initiating the consolidation as it existed immediately prior to its adoption of a charter providing for a consolidated city and county government, except that such city and county shall be known under the style of a city and county.

It shall be competent in any charter framed for a consolidated city and county, or by amendment thereof, to provide for the establishment of a borough system of government for the whole or any part of the territory of said city and county, by which one or more districts may be created therein, which districts shall be known as boroughs and which shall exercise such municipal powers as may be granted thereto by such charter, and for the organization, regulation, government and jurisdiction of such boroughs; provided, that in the event of such establishment or creation of a borough or boroughs, as hereinabove permitted, the boundaries thereof shall never afterwards be changed or altered, nor shall the governmental rights, powers or jurisdiction of any such borough or boroughs be thereafter limited, extended, modified or taken away, unless and until the borough or boroughs affected by such proposed change or alteration of boundaries, or by the proposed limitation, extension, modification or taking away of governmental rights, powers or jurisdiction, as the case may be, shall each have consented thereto, by the vote of a majority of the voters in each and every such borough, voting at an election or elections called and held for such purpose in each of the boroughs so affected.

SEC. 3. Each stockholder of a corporation, or joint-stock association, shall be individually and personally liable for such proportion of all its debts and liabilities contracted or incurred, during the time he was a stockholder, as the amount of stock or shares owned by him bears to the whole of the subscribed capital stock, or shares of the corporation or association. The directors or trustees of corporations and joint-stock associations shall be jointly and severally liable to the creditors and stockholders for all moneys embezzled or misappropriated by the officers of such corporation or joint-stock association, during the term of office of such director or trustee.

A certificate of such vote or consent shall be signed and sworn to by the president and secretary, and by a majority of the directors of the corporation and filed and certified in the manner and upon payment of fees required by law for filing and certifying articles of incorporation, and thereupon the term of the corporation shall be extended for the period specified in such certificate, and such corporation shall thereafter pay all annual or other fees required by law to be paid by corporations. [Amendment adopted November 3, 1908.]

SEC. 8. The exercise of the right of eminent domain shall never be so abridged or construed as to prevent the legislature from taking the property and franchises of incorporated companies and subjecting them to public use the same as the property of individuals, and the exercise of the police power of the state shall never be so abridged or construed as to permit corporations to conduct their business in such manner as to infringe the rights of individuals or the general well-being of the state.

SEC. 9. SEC. 12. In all elections for directors or managers of corporations every stockholder shall have the right to vote, in person or by proxy, the number of shares of stock owned by him, for as many persons as there are directors or managers to be elected, or to cumulate said shares and give one candidate as many votes as the number of directors multiplied by the number of his shares of stock shall equal, or to distribute them, on the same principle, among as many candidates as he shall ~~think fit~~ ~~and~~ and such directors or managers shall not be elected in any other manner, except that members of co-operative societies formed for agricultural, mercantile, and manufacturing purposes may vote on all questions affecting such societies in manner prescribed by law.

SEC. 13. The state shall not, in any manner, loan its credit, nor shall it subscribe to or be interested in the stock of any company, association, or corporation.

SEC. 14. Every corporation other than religious, educational, or benevolent, organized or doing business in this state, shall have and maintain an office or place in this state for the transaction of its business, where transfers of stock shall be made, and in which shall be kept, for inspection by every person having an interest therein, and legislative committees, books in which shall be recorded the amount of capital stock subscribed, and by whom; the names of the owners of its stock, and the amounts owned by them, respectively; the amount of stock paid in, and by whom; the transfer of stock; the amount of its assets and liabilities, and the names and places of residence of its officers.

SEC. 16. A corporation or association may be sued in the county where the contract is made or is to be performed, or where the obligation or liability arises or the breach occurs; or in the county where the principal place of business of such corporation is situated, subject to the power of the court to change the place of trial as in other cases.

SEC. 17. All railroad, canal, and other transportation companies are declared to be common carriers, and subject to legislative control. Any association or corporation, organized for the purpose under the laws of this state, shall have the right to connect at the state line with railroads of other states. Every railroad company shall have the right with its road to intersect, connect with, or cross any other railroad, and shall receive and transport each the other's passengers, tonnage, and cars, without delay or discrimination.

SEC. 18. No president, director, officer, agent, or employee of any railroad or canal company shall be interested, directly or indirectly, in the furnishing of material or supplies to such company, nor in the business of transportation as a common carrier of freight or passengers over the works owned, leased, controlled, or worked by such company, except such interest in the business of transportation as lawfully flows from the ownership of stock therein.

SEC. 19. No railroad or other transportation company shall grant free passes, or passes or tickets at a discount, to any person holding any office of honor, trust, or profit in this state; and the acceptance of any such pass or ticket by a member of the legislature, or any public officer, other than railroad commissioner, shall work a forfeiture of his office.

SEC. 20. No railroad or other transportation company shall raise any rate of charge for the transportation of freight or passengers or any charge connected therewith or incidental thereto, under any circumstances whatsoever, except upon a showing before the railroad commission provided for in this constitution, that such increase is justified, and the decision of the said commission upon the showing so made shall not be subject to review by any court except upon the question whether such decision of the commission will result in confiscation of property. [Amendment adopted October 10, 1911.]

SEC. 21. No discrimination in charges or facilities for transportation shall be made by any railroad or other transportation company between places or persons, or in the facilities for the transportation of the same classes of freight or passengers within this state. It shall be unlawful for any railroad or other transportation company to charge or receive any greater compensation in the aggregate for the transportation of passengers or of like kind of property for a shorter than for a longer distance over the same line or route in the same direction, the shorter being included within the longer distance, or to charge any greater compensation as a through rate than the aggregate of the intermediate rates; provided, however, that upon application to the railroad commission provided for in this constitution such company may, in special cases, after investigation, be authorized by such commission to charge less for longer than for shorter distances for the transportation of persons or property and the railroad commission may from time to time prescribe the extent to which such company may be relieved from the prohibition to charge less for the longer than for the shorter haul. The railroad commission shall have power to authorize the issuance of excursion and commutation tickets at special rates. Nothing herein contained shall be construed to prevent the railroad commission from ordering and compelling any railroad or other transportation company to make reparation to any shipper on account of the rates charged to said shipper being excessive or discriminatory, provided no discrimination will result from such reparation. [Amendment adopted October 10, 1911.]

SEC. 22. There is hereby created a railroad commission which shall consist of five members and which shall be known as the railroad commission of the state of California. The commission shall be appointed by the governor from the state at large; provided, that the legislature, in its discretion, may divide the state into districts for the purpose of such appointments, said districts to be as nearly equal in population as practicable; and provided, further, that the three commissioners in office at the time this section takes effect shall serve out the term for which they were elected, and that two additional commissioners shall be appointed by the governor immediately after the adoption of this section, to hold office during the same term. Upon the expiration of said term, the term of office of each commissioner thereafter shall be six years, except the commissioners first appointed hereunder after such expiration, one of whom shall be appointed to hold office until January 1, 1917, two until January 1, 1919, and two until January 1, 1921. Whenever a vacancy in the office of commissioner shall occur the governor shall forthwith appoint a qualified person to fill the same for the unexpired term. Commissioners appointed for regular terms shall at the beginning of the term for which they are appointed, and those appointed to fill vacancies, shall immediately upon their appointment, enter upon the duties of their offices. The legislature shall fix the salaries of the commissioners, but pending such action the salaries of the commissioners, their officers and employees shall remain as now fixed by law. The legislature shall have the power, by a two-thirds vote of all members elected to each house, to remove any one or more of said commissioners from office for dereliction of duty or corruption or incompetency. All of said commissioners shall be qualified electors of this state, and no person in the employ of or holding any official relation to any person, firm or corporation, which said person, firm or corporation is subject to regulation by said railroad commission and no person owning stock or bonds of any such corporation or who is in any manner pecuniarily interested therein, shall be appointed to or hold the office of railroad commissioner. No vacancy in the commission shall impair the right of the remaining commissioners to exercise all the powers of the commission. The act of a majority of the commissioners when in session as a board shall be deemed to be the act of the commission; but any investigation, inquiry or hearing which the commission has power to undertake or to hold may be undertaken or held by or before any commissioner designated for the purpose by the commission, and every order made by a commissioner so designated, pursuant to such inquiry, investigation or hearing, when approved or confirmed by the commission ordered filed in its office, shall be deemed to be the order of the commission.

Said commission shall have the power to establish rates of charges for the transportation of passengers and freight by railroads and other transportation companies, and no railroad or other transportation company shall charge or demand or collect or receive a greater or less or different compensation for such transportation of passengers or freight, or for any service in connection therewith, between the points named in any tariff of rates, established by said commission, than the rates, fares and charges which are specified in such tariff. The commission shall have the further power to examine books, records and papers of all railroad and other transportation companies; to hear and determine complaints against railroad and other transportation companies; to issue subpoenas and all necessary process and send for persons and papers; and the commission and each of the commissioners shall have the power to administer oaths, take testimony and punish for contempt in the same manner and to the same extent as courts of record; the commission may prescribe a uniform system of accounts to be kept by all railroad and other transportation companies.

No provision of this constitution shall be construed as a limitation upon the authority of the legislature to confer upon the railroad commission additional powers of the same kind or different from those conferred herein which are not inconsistent with the powers conferred upon the railroad commission in this constitution, and the authority of the legislature to confer such additional powers is expressly declared to be plenary and unlimited by any provision of this constitution.

The provisions of this section shall not be construed to repeal in whole or in part any existing law not inconsistent herewith, and the "Railroad Commission Act" of this state approved February 10, 1911, shall be construed with reference to this constitutional provision and any other constitutional provision becoming operative concurrently herewith. And the said act shall have the same force and effect as if the same had been passed after the adoption of this provision of the constitution and of all other provisions adopted concurrently herewith, except that the three commissioners referred to in said act shall be held and construed to be the five commissioners provided for herein. [Amendment adopted October 10, 1911.]

The railroad commission shall have and exercise such power and jurisdiction to supervise and regulate public utilities, in the state of California, and to fix the rates to be charged for commodities furnished, or services rendered by public utilities as shall be conferred upon it by the legislature, and the right of the legislature to confer powers upon the railroad commission respecting public utilities is hereby declared to be plenary and to be unlimited by any provision of this constitution. From and after the passage by the legislature of laws conferring powers upon the railroad commission, respecting public utilities, all powers respecting such public utilities vested in boards of supervisors, or municipal councils, or other governing bodies of the several counties, cities and counties, cities and towns, in this state, or in any commission created by law and existing at the time of the passage of such laws, shall cease so far as such powers shall conflict with the powers so conferred upon the railroad commission; provided, however, that this section shall not affect such powers of control over public utilities as relate to the making and enforcement of local, police, sanitary and other regulations, other than the fixing of rates, vested in any city and county or incorporated city or town as, at an election to be held pursuant to law, a majority of the qualified electors of such city and county, or incorporated city or town, voting thereon, shall vote to retain, and until such election such powers shall continue unimpaired; but if the vote so taken shall not favor the continuation of such powers they shall thereafter vest in the railroad commission as provided by law; and provided, further, that where any such city and county, or incorporated city or town, shall have elected to continue any of its powers to make and enforce such local, police, sanitary and other regulations, other than the fixing of rates, it may, by a vote of a majority of its qualified electors voting thereon, thereafter surrender such powers to the railroad commission in the manner prescribed by the legislature; and provided, further, that this section shall not affect the right of any city and county or incorporated city or town, to grant franchises for public utilities upon the terms and conditions and in the manner prescribed by law. Nothing in this section shall be construed as a limitation upon any power conferred upon the railroad commission by any provision of this constitution now existing or adopted concurrently herewith. [New section adopted November 6, 1894.]

SEC. 13. The legislature shall pass all laws necessary to carry out the provisions of this article.

SEC. 14. Taxes levied, assessed and collected as hereinafter provided upon railroads, including street railways, whether operated in one or more counties; sleeping car, dining car, drawingroom car and palace car companies, refrigerator, oil, stock, fruit, and other car-loaning and other car companies operating upon railroads in this state; companies doing express business on any railroad, steamboat, vessel or stage line in this state; telegraph companies; telephone companies; companies engaged in the transmission or sale of gas or electricity; insurance companies; banks, banking associations, savings and loan societies, and trust companies; and taxes upon all franchises of every kind and nature, shall be entirely and exclusively for state purposes, and shall be levied, assessed and collected in the manner hereinafter provided. The word "companies" as used in this section shall include persons, partnerships, joint stock associations, companies and corporations.

(a) All railroad companies, including street railways, whether operated in one or more counties; all sleeping car, dining car, drawingroom car, and palace car companies, all refrigerator, oil, stock, fruit and other car-loaning and other car companies, operating upon the railroads in this state; all companies doing express business on any railroad, steamboat, vessel or stage line in this state; all telegraph and telephone companies; and all companies engaged in the transmission or sale of gas or electricity shall annually pay to the state a tax upon their franchises, roadways, roadbeds, rails, rolling stock, poles, wires, pipes, canals, conduits, rights of way, and other property, or any part thereof used exclusively in the operation of their business in this state, computed as follows: Said tax shall be equal to the percentages hereinafter fixed upon the gross receipts from operation of such companies, and each thereof within this state. When such companies are operating partly within and partly without this state, the gross receipts within this state shall be deemed to be all receipts on business beginning and ending within this state, and a proportion, based upon the proportion of the mileage within this state to the entire mileage over which such business is done, of receipts on all business passing through, into, or out of this state.

The percentages above mentioned shall be as follows: On all railroad companies, including street railways, four per cent; on all sleeping car, dining car, drawingroom car, palace car companies, refrigerator, oil, stock, fruit and other car-loaning and other car companies, three per cent; on all companies doing express business on any railroad, steamboat, vessel or stage line, two per cent; on all telegraph and telephone companies, three and one-half per cent; on all companies engaged in the transmission or sale of gas or electricity, four per cent. Such taxes shall be in lieu of all other taxes and licenses, state, county and municipal, upon the property above enumerated of such companies except as otherwise in this section provided; provided, that nothing herein shall be construed to release any such company from the payment of any amount agreed to be paid or required by law to be paid for any special privilege or franchise granted by any of the municipal authorities of this state.

(b) Every insurance company or association doing business in this state shall annually pay to the state a tax of one and one-half per cent upon the amount of the gross premiums received upon its business done in this state, less return premiums and reinsurance in companies or associations authorized to do business in this state; provided, that there shall be deducted from said one and one-half per cent upon the gross premiums the amount of any county and municipal taxes paid by such companies on real estate owned by them in this state. This tax shall be in lieu of all other taxes and licenses, state, county and municipal, upon the property of such companies, except county and municipal taxes on real estate, and except as otherwise in this section provided; provided, that when by the laws of any other state or country, any taxes, fines, penalties, licenses, fees, deposits of money, or of securities, or other obligations or prohibitions, are imposed on insurance companies of this state, doing business in such other state or country, or upon their agents therein, in excess of such taxes, fines, penalties, licenses, fees, deposits of money, or of securities, or other obligations or prohibitions, imposed upon insurance companies of such other state or country, so long as such laws continue in force, the same obligations and prohibitions of whatsoever kind may be imposed by the legislature upon insurance companies of such other state or country doing business in this state.

(c) The shares of capital stock of all banks, organized under the laws of this state, or of the United States, or of any other state and located in this state, shall be assessed and taxed to the owners or holders thereof by the state board of equalization, in the manner to be prescribed by law, in the city or town where the bank is located and not elsewhere. There shall be levied and assessed upon such shares of capital stock an annual tax, payable to the state, of one per centum upon the value thereof. The value of each share of stock in each bank, except such as are in liquidation, shall be taken to be the amount paid in thereon, together with its pro rata of the accumulated surplus and undivided profits. The value of each share of stock in each bank which is in liquidation shall be taken to be its pro rata of the actual assets of such bank. This tax shall be in lieu of all other taxes and licenses, state, county and municipal, upon such shares of stock and upon the property of such banks, except county and municipal taxes on real estate and except as otherwise in this section provided. In determining the value of the capital stock of any bank there shall be deducted from the value, as defined above, the value, as assessed for county taxes, of any real estate, other than mortgage interests therein, owned by such bank and taxed for county purposes. The banks shall be liable to the state for this tax and the same shall be paid to the state by them on behalf of the stockholders in the manner and at the time prescribed by law, and they shall have a lien upon the shares of stock and upon any dividends declared thereon to secure the amount so paid.

The moneyed capital, reserve, surplus, undivided profits and all other property belonging to unincorporated banks or bankers of this state, or held by any bank located in this state which has no shares of capital stock, or employed in this state by any branches, agencies, or other representatives of any banks doing business outside of the state of California, shall be likewise assessed and taxed to such banks or bankers by the said board of equalization, in the manner to be provided by law and taxed at the same rate that is levied upon the shares of capital stock of incorporated banks, as provided in the first paragraph of this subdivision. The value of said property shall be determined by taking the entire property invested in such business, together with all the reserve, surplus, and undivided profits at their full cash value, and deducting therefrom the value as assessed for county taxes of any real estate, other than mortgage interests therein, owned by such bank and taxed for county purposes. Such taxes shall be in lieu of all other taxes and licenses, state, county and municipal, upon the property of the banks and bankers, mentioned in this paragraph, except county and municipal taxes on real estate and except as otherwise in this section provided. It is the intention of this paragraph that all moneyed capital and property of the banks and bankers mentioned in this paragraph shall be assessed and taxed at the same rate as an incorporated bank, provided for in the first paragraph of this subdivision. In determining the value of the moneyed capital and property of the banks and bankers mentioned in this subdivision, the said state board of equalization shall include and assess to such banks all property and everything of value owned or held by them, which go to make up the value of the capital stock of such banks and bankers, if the same were incorporated and had shares of capital stock.

The word "banks" as used in this subdivision shall include banking associations, savings and loan societies and trust companies, but shall not include building and loan associations.

(d) All franchises, other than those expressly provided for in this section, shall be assessed at their actual cash value, in the manner to be provided by law, and shall be taxed at the rate of one per centum each year, and the taxes collected thereon shall be exclusively for the benefit of the state.

(e) Out of the revenues from the taxes provided for in this section, together with all other state revenues, there shall be first set apart the moneys to be applied by the state to the support of the public school system and the state university. In the event that the above named revenues are at any time deemed insufficient to meet the annual expenditures of the state, including the above named expenditures for educational purposes, there may be levied, in the manner to be provided by law, a tax, for state purposes, on all the property in the state including the classes of property enumerated in this section, sufficient to meet the deficiency. All property enumerated in subdivisions a, b, and d of this section shall be subject to taxation, in the manner provided by law, to pay the principal and interest of any bonded indebtedness created and outstanding by any city, city and county, county, town, township or district, before the adoption of this section. The taxes so paid for principal and interest on such bonded indebtedness shall be deducted from the total amount paid in taxes for state purposes.

(f) All the provisions of this section shall be self-executing, and the legislature shall pass all laws necessary to carry this section into effect, and shall provide for a valuation and assessment of the property enumerated in this section, and shall prescribe the duties of the state board of equalization and any other officers in connection with the administration thereof. The rates of taxation fixed in this section shall remain in force until changed by the legislature, two-thirds of all the members elected to each of the two houses voting in favor thereof. The taxes herein provided for shall become a lien on the first Monday in March of each year after the adoption of this section and shall become due and payable on the first Monday in July thereafter. The gross receipts and gross premiums herein mentioned shall be computed for the year ending the thirty-first day of December prior to the levy of such taxes and the value of any property mentioned herein shall be fixed as of the first Monday in March. Nothing herein contained shall affect any tax levied or assessed prior to the adoption of this section; and all laws in relation to such taxes in force at the time of the adoption of this section shall remain in force until changed by the legislature. Until the year 1918 the state shall reimburse any and all counties which sustain loss of revenue by the withdrawal of railroad property from county taxation for the net loss in county revenue occasioned by the withdrawal of railroad property from county taxation. The legislature shall provide for reimbursement from the general funds of any county to districts therein where loss is occasioned in such districts by the withdrawal from local taxation of property taxed for state purposes only.

(g) No injunction shall ever issue in any suit, action or proceeding in any court against this state or against any officer thereof to prevent or enjoin the collection of any tax levied under the provisions of this section; but after payment action may be maintained to recover any tax illegally collected in such manner and at such time as may now or hereafter be provided by law. [New section adopted November 8, 1910.]

NOTE.—The rates fixed in the above section were changed by the legislature in 1913 (act approved February 3, 1913), in 1915 (act approved January 28, 1915), and in 1917 (act approved May 11, 1917).

SECTION 1. The use of all water now appropriated, or that may hereafter be appropriated, for sale, rental, or distribution, is hereby declared to be a public use, and subject to the regulation and control of the state, in the manner to be prescribed by law; provided, that the rates or compensation to be collected by any person, company, or corporation in this state for the use of water supplied to any city and county, or city, or town, or the inhabitants thereof, shall be fixed, annually, by the board of supervisors, or city and county, or city, or town council, or other governing body of such city and county, or city, or town, by ordinance or otherwise, in the manner that other ordinances or legislative acts or resolutions are passed by such body, and shall continue in force for one year and no longer. Such ordinances or resolutions shall be passed in the month of February of each year, and take effect on the first day of July thereafter. Any board or body failing to pass the necessary ordinances or resolutions fixing water rates, where necessary, within such time, shall be subject to peremptory process to compel action, at the suit of any party interested, and shall be liable to such further processes and penalties as the legislature may prescribe. Any person, company, or corporation collecting water rates in any city and county, or city, or town in this state, otherwise than as so established, shall forfeit the franchises and waterworks of such person, company, or corporation to the city and county, or city, or town, where the same are collected, for the public use.

SEC. 2. The right to collect rates or compensation for the use of water supplied to any county, city and county, or town, or the inhabitants thereof, is a franchise, and can not be exercised except by authority of and in the manner prescribed by law.

SEC. 2. No individual, partnership, or corporation, claiming or possessing the frontage or tidal lands of a harbor, bay, inlet, estuary, or other navigable water in this state, shall be permitted to exclude the right of way to such water whenever it is required for any public purpose, nor to destroy or obstruct the free navigation of such water; and the legislature shall enact such laws as will give the most liberal construction to this provision, so that access to the navigable waters of this state shall be always attainable for the people thereof.

SEC. 3. All tide lands within two miles of any incorporated city or town in this state, and fronting on the waters of any harbor, estuary, bay, or inlet, used for the purposes of navigation, shall be withheld from grant or sale to private persons, partnerships, or corporations.

STATE INDEBTEDNESS.

SECTION 1. The legislature shall not, in any manner, create any debt or debts, liability or liabilities, which shall, singly or in the aggregate with any previous debts or liabilities, exceed the sum of three hundred thousand dollars, except in case of war to repel invasion or suppress insurrection, unless the same shall be authorized by law for some single object or work to be distinctly specified therein, which law shall provide ways and means, exclusive of loans, for the payment of the interest of such debt or liability as it falls due, and also to pay and discharge the principal of such debt or liability within seventy-five years of the time of the contracting thereof, and shall be irrevocable until the principal and interest thereon shall be paid and discharged and such law may make provision for a sinking fund to pay the principal of such debt or liability to commence at a time after the incurring of such debt or liability of not more than a period of one-fourth of the time of maturity of such debt or liability; but no such law shall take effect until, at a general election, it shall have been submitted to the people and shall have received a majority of all the votes cast for and against it at such election: and all moneys raised by authority of such law shall be applied only to the specific object therein stated or to the payment of the debt thereby created, and such law shall be

The legislature may, at any time after the approval of such law by the people, if no debt shall have been contracted in pursuance thereof, repeal the same. [Amendment adopted November 3, 1908.]

HIGHWAY BOND ISSUE.

Sec. 2. Immediately upon the adoption of this section the state treasurer shall prepare forty thousand suitable bonds of the state of California in the denomination of one thousand dollars each, to be numbered from one to forty thousand inclusive, to bear a date not later than thirty days after said adoption and to bear interest at the rate of four and one-half per cent per annum from the date of said bonds, said interest to be payable on the third day of January and the third day of July of each and every year after the sale of said bonds, and said bonds to become due and payable in annual parcels of one thousand bonds, commencing July 3, 1926, and ending July 3, 1965.

COST TO BE BORNE BY STATE.

The cost of acquisition and construction of the several extensions described in said "state highways act of 1915" shall hereafter be entirely borne by the state of California, it being the intention hereof to relieve the several counties from any further co-operation as contemplated by said "state highway act of 1915," but nothing herein shall prevent any county from contributing towards the cost of said extensions or of any other state highways at its option to such extent as it may desire under the provisions of any existing laws.

APPLICATION OF STATE HIGHWAYS ACT.

All provisions of section eight of said "state highways act of 1915," and of any amendment thereof, and any provisions of said act or of any amendment thereof, relating to the selection of routes, character of construction of highways, manner of conducting work thereon, powers and duties of officers in connection therewith, adoption of public highways as state highways, payment of principal and interest on any bonds and appropriation of money for payment thereof, and the keeping of records and making of statements and reports, and all provisions of section eight of the "state highways act," as amended May 19, 1915, and of section eight of the "state highways act of 1915," and of any amendment of either thereof, relating to the payment by counties of money for interest upon any bonds and the relief of counties from such payment, shall, so far as applicable, apply to the bonds herein authorized and all highways constructed hereunder.

SECTION TO BE SELF-EXECUTING.

All provisions of this section shall be self-executing and shall not require any legislative action in furtherance thereof, but this shall not prevent such legislative action; and all expenses that shall be incurred by the state treasurer in the preparation of bonds herein provided for and in the advertising and sale thereof and all expenses incurred by any officer in reference thereto shall be paid from the general fund of the state. Nothing in this constitution contained shall be a limitation upon the provisions of this section. [New section adopted July 1, 1919.]

SEC. 3. There is hereby created a state highway finance board composed of the governor, state controller, state treasurer, chairman of the state board of control and chairman of the California highway commission, all of whom shall serve thereon without compensation and a majority of whom shall be empowered to act for said board. All of the forty thousand bonds authorized by section two of article sixteen of this constitution which shall have heretofore been sold shall be and constitute valid obligations of this state. All of said forty thousand bonds which shall remain unsold at the time of the adoption of this section shall be cancelled and destroyed by the state treasurer, and in lieu thereof bonds in the same amount shall be prepared and sold as hereinafter stated. Said state highway finance board shall from time to time, so long as the bonds herein authorized remain unsold, determine when the same or any part thereof shall be sold, the number to be sold, the dates which the bonds so to be sold shall bear, and the interest rate thereon, which rate shall be fixed by said board according to the then prevailing market conditions but shall at no time exceed six per cent per annum, and the determination of said board as to the rate of interest shall be conclusive as to the then prevailing market conditions. When requested by said board the state treasurer shall prepare such number of bonds, so dated and bearing such interest rate thereon, all as so determined by said board, said bonds as to maturity dates thereof, form, place and method of payment of principal and interest thereon, and in all other particulars, being the same as authorized by said section two of article sixteen, and as though the bonds herein authorized were the balance of said forty thousand bonds remaining unsold, and when so prepared said bonds shall be signed, countersigned, endorsed, sealed, sold and delivered, all as provided with respect to the bonds authorized by said section two of article sixteen, but by the respective officers in office at the time such acts are required to be done. In the event that any bonds prepared as herein provided can not in the judgment of said state highway finance board be sold at the time fixed for the sale thereof or thereafter, said board may withdraw said bonds from sale and direct the state treasurer to cancel and destroy the same, and may at said time or thereafter, at its option, direct the preparation and sale as hereinbefore provided, of the same or a different number of bonds, but not to exceed in all the amount herein authorized, and at the same or a different rate of interest but not to exceed six per cent per annum. All of the provisions of said section two of article sixteen, except those relating to the number of the bonds therein authorized, the date thereof and interest rate thereon, and except as herein otherwise provided, shall apply to and govern the bonds herein authorized, the use of the proceeds therefrom, and the several funds to be created and payments to be made into and out of the same, and in all respects said bonds herein authorized and the moneys derived from the sale thereof shall be governed and dealt with in the same manner, except as herein otherwise provided, as though the bonds herein authorized were the unsold portion of the forty thousand bonds authorized by said section two of article sixteen.

Section eight of the "state highways act" of 1909 as amended and approved by the electors November 7, 1916, section eight of the "state highways act" of 1915, section two of article sixteen of the constitution, and this section, to the extent that the provisions of any of said sections require the payment into the state treasury by the several counties of sums of money equal to the interest upon any money expended from the proceeds of the bonds issued under said acts and constitutional provisions respectively within those counties in the construction of state highways, shall on and after July 1, 1921, have no further force or effect; it being the intent of this provision that on and after said date the interest upon all bonds issued by the state for highway construction shall be paid exclusively by the state and that the counties shall thereafter be relieved from any obligation now or heretofore imposed to pay into the state treasury any money by reason of any expenditures for previous or subsequent highway construction in said counties; but nothing in this section contained shall be construed to exempt or relieve any county from the payment into the state treasury of any money due from it prior to said date under any of said provisions of any of said sections.

All provisions of this section shall be self-executing and shall not require any legislative action in furtherance thereof, but this shall not prevent such legislative action; and all expenses that shall be incurred by the state treasurer in the preparation of bonds herein provided for and in the advertising and sale thereof and all expenses incurred by any officer in reference thereto shall be paid from the general fund of the state. Nothing in this constitution contained, except as in this section provided, shall be a limitation upon the provisions of this section. [New section adopted November 2, 1920.]

ARTICLE XVII.

LAND AND HOMESTEAD EXEMPTION.

SECTION 1. The legislature shall protect, by law, from forced sale, a certain portion of the homestead and other property of all heads of families.

SEC. 2. The holding of large tracts of land, uncultivated and unimproved, by individuals or corporations, is against the public interest, and should be discouraged by all means not inconsistent with the rights of private property.

SEC. 3. Lands belonging to this state, which are suitable for cultivation, shall be granted only to actual settlers, and in quantities not exceeding three hundred and twenty acres to each settler, under such conditions as shall be prescribed by law.

ARTICLE XVIII.

AMENDING AND REVISING THE CONSTITUTION.

SECTION 1. Any amendment or amendments to this constitution may be proposed in the senate or assembly, and if two-thirds of all the members elected to each of the two houses shall vote in favor thereof, such proposed amendment or amendments shall be entered in their journals, with the yeas and nays taken thereon; and it shall be the duty of the legislature to submit such proposed amendment or amendments to the people in such manner, and at such time, and after such publication as may be deemed expedient. Should more amendments than one be submitted at the same election, they shall be so prepared and distinguished, by numbers or otherwise, that each can be voted on separately. If the people shall approve and ratify such amendment or amendments, or any of them, by a majority of the qualified electors voting thereon, such amendment or amendments shall become a part of this constitution.

NOTE.—Time when constitutional amendment takes effect.—"The amendment (article XIII, section 14), which is by its own terms declared to be self-executing, was adopted at an election held on November 8, 1910, and became a part of the organic law on that date": 166 Cal. 252. See also, 148 Cal. 69.

SEC. 2. Whenever two-thirds of the members elected to each branch of the legislature shall deem it necessary to revise this constitution, they shall recommend to the electors to vote, at the next general election, for or against a convention for that purpose, and if a majority of the electors voting at such election on the proposition for a convention shall vote in favor thereof, the legislature shall, at its next session, provide by law for calling the same. The convention shall consist of a number of delegates not to exceed that of both branches of the legislature, who shall be chosen in the same manner, and have the same qualifications, as members of the legislature. The delegates so elected shall meet within three months after their election, at such place as the legislature may direct. At a special election to be provided for by law, the constitution that may be agreed upon by such convention shall be submitted to the people for their ratification or rejection, in such manner as the convention may determine. The returns of such election shall, in such manner as the convention shall direct, be certified to the executive of the state, who shall call to his assistance the controller, treasurer, and secretary of state, and compare the returns so certified to him; and it shall be the duty of the executive to declare, by his proclamation, such constitution as may have been ratified by a majority of all the votes cast at such special election, to be the constitution of the state of California.

ARTICLE XXII.

SCHEDULE.

That no inconvenience may arise from the alterations and amendments in the constitution of this state, and to carry the same into complete effect, it is hereby ordained and declared:

SECTION 1. That all laws in force at the adoption of this constitution, not inconsistent therewith, shall remain in full force and effect until altered or repealed by the legislature; and all rights, actions, prosecutions, claims, and contracts of the state, counties, individuals, or bodies corporate, not inconsistent therewith, shall continue to be as valid as if this constitution had not been adopted. The provisions of all laws which are inconsistent with this constitution shall cease upon the adoption thereof, except that all laws which are inconsistent with such provisions of this constitution as require legislation to enforce them shall remain in full force until the first day of July, eighteen hundred and eighty, unless sooner altered or repealed by the legislature.

SEC. 2. That all recognizances, obligations, and all other instruments entered into or executed before the adoption of this constitution, to this state, or to any subdivision thereof, or any municipality therein, and all fines, taxes, penalties, and forfeitures due or owing to this state, or any subdivision or municipality thereof, and all writs, prosecutions, actions, and causes of action, except as herein otherwise provided, shall continue and remain unaffected by the adoption of this constitution. All indictments or informations which shall have been found, or may hereafter be found, for any crime or offense committed before this constitution takes effect, may be proceeded upon as if no change had taken place, except as otherwise provided in this constitution.

SEC. 3. All courts now existing, save justices' and police courts, are hereby abolished, and all records, books, papers, and proceedings from such courts, as are abolished by this constitution, shall be transferred, on the first day of January, eighteen hundred and eighty, to the courts provided for in this constitution; and the courts to which the same are thus transferred shall have the same power and jurisdiction over them as if they had been in the first instance commenced, filed, or lodged therein.

SEC. 4. The superintendent of printing of the state of California shall, at least thirty days before the first Wednesday in May, A. D. eighteen hundred and seventy-nine, cause to be printed at the state printing office, in pamphlet form, simply stitched, as many copies of this constitution as there are registered voters in this state, and mail one copy thereof to the post-office address of each registered voter; provided, any copies not called for ten days after reaching their delivery office, shall be subject to general distribution by the several postmasters of the state. The governor shall issue his proclamation, giving notice of the election for the adoption or rejection of this constitution, at least thirty days before the said first Wednesday of May, eighteen hundred and seventy-nine, and the boards of supervisors of the several counties shall cause said proclamation to be made public in their respective counties, and general notice of said election to be given at least fifteen days next before said election.

SEC. 5. The superintendent of printing of the state of California shall, at least twenty days before said election, cause to be printed and delivered to the clerk of each county in this state five times the number of properly prepared ballots for said election that there are voters in said respective counties, with the words printed thereon: "For the New Constitution." He shall likewise cause to be so printed and delivered to said clerks five times the number of properly prepared ballots for said election that there are voters in said respective counties with the words printed thereon: "Against the New Constitution." The secretary of state is hereby authorized and required to furnish the superintendent of state printing a sufficient quantity of legal ballot paper, now on hand, to carry out the provisions of this section.

SEC. 6. The clerks of the several counties in the state shall, at least five days before said election, cause to be delivered to the inspectors of elections, at each election precinct or polling place, in their respective counties, suitable registers, poll books, forms of return, and an equal number of the aforesaid ballots, which number, in the aggregate, must be ten times greater than the number of voters in the said election precincts or polling places. The returns of the number of votes cast at the presidential election in the year eighteen hundred and seventy-six shall serve as a basis of calculation for this and the preceding section; provided, that the duties in this and the preceding section imposed upon the clerks of the respective counties shall, in the city and county of San Francisco, be performed by the registrar of voters, for said city and county.

SEC. 7. Every citizen of the United States, entitled by law to vote for members of the assembly in this state, shall be entitled to vote for the adoption or rejection of this constitution.

SEC. 8. The officers of the several counties of this state, whose duty it is, under the law, to receive and canvass the returns from the several precincts of their respective counties, as well as of the city and county of San Francisco, shall meet at the usual places of meeting for such purposes on the first Monday after said election. If, at the time of meeting, the returns from each precinct in the county in which the polls were opened have been received, the board must then and there proceed to canvass the returns; but if all the returns have not been received, the canvass must be postponed from time to time until all the returns are received, or until the second Monday after said election, when they shall proceed to make out returns of the votes cast for and against the new constitution; and the proceedings of said board shall be the same as those prescribed for like boards in the case of an election for governor. Upon the completion of said canvass and returns, the said boards shall immediately certify the same, in the usual form, to the governor of the state of California.

SEC. 9. The governor of the state of California shall, as soon as the returns of said election shall be received by him, or within thirty days after said election, in the presence and with the assistance of the controller, treasurer, and secretary of state, open and compute all the returns received of votes cast for and against the new constitution. If, by such examination and computation, it is ascertained that a majority of the whole number of votes cast at such election is in favor of such new constitution, the executive of this state shall, by his proclamation, declare such new constitution to be the constitution of the state of California, and that it shall take effect and be in force on the days hereinafter specified.

SEC. 10. In order that future elections in this state shall conform to the requirements of this constitution, the terms of all officers elected at the first election under the same shall be, respectively, one year shorter than the terms as fixed by law or by this constitution; and the successors of all such officers shall be elected at the last election before the expiration of the terms as in this section provided. The first officers chosen after the adoption of this constitution shall be elected at the time and in the manner now provided by law. Judicial officers and the superintendent of public instruction shall be elected at the time and in the manner that state officers are elected.

SEC. 11. All laws relative to the present judicial system of the state shall be applicable to the judicial system created by this constitution until changed by legislation.

SEC. 12. This constitution shall take effect and be in force on and after the fourth day of July, eighteen hundred and seventy-nine, at twelve o'clock meridian, so far as the same relates to the election of all officers, the commencement of their terms of office, and the meeting of the legislature. In all other respects, and for all other purposes, this constitution shall take effect on the first day of January, eighteen hundred and eighty, at twelve o'clock meridian.

ARTICLE XXIII.

RECALL OF PUBLIC OFFICIALS.

SECTION 1. Every elective public officer of the state of California may be removed from office at any time by the electors entitled to vote for a successor of such incumbent, through the procedure and in the manner herein provided for, which procedure shall be known as the recall, and is in addition to any other method of removal provided by law.

The procedure hereunder to effect the removal of an incumbent of an elective public office shall be as follows: A petition signed by electors entitled to vote for a successor of the incumbent sought to be removed, equal in number to at least twelve per cent of the entire vote cast at the last preceding election for all candidates for the office, which the incumbent sought to be removed occupies (provided that if the officer sought to be removed is a state officer who is elected in any political subdivision of the state, said petition shall be signed by electors entitled to vote for a successor to the incumbent sought to be removed, equal in number to at least twenty per cent of the entire vote cast at the last preceding election for all candidates for the office which the incumbent sought to be removed occupies) demanding an election of a successor to the officer named in said petition, shall be addressed to the secretary of state and filed with the clerk, or registrar of voters of the county or city and county in which the petition was circulated; provided, that if the officer sought to be removed was elected in the state at large such petition shall be circulated in not less than five counties of the state, and shall be signed in each of such counties by electors equal in number to not less than one per cent of the entire vote cast, in each of said counties, at said election, as above estimated. Such petition shall contain a general statement of the grounds on which the removal is sought, which statement is intended solely for the information of the electors, and the sufficiency of which shall not be open to review.

When such petition is certified as is herein provided to the secretary of state, he shall forthwith submit the said petition, together with a certificate of its sufficiency, to the governor, who shall thereupon order and fix a date for holding the election, not less than sixty days nor more than eighty days from the date of such certificate of the secretary of state.

The governor shall make or cause to be made publication of notice for the holding of such election, and officers charged by law with duties concerning elections shall make all arrangements for such election and the same shall be conducted, returned, and the result thereof declared, in all respects as are other state elections. On the official ballot at such election shall be printed, in not more than two hundred words, the reasons set forth in the petition for demanding his recall. And in not more than three hundred words there shall also be printed, if desired by him, the officer's justification of his course in office. Proceedings for the recall of any officer shall be deemed to be pending from the date of the filing with any county, or city and county clerk, or registrar of voters, of any recall petition against such officer; and if such officer shall resign at any time subsequent to the filing thereof, the recall election shall be held notwithstanding such resignation, and the vacancy caused by such resignation, or from any other cause, shall be filled as provided by law, but the person appointed to fill such vacancy shall hold his office only until the person elected at the said recall election shall qualify.

Any person may be nominated for the office which is to be filled at any recall election by a petition signed by electors, qualified to vote at such recall election, equal in number to at least one per cent of the total number of votes cast at the last preceding election for all candidates for the office which the incumbent sought to be removed occupies. Each such nominating petition shall be filed with the secretary of state not less than twenty-five days before such recall election.

There shall be printed on the recall ballot, as to every officer whose recall is to be voted on thereat, the following question: "Shall (name of person against whom the recall petition is filed) be recalled from the office of (title of office)?" following which question shall be the words "Yes" and "No" on separate lines, with a blank space at the right of each, in which the voter shall indicate, by stamping a cross (X), his vote for or against such recall. On such ballots, under each such question, there shall also be printed the names of those persons who have been nominated as candidates to succeed the person recalled, in case he shall be removed from office by said recall election; but no vote cast shall be counted for any candidate for said office unless the voter also voted on said question of the recall of the person sought to be recalled from said office. The name of the person against whom the petition is filed shall not appear on the ballot as a candidate for the office. If a majority of those voting on said question of the recall of any incumbent from office shall vote "No," said incumbent shall continue in said office. If a majority shall vote "Yes," said incumbent shall thereupon be deemed removed from such office upon the qualification of his successor. The canvassers shall canvass all votes for candidates for said office and declare the result in like manner as in a regular election. If the vote at any such recall election shall recall the officer, then the candidate who has received the highest number of votes for the office shall be thereby declared elected for the remainder of the term. In case the person who received the highest number of votes shall fail to qualify within ten days after receiving the certificate of election, the office shall be deemed vacant and shall be filled according to law.

Any recall petition may be presented in sections, but each section shall contain a full and accurate copy of the title and text of the petition. Each signer shall add to his signature his place of residence, giving the street and number, if such exist. His election precinct shall also appear on the paper after his name. The number of signatures appended to each section shall be at the pleasure of the person soliciting signatures to the same. Any qualified elector of the state shall be competent to solicit such signatures within the county, or city and county, of which he is an elector. Each section of the petition shall bear the name of the county, or city and county in which it is circulated, and only qualified electors of such county or city and county shall be competent to sign such section. Each section shall have attached thereto the affidavit of the person soliciting signatures to the same stating his qualifications and that all the signatures to the attached section were made in his presence and that to the best of his knowledge and belief each signature to the section is the genuine signature of the person whose name it purports to be; and no other affidavit thereto shall be required. The affidavit of any person soliciting signatures hereunder shall be verified free of charge by any officer authorized to administer an oath. Such petition so verified shall be prima facie evidence that the signatures thereto appended are genuine and that the persons signing the same are qualified electors. Unless and until it is otherwise proven upon official investigation, it shall be presumed that the petition presented contains the signatures of the requisite number of electors. Each section of the petition shall be filed with the clerk, or registrar of voters, of the county or city and county in which it was circulated; but all such sections circulated in any county or city and county shall be filed at the same time. Within twenty days after the date of filing such petition, the clerk, or registrar of voters, shall finally determine from the records of registration what number of qualified voters have signed the same; and, if necessary, the board of supervisors shall allow such clerk or registrar additional assistants for the purpose of examining such petition and provide for their compensation. The said clerk or registrar, upon the completion of such examination, shall forthwith attach to such petition his certificate, properly dated, showing the result of such examination, and submit said petition, except as to the signatures appended thereto, to the secretary of state and file a copy of said certificate in his office. Within forty days from the transmission of the said petition and certificate by the clerk or registrar of voters to the secretary of state, a supplemental petition, identical with the original as to the body of the petition but containing supplemental names, may be filed with the clerk or registrar of voters, as aforesaid. The clerk or registrar of voters shall within ten days after the filing of such supplemental petition make like examination thereof as of the original petition, and upon the conclusion of such examination shall forthwith attach to such petition his certificate, properly dated, showing the result of such examination, and shall forthwith transmit such supplemental petition, except as to the signatures thereon, together with his said certificate, to the secretary of state.

When the secretary of state shall have received from one or more county clerks, or registrars of voters, a petition certified as herein provided to have been signed by the requisite number of qualified electors, he shall forthwith transmit to the county clerk or registrar of voters of every county or city and county in the state a certificate showing such fact; and such clerk or registrar of voters shall thereupon file said certificate for record in his office.

A petition shall be deemed to be filed with the secretary of state upon the date of the receipt by him of a certificate or certificates showing the said petition to be signed by the requisite number of electors of the state.

No recall petition shall be circulated or filed against any officer until he has actually held his office for at least six months; save and except it may be filed against any member of the state legislature at any time after five days from the convening and organizing of the legislature after his election.

If at any recall election the incumbent whose removal is sought is not recalled, he shall be repaid from the state treasury any amount legally expended by him as expenses of such election, and the legislature shall provide appropriation for such purpose, and no proceedings for another recall election of said incumbent shall be initiated within six months after such election.

If the governor is sought to be removed under the provisions of this article, the duties herein imposed upon him shall be performed by the lieutenant governor; and if the secretary of state is sought to be removed, the duties herein imposed upon him shall be performed by the state controller; and the duties herein imposed upon the clerk or registrar of voters, shall be performed by such registrar of voters in all cases where the office of registrar of voters exists.

The recall shall also be exercised by the electors of each county, city and county, city and town of the state, with reference to the elective officers thereof, under such procedure as shall be provided by law.

Until otherwise provided by law, the legislative body of any such county, city and county, city or town may provide for the manner of exercising such recall powers in such counties, cities and counties, cities and towns, but shall not require any such recall petition to be signed by electors more in number than twenty-five per cent of the entire vote cast at the last preceding election for all candidates for the office which the incumbent sought to be removed occupies. Nothing herein contained shall be construed as affecting or limiting the present or future powers of cities or counties or cities and counties having charters adopted under the authority given by the constitution.

In the submission to the electors of any petition proposed under this article all officers shall be guided by the general laws of the state, except as otherwise herein provided.

This article is self-executing, but legislation may be enacted to facilitate its operation, but in no way limiting or restricting the provisions of this article or the powers herein reserved. [New article; adopted October 10, 1911.]

LEGALIZING CERTAIN ACKNOWLEDGMENTS.

ACT 12—An act to legalize certain acknowledgments.

History: Approved February 25, 1897, Stats. 1897, p. 29. Prior act superseded Act of March 2, 1891, Stats. 1891, p. 20.

§ 1. All acknowledgments of deeds and other instruments of writing, whereby real estate, or any interest therein, is conveyed or may be affected, heretofore taken before court commissioners or a county clerk, and by them or him certified in the usual form, shall, from and after the passage of this act, have the same force and effect for all purposes, as though such acknowledgments had been taken before and certified by a clerk of a court of record, or a county recorder, or a notary public; and the record of such deeds or instruments, if the same shall have been admitted to record, shall hereafter impart notice to the same extent as though such acknowledgments had been taken before and certified by any one of the above-named officers, and said records and duly certified copies thereof shall have the same effect in evidence as though said deeds or instruments had been originally acknowledged and certified before and by duly authorized officers; provided, nothing in this act shall be so construed as in any manner to affect the rights of any subsequent purchaser in good faith and for value.

§ 2. This act shall take effect from and after its passage.

Acknowledgments, admissibility as evidence.—See Kerr's Cyc. Code Civil Procedure, §§ 1948, 1951.

Same—Certificate as evidence of requisite facts.—If it is in due form, and not impeached for fraud, duress or mistake, the certificate of acknowledgment of a married woman is conclusive of the facts stated therein, and can not be impeached by evidence or findings that it was taken over the telephone, the married woman being at the time three miles distant from the notary.—Banning v. Banning, 80 Cal. 271, 13 Am. St. Rep. 156, 22 Pac. 210; cited in Langenbeck v. Lewis, 140 Cal. 406, 409, 73 Pac. 1086.

Same—Certificate when not conclusive.—When a married woman, whose acknowledgment to a mortgage appears in the certificate, never in fact appeared before the notary making the certificate, and did not acknowledge the instrument, and did not know anything about its delivery to the grantees, the certificate is not conclusive, and it is error to refuse to admit evidence of the facts.—Le Mesnager v. Hamilton, 101 Cal. 532-534, 40 Am. St. Rep. 81, 35 Pac. 1054.

Same—Same.—When a married woman, whose acknowledgment to a mortgage is essential to its validity, never in fact appeared before the notary certifying to her acknowledgment, did not acknowledge the mortgage, and did not know anything about its delivery, the certificate is not conclusive, it may be impeached by parol evidence, and is a mere fabrication and is void.—Le Mesnager v. Hamilton, 101 Cal. 532-534, 40 Am. St. Rep. 81, 35 Pac. 1054.

"Drug" defined. "Food" defined.

§ 2. The term "drug," as used in this act, shall include all medicine for internal or external use, antiseptics, disinfectants, and cosmetics. The term "food," as used herein, shall include all articles used for food or drink by man, whether simple, mixed, or compound.

Drug adulteration defined. Food adulteration defined. Exceptions.

§ 3. Any article shall be deemed to be adulterated within the meaning of this act:

(a) In the case of drugs: (1) If, when sold under or by a name recognized in the United States Pharmacopoeia, it differs from the standard of strength, quality, or purity laid down therein. (2) If, when sold under or by a name not recognized in the United States Pharmacopoeia, but in which is found in some other pharmacopoeia or other standard work on materia medica, it differs materially from the standard of strength, quality, or purity laid down in such work. (3) If its strength, quality, or purity falls below the professed standard under which it is sold.

(b) In the case of food: (1) If any substance or substances have been mixed with it, so as to lower or depreciate, or injuriously affect its quality, strength, or purity. (2) If any inferior or cheaper substance or substances have been substituted wholly or in part for it. (3) If any valuable or necessary constituent or ingredient has been wholly or in part abstracted from it. (4) If it is an imitation of, or is sold under the name of, another article. (5) If it consists wholly, or in part, of a diseased, decomposed, putrid, infected, tainted, or rotten animal or vegetable substance or article, whether manufactured or not; or in the case of milk, if it is the produce of a diseased animal. (6) If it is colored, coated, polished, or powdered, whereby damage or inferiority is concealed, or if by any means it is made to appear better or of greater value than it really is. (7) If it contains any added substance or ingredient which is poisonous or injurious to health.

Proviso.

Provided, that the provisions of this act shall not apply to mixtures or compounds recognized as ordinary articles or ingredients of articles of food, if each and every package sold or offered for sale be distinctly labeled as mixtures or compounds, with the name and percent of each ingredient therein, and are not injurious to health.

Must furnish samples for analysis.

§ 4. Every person manufacturing, exposing or offering for sale, or delivering to a purchaser, any drug or article of food included in the provisions of this act, shall furnish to any person interested, or demanding the same, who shall apply to him for the purpose, and shall tender him the value of the same, a sample sufficient for the analysis of any such drug or article or food which is in his possession.

Whoever refuses to comply, upon demand, with the requirements of section four, and whoever violates any of the provisions of this act, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall be fined not exceeding one hundred nor less than twenty-five dollars, or imprisoned in the county jail not exceeding one hundred nor less than thirty days, or both. And any person found guilty of manufacturing, offering for sale, or selling, an adulterated article of food or drug under the provisions of this act shall be adjudged to pay, in addition to the penalties hereinbefore provided for, all the necessary costs and expenses incurred in inspecting and analyzing such adulterated articles of which said person may have been found guilty of manufacturing, selling, or offering for sale.

Aside from this the act is believed to have been entirely superseded by later acts.—See Acts 26, 27.

Constitutionality—Delegation of legislative power.—It was perfectly competent for the California food and drug act to adopt as a standard of purity for the enforcement of its regulations the determinations of the U. S. Department of Agriculture, and such enactment involves no obnoxious delegation of legislative power.—Cleveland, etc., Co. v. State Board of Health, 256 Fed. 376.

Same—Goods in interstate commerce.—Food or drugs, shipped in interstate commerce, are removed from the domain of interstate commerce, and are subject to the provisions of the state food and drugs act, when they are sold by a wholesaler to a retailer, in the state, and placed on sale to consumers.—Cleveland, etc., Co. v. State Board of Health, 256 Fed. 376.

Same—The federal food and drugs act does not prevent the state from prohibiting the adulteration and misbranding of food

SALE OF SOCIETY LANDS.

ACT 74—An act to authorize state agricultural societies under the control of the state to sell property held by them in fee, or held by trustees for their use, or in which they may have any interest; to prescribe a course of procedure therefor; to indemnify purchasers at such sale, and to direct how the proceeds shall be applied.

History: Approved February 25, 1897, Stats. 1897, p. 30. Amended March 16, 1899, Stats. 1899, p. 106.

State agricultural societies may sell real estate; manner of procedure.

§ 1. Whenever any State Agricultural Society under state control shall desire to sell the whole or any portion of its real estate held by it in fee, or by a trustee for its use, or in which it may have any title, interest, or claim, it shall be lawful for such society or association to file its complaint in the superior court of the county in which such lands are situated, setting forth the nature of the title under which the land to be affected by the decree of the court is held, and what claim such society or association has therein; and that it is the desire of such society or association to sell such real estate, and praying for judgment authorizing it to sell the same. In such action the trustee or trustees holding title in trust for such society or association, or their successors, or the survivor or survivors of them, or such other persons deriving title from the trustees, as the case shall require, shall be made parties defendant; and upon the service of the summons upon such defendants personally or by publication, or upon their appearance, the court shall have full jurisdiction in the premises. Such society or association may include as defendants in such action in addition to such persons or parties as appear of record to have, and other persons or parties who are known to have, some claim in or lien on the lands described in the complaint; also all other persons or parties unknown, claiming any right, interest, or lien in such land, and the plaintiff may describe such defendants in the complaint as follows:

“Also all other persons or parties, unknown, claiming any right, title, estate, lien or interest in the real estate described in the complaint herein.” Service of the summons may be had upon all such unknown persons or parties defendant by publication, as provided by law in case of nonresident defendants. All such unknown persons or parties so served shall have the same rights as are provided by law in case of all the other defendants upon whom service is made by publication or personally and the action shall proceed against such unknown persons or parties in the same manner as against the defendants who are named, upon whom service is made by publication, and with like effect; and any such unknown persons or parties who have or claim any right, estate, lien, or interest in the said property in controversy at the time of the commencement of the action, duly served as aforesaid, shall be bound and concluded by the judgment in such action as effectually as if the action was brought against such defendant by his or her name, and personal service of the summons obtained, notwithstanding any such unknown person may be under legal disability. The court shall have full power and authority to order the property sold. In case of a sale, the court shall appoint a commissioner to make the sale, and shall direct the manner in which the sale shall be conducted; provided, that when any property is held in trust by any such agricultural society or association, such property held in trust shall be sold separately from any that may be held in fee. The commissioner shall make a report of sale to the court, which, after such notice as it may deem proper, shall proceed to hear the same, and if it finds that the sale was fairly conducted, and the price bid was proportionate to the value of the land sold, it shall make and enter a decree confirming the sale, and directing the commissioner to execute a deed to the purchaser. The deed executed by said commissioner, under and in pursuance of the decree of the court, shall be valid and effectual to convey to the purchaser an absolute title in fee simple to the premises; provided, however, that before the filing of any such complaint in the superior or any other court, it shall be necessary for such agricultural society, or any person or corporation claiming the title to such land, to prepare, sign, and properly acknowledge a good and sufficient deed or deeds sufficient to vest in the state all title, interest, or claim which such society may have in and to any land to be affected by the proceedings hereby authorized to be instituted; such deed or deeds to be conditioned that the title, claim, or interest of such society embraced in such deed or deeds shall be held by the state of California in trust for the benefit of such society; which said deed or deeds shall be deposited with the state treasurer, to be by him held in escrow pending the final conclusion of such proceedings in such court. If the court in which such proceedings are had shall order such land to be sold, as herein provided for, the state treasurer shall forthwith file such deed or deeds with the county recorder of the county, or city and county, in which such land is located. If there be any liens upon or claims against the property, the court shall order them paid out of the proceeds of sale. The residue remaining, after paying the costs and expenses of sale and such liens and claims against the property as the court may order paid, shall be paid into the state treasury, where it shall remain until required for the purchase of other property for the use of such society or association, upon the order of the state controller; and it shall be drawn therefrom only upon authorization passed by the board of directors or trustees of such society or association, by and with the approval of the state board of examiners, and upon warrants duly drawn by the state controller. If, through any defects in the proceedings, or otherwise, the title should not pass, the state will indemnify the purchaser by repaying to him the amount paid by him; provided, such purchaser or purchasers shall file their claim or claims for the repayment of such purchase price with the state board of examiners within five years after the payment of such purchase price to the state treasurer in the first instance. The surplus of proceeds of sale, paid into the state treasury, shall be drawn out on certificate, signed by a majority of the directors, or governing body of such society or association, and also of the state board of examiners, stating that it is desired for the payment for other property for the use of such agricultural society; and upon receipt of such certificate, the treasurer shall pay to the said directors, or governing body, or person designated by them, all or such part of such surplus as may be required for the purchase of other property; provided, however, that if all or any portion of the real estate, and the improvements thereon held by any state agricultural society under state control, shall have been acquired in the name of such society, or of any person, association, or corporation, in trust, for the use of said, or any other agricultural society, originally, or at any time, by the use of money derived from taxation of the taxable property of any city and county, county, or city, then, and in that event, the surplus proceeds of any sale of such property shall be invested in other real estate, within the same county, or city and county, for the same purpose, and not otherwise, or elsewhere. It is expressly provided that in no event shall the state be liable for the payment of any expense, interest, or attorneys' fees, incurred by any one, on any account, by or on behalf of any such agricultural society in their behalf; and it shall be incumbent on such society to make provision for the payment of the expenses, costs, attorneys' fees, and any interest that may be necessary to be paid any purchaser, by reason of repayment of any purchase money on account of failure of title to such lands; such provision for the payment of expenses, attorneys' fees, costs, and anticipated interest to be provided for prior to the issue of any summons, or order of publication in any action contemplated by this act. [Amended March 16, 1899. Stats. 1899, p. 106.]

Exchange of real estate by state agricultural societies.

§ 2. If any real estate contemplated in the preceding section, purchased by the proceeds of taxes levied upon and collected from the taxable property of any city and county, county, or city, shall have been ordered sold, as in said section provided, and shall have been offered for sale in the mode therein specified, for a period of sixty days or more, and not all sold for want of an adequate price, the board of directors, or governing body of such society or association, shall be, and they are hereby authorized and empowered to exchange all or any part of such real estate for other land suitable for the use of such society, or association, within the same county, or city and county, upon such terms as may be reasonable and just, and the deed or deeds executed for the conveyance of such real estate in exchange shall be executed by the board of directors of such society or association, or a majority thereof, and by the commissioner appointed in the proceedings provided for in the preceding section for the sale of such property, and such exchange of property shall be subject to, and with the approval of a judge of the superior court of the county, or city and county, in which the proceedings provided for were had. [New section added March 16, 1899. Stats. 1899, p. 108.]

Same.

§ 3. In case of the exchange of any portion such property, as provided for in section 2 thereof, the real estate received in such exchange shall be subject to the indemnification of any person who shall receive any of the said real estate of said agricultural society in such exchange in case of any defect in the proceedings, or otherwise, whereby the title to such real estate of such society should not pass, and in such case of exchange the state of California shall be absolved from any obligation to pay any part of any purchase price, or value of exchanged property; provided, further, that no claims for failure of title for any reason shall be entertained after five years from the date of such exchange. [New section added March 16, 1899. Stats. 1899, p. 109.]

§ 4. This act shall take effect immediately from and after its passage.

ALIEN LAND LAW.

ACT 156—An act relating to the rights, powers and disabilities of aliens and of certain companies, associations and corporations with respect to property in this state, providing for escheats in certain cases, prescribing the procedure therein, requiring reports of certain property holdings to facilitate the enforcement of this act, prescribing penalties for violation of the provisions hereof, and repealing all acts or parts of acts inconsistent or in conflict herewith.

History: Initiative act submitted to the people at the general election of November 2, 1920, and adopted. In effect December 9, 1920.

§ 1. All aliens eligible to citizenship under the laws of the United States may acquire, possess, enjoy, transmit and inherit real property, or any interest therein, in this state, in the same manner and to the same extent as citizens of the United States, except as otherwise provided by the laws of this state.

§ 2. All aliens other than those mentioned in section one of this act may acquire, possess, enjoy and transfer real property, or any interest therein, in this state, in the manner and to the extent and for the purpose prescribed by any treaty now existing between the government of the United States and the nation or country of which such alien is a citizen or subject, and not otherwise.

§ 3. Any company, association or corporation organized under the laws of this or any other state or nation, of which a majority of the members are aliens other than those specified in section one of this act, or in which a majority of the issued capital stock is owned by such aliens, may acquire, possess, enjoy and convey real property, or any interest therein, in this state, in the manner and to the extent and for the purposes prescribed by any treaty now existing between the government of the United States and the nation or country of which such members or stockholders are citizens or subjects, and not otherwise. Hereafter all aliens other than those specified in section one hereof may become members of or acquire shares of stock in any company, association or corporation that is or may be authorized to acquire, possess, enjoy or convey agricultural land, in the manner and to the extent and for the purposes prescribed by any treaty now existing between the government of the United States and the nation or country of which such alien is a citizen or subject, and not otherwise.

§ 4. Hereafter no alien mentioned in section two hereof and no company, association or corporation mentioned in section three hereof, may be appointed guardian of that portion of the estate of a minor which consists of property which such alien or such company, association or corporation is inhibited from acquiring, possessing, enjoying or transferring by reason of the provisions of this act. The public administrator of the proper county, or any other competent person or corporation, may be appointed guardian of the estate of a minor citizen whose parents are ineligible to appointment under the provisions of this section.

On such notice to the guardian as the court may require, the superior court may remove the guardian of such an estate whenever it appears to the satisfaction of the court:

(a) That the guardian has failed to file the report required by the provisions of section five hereof; or

(b) That the property of the ward has not been or is not being administered with due regard to the primary interest of the ward; or

(c) That facts exist which would make the guardian ineligible to appointment in the first instance; or

(d) That facts establishing any other legal ground for removal exist.

§ 5. (a) The term "trustee" as used in this section means any person, company, association or corporation that as guardian, trustee, attorney-in-fact or agent, or in any other capacity has the title, custody or control of property, or some interest therein, belonging to an alien mentioned in section two hereof, or to the minor child of such an alien, if the property is of such a character that such alien is inhibited from acquiring, possessing, enjoying or transferring it.

(b) Annually on or before the thirty-first day of January every such trustee must file in the office of the secretary of state of California and in the office of the county clerk of each county in which any of the property is situated, a verified written report showing:

(1) The property, real or personal, held by him for or on behalf of such an alien or minor;

(2) A statement showing the date when each item of such property came into his possession or control;

(3) An itemized account of all expenditures, investments, rents, issues and profits in respect to the administration and control of such property with particular reference to holdings of corporate stock and leases, cropping contracts and other agreements in respect to land and the handling or sale of products thereof.

(c) Any person, company, association or corporation that violates any provision of this section is guilty of a misdemeanor and shall be punished by a fine not exceeding one thousand dollars or by imprisonment in the county jail not exceeding one year, or by both such fine and imprisonment.

(d) The provisions of this section are cumulative and are not intended to change the jurisdiction or the rules of practice of courts of justice.

§ 6. Whenever it appears to the court in any probate proceeding that by reason of the provisions of this act any heir or devisee can not take real property in this state or membership or shares of stock in a company, association or corporation which, but for said provisions, said heir or devisee would take as such, the court, instead of ordering a distribution of such property to such heir or devisee, shall order a sale of said property to be made in the manner provided by law for probate sales of property and the proceeds of such sale shall be distributed to such heir or devisee in lieu of such property.

§ 7. Any real property hereafter acquired in fee in violation of the provisions of this act by any alien mentioned in section two of this act, or by any company, association or corporation mentioned in section three of this act, shall escheat to, and become and remain the property of the state of California. The attorney general or district attorney of the proper county shall institute proceedings to have the escheat of such real property adjudged and enforced in the manner provided by section four hundred seventy-four of the Political Code and title eight, part three of the Code of Civil Procedure. Upon the entry of final judgment in such proceedings, the title to such real property shall pass to the state of California. The provisions of this section and of sections two and three of this act shall not apply to any real property hereafter acquired in the enforcement or in satisfaction of any lien now existing upon, or interest in such property, so long as such real property so acquired shall remain the property of the alien, company, association or corporation acquiring the same in such manner. No alien, company, association or corporation mentioned in section two or section three hereof shall hold for a longer period than two years the possession of any agricultural land acquired in the enforcement of or in satisfaction of a mortgage or other lien hereafter made or acquired in good faith to secure a debt.

§ 8. Any leasehold or other interest in real property less than the fee, hereafter acquired in violation of the provisions of this act by any alien mentioned in section two of this act, or by any company, association or corporation mentioned in section three of this act, shall escheat to the state of California. The attorney general or district attorney of the proper county shall institute proceedings to have such escheat adjudged and enforced as provided in section seven of this act. In such proceedings the court shall determine and adjudge the value of such leasehold or other interest in such real property, and enter judgment for the state for the amount thereof together with costs. Thereupon the court shall order a sale of the real property covered by such leasehold, or other interest, in the manner provided by section twelve hundred seventy-one of the Code of Civil Procedure. Out of the proceeds arising from such sale, the amount of the judgment rendered for the state shall be paid into the state treasury and the balance shall be deposited with and distributed by the court in accordance with the interest of the parties therein. Any share of stock or the interest of any member in a company, association or corporation hereafter acquired in violation of the provisions of section three of this act shall escheat to the state of California. Such escheat shall be adjudged and enforced in the same manner as provided in this section for the escheat of a leasehold or other interest in real property less than the fee.

§ 9. Every transfer of real property, or of an interest therein, though colorable in form, shall be void as to the state and the interest thereby conveyed or sought to be conveyed shall escheat to the state if the property interest involved is of such a character that an alien mentioned in section two hereof is inhibited from acquiring, possessing, enjoying or transferring it, and if the conveyance is made with intent to prevent, evade or avoid escheat as provided for herein.

A prima facie presumption that the conveyance is made with such intent shall arise upon proof of any of the following groups of facts:

(a) The taking of the property in the name of a person other than the persons mentioned in section two hereof if the consideration is paid or agreed or understood to be paid by an alien mentioned in section two hereof;

(b) The taking of the property in the name of a company, association or corporation, if the memberships or shares of stock therein held by aliens mentioned in section two hereof, together with the memberships or shares of stock held by others but paid for or agreed or understood to be paid for by such aliens, would amount to a majority of the membership or the issued capital stock of such company, association or corporation;

(c) The execution of a mortgage in favor of an alien mentioned in section two hereof if said mortgagee is given possession, control or management of the property.

The enumeration in this section of certain presumptions shall not be so construed as to preclude other presumptions or inferences that reasonably may be made as to the existence of intent to prevent, evade or avoid escheat as provided for herein.

§ 10. If two or more persons conspire to effect a transfer of real property, or of an interest therein, in violation of the provisions hereof, they are punishable by imprisonment in the county jail or state penitentiary not exceeding two years, or by a fine not exceeding five thousand dollars, or both.

§ 11. Nothing in this act shall be construed as a limitation upon the power of the state to enact laws with respect to the acquisition, holding or disposal by aliens of real property in this state.

§ 12. All acts and parts of acts inconsistent or in conflict with the provisions hereof are hereby repealed; provided, that—

(a) This act shall not affect pending actions or proceedings, but the same may be prosecuted and defended with the same effect as if this act had not been adopted;

(b) No cause of action arising under any law of this state shall be affected by reason of the adoption of this act whether an action or proceeding has been instituted thereon at the time of the taking effect of this act or not and actions may be brought upon such causes in the same manner, under the same terms and conditions, and with the same effect as if this act had not been adopted;

(c) This act in so far as it does not add to, take from or alter an existing law, shall be construed as a continuation thereof.

§ 13. The legislature may amend this act in furtherance of its purpose and to facilitate its operation.

§ 14. If any section, subsection, sentence, clause or phrase of this act is for any reason held to be unconstitutional, such decision shall not affect the validity of the remaining portions of this act. The people hereby declare that they would have passed this act, and each section, subsection, sentence, clause and phrase thereof, irrespective of the fact that any one or more other sections, subsections, sentences, clauses or phrases be declared unconstitutional.

DESTRUCTION OF SQUIRRELS AND GOPHERS.

ACT 249—An act to encourage the destruction of squirrels and gophers in certain counties of this state, and to provide for a bounty for the same.

History: Approved March 16, 1870, Stats. 1869-70, p. 316. Amended March 21, 1872, Stats. 1871-72, p. 474; March 23, 1872, Stats. 1871-72, p. 532; April 1, 1872, Stats. 1871-72, p. 834.

Code commissioners say this act was superseded by the county government act empowering the county supervisors to provide for the destruction of gophers, squirrels, etc.; but it is suggested that the true view should be that the act continues in force until the supervisors exercise the power, and is suspended only while there is a county ordinance in effect.

This act applied to Alameda, Contra Costa, Fresno, Stanislaus, Merced, San Joaquin, and Yolo counties. It was repealed as to Stanislaus county by an act for that purpose approved March 28, 1876, Stats. 1875-76, p. 513; and as to Alameda county, by an act approved January 11, 1872, Stats. 1871-72, p. 18; and as to Contra Costa county, by the amendatory act of April 1, 1872, Stats. 1871-72, p. 834.

DESTRUCTION OF PREDATORY ANIMALS.

ACT 251—An act providing for the control and the destruction of predatory animals, vesting in the state commissioner of horticulture the administration of the provisions hereof, and defining his powers and duties in relation thereto.

History: Approved May 2, 1919. In effect July 24, 1919. Stats. 1919, p. 178.

Control of predatory animals.

§ 1. The state commissioner of horticulture is hereby directed to investigate reports of the depredations occasioned by predatory animals, to assist in instituting control measures in localities where depredations are known to be serious and co-operate with county board of supervisors. He may co-operate with the bureau of biological survey of the United States department of agriculture, and may enter into contracts with said bureau, determining the method of such co-operation, establishing uniform control methods, and governing the supervision of all persons employed in such work.

Predatory animal fund.

§ 2. The state commissioner of horticulture is hereby authorized to accept on behalf of the state donations of money from individuals, associations, corporations, county boards of supervisors, and other agencies interested in the control of coyotes and other harmful predatory animals, all such moneys to be paid into the state treasury and credited to the predatory animal fund which is hereby created to be expended only in the control of coyotes and other harmful predatory animals in accordance with the terms and conditions fixed by the state commissioner of horticulture acting by and through the rodent control division of his office. Moneys thus made available by any county board of supervisors shall be expended solely within the boundaries of the county making the appropriation, unless otherwise authorized by the supervisors of that county.

Study and report on control measures.

§ 3. The state commissioner of horticulture is hereby directed to investigate and make a study of control measures and of existing laws of this and other states providing for the control and destruction of predatory animals, and to prepare a report, accompanied by a draft of such legislative measures as he may recommend to the legislature for adoption. APIARIES.

CONTENTS OF CHAPTER.

ACT 282. APIARY INSPECTION ACT.

APIARY INSPECTION ACT.

ACT 282—An act to promote the apicultural interests of the state of California by providing county inspectors of apiaries, and defining their duties, and providing for their compensation, and repealing the act entitled "An act to authorize the board of supervisors of the several counties of this state to appoint inspectors of apiaries, and provide for their compensation, and defining their duties, and for the further protection of bee culture," approved March 13, 1883.

History: Approved February 20, 1901, Stats. 1901, p. 13. Amended February, 10, 1903, Stats. 1903, p. 7. Former act of March 13, 1883, Stats. 1883, p. 285, repealed.

County inspector of apiaries.

§ 1. Whenever a petition is presented to the board of supervisors of any county, signed by ten or more persons, each of whom is a property-holder resident of the county, and possessor of an apiary or place where bees are kept, stating that certain or all apiaries within the county are infected with the disease known as "foul-brood," or any other disease which is infectious or contagious in its nature, and injurious to the bees, their eggs or larvae, and praying that an inspector be appointed by them, whose duty it shall be to supervise the treatment of said bees and apiaries as herein provided, the board of supervisors shall, within twenty (20) days thereafter, appoint a suitable person, who shall be a skilled bee-keeper, inspector of apiaries. Upon petition of ten persons, each of whom is a resident property holder and possessor of an apiary, the board of supervisors may remove said inspector for cause, after a hearing of the petition.

Duties of inspectors. "Foul-brood" public nuisance. Expense county charge.

§ 2. It shall be the duty of the inspector in each county to cause an inspection to be made, when he deems it necessary, of any or every apiary, or other place within his jurisdiction in which bees are kept, and if found infected with foul-brood, or any other infectious or contagious disease injurious to the bees, or their eggs or larvae, he shall notify the owner or owners, person or persons in charge, or in possession of said apiaries or places where bees are kept, that the same are infected with foul-brood, or any other disease infectious or contagious in its nature, and injurious to the bees, their eggs or larvae, and he shall require such person or persons to eradicate and remove such disease or cause of contagion within a certain time to be specified. Said notice may be served upon the person or persons, or either of them, owning or having charge, or having possession of such infected apiaries, or places where bees are kept, by any inspector, or by any person deputed by the said inspector for that purpose, or they may be served in the same manner as a summons in a civil action. Any and all such apiaries, or places where bees are kept, found infected with foul-brood, or any other infectious or contagious disease, are hereby adjudged and declared to be a public nuisance; and whenever any such nuisance shall exist at any place within his jurisdiction, or on the property of any non-resident, or on any property the owner or owners of which can not be found by the inspector, after diligent search, within the county, or upon the property of any owner or owners upon whom notice aforesaid has been served, and who shall refuse or neglect to abate the same within the time specified, it shall be the duty of the inspector to abate the same, either by treating the disease, or by destroying the infected hives, together with their combs and bees therein. The expense thereof shall be a county charge, and the board of supervisors shall allow and pay the same out of the general fund of the county.

Must keep record.

§ 3. It shall be the duty of the county inspector of apiaries to keep a record of his official acts and doings, and make a monthly report thereof to the board of supervisors; and the board of supervisors may withhold warrants for salary of said inspector until such time as said report is made.

Salary.

§ 4. The salary of the county inspector of apiaries shall be four dollars per day when actually engaged in the performance of his duties, and itemized necessary traveling expenses incurred in the performance of his duties as prescribed in this act. [Amendment of February 10, 1903. Stats. 1903, p. 7.]

Repeal of Act of 1883.

§ 5. An act entitled "An act to authorize the board of supervisors of the several counties of this state to appoint inspectors of apiaries, and provide for their compensation, and defining their duties, and for the further protection of bee-culture," approved March thirteenth, eighteen hundred and eighty-three, is hereby repealed.

Time of taking effect.

§ 6. This act shall take effect and be in force from and after its passage.

Powers of inspectors.

§ 7. The inspector of apiaries may, in his discretion, order the owner, or owners, or other person in charge of bees kept in box or other immovable or stationary comb-hives in apiaries infected with foul-brood or any other infectious or contagious disease, or within a radius of three miles of such diseased apiaries, to transfer such bees to movable frame hives within a reasonable time, to be specified in such order or notice, and in default of such transfer by the owner, or owners, or other person in charge of such bees, the inspector may destroy, or cause to be destroyed, all such hives, together with their contents, and the expense thereof shall be a county charge, as provided in section two of this act. [New section added February 10, 1903. Stats. 1903, p. 7.]

Imported bees. Must be inspected.

§ 8. All bills and vouchers, which shall be presented for supplies furnished or services rendered, shall be original bills and vouchers of the parties furnishing supplies and rendering services; provided, that no officer shall use or appropriate any money, appropriated by this act, for any purpose whatsoever, unless authorized thereto by law; and provided, that any officer, board, commission or department for whom any appropriation is made herein, may, with the permission of the board of control, and without at the time furnishing vouchers and itemized statements, draw from such appropriation, a sum not to exceed one thousand dollars for any such officer, board, commission or department. The sum so drawn shall be used as a revolving fund where cash advances are necessary, and at the close of each fiscal year, or at any other time, upon the demand of the board of control, must be accounted for and substantiated by vouchers and itemized statements submitted to and audited by the board of control and the controller.

Expenditures forbidden.

§ 5. The officers of the various departments, boards, commissions and institutions for whose benefit and support appropriations are made in this act are expressly forbidden to make any expenditure in excess of such appropriations, except the unanimous consent of the state board of control be first obtained, and a certificate, in writing, duly signed by every member of said board, of the unavoidable necessity of such expenditure; and any indebtedness attempted to be created against the state in violation of the provisions of this section shall be absolutely null and void; and shall not be allowed by said state board of control nor paid out of any state appropriations; provided, that any member of any such department, board, commissions or institutions, who shall vote for any expenditure, or create any indebtedness against the state in excess of the respective appropriations made by this act, except by the unanimous consent of the state board of control, and the certificate in this section provided to be first obtained shall be liable on his official bond for the amount of such indebtedness, to be recovered in any court of competent jurisdiction by the person or persons, firm or corporation to whom such indebtedness is owing.

Fire insurance.

§ 6. No money appropriated by this act shall be used to renew, or pay for the renewal of any fire insurance on any public building or property, nor to effect or pay for any new insurance on any public building or property, except the state printing office and its contents.

Governor's veto of certain items.

State of California,
Executive Office, Sacramento.

The foregoing general appropriation bill, Assembly Bill No. 313, is approved except for the certain items hereinafter specifically set forth and objected to in accordance with section 16, article IV of the constitution, which items are disapproved, to wit:

1. I object to the item on page nine [1317] under heading "Legislative Counsel Bureau," "For additional salaries, three thousand six hundred dollars," for the reason that said bureau will be able to accomplish its work and pay sufficient salaries without this additional appropriation.

2. I object to the item on page fifteen [1322] under the heading "University of California," "For support and maintenance of University of California, four hundred thousand dollars," for the reason that Senate Bill No. 28, which has already been signed by me, appropriates a like amount for this same purpose and this item would be a duplication thereof.

3. I object to the following items on page eighteen [1325] under the heading "State Commission of Horticulture," to wit:

"For salary of commissioner, eight thousand dollars;

"For salary of deputy commissioner, five thousand four hundred dollars;

"For salary of assistant superintendent of state insectary, three thousand six hundred dollars;

"For salary of deputy quarantine officer at San Francisco, three thousand six hundred dollars;

"For salary of deputy quarantine officer at Los Angeles, three thousand six hundred dollars"; for the reason that Assembly Bill No. 1112, which has already been signed by me, reorganizes this department and renders these appropriations unnecessary.

4. I object to the item on page eighteen [1326] under the heading "State Veterinarian," "For salary of clerk, three thousand two hundred dollars," for the same reason set forth in the preceding paragraph hereof.

5. I object to the item on page twenty [1327], "For support and salaries, Pacific Colony, forty-eight thousand dollars," for the reason that Assembly Bill No. 735, which has already been signed by me, carries sufficient appropriation for the needs of this institution.

Wm. D. Stephens,
Governor of California.

ACT 306. STATE BOARD OF ARBITRATION.

STATE BOARD OF ARBITRATION.

ACT 306—An act to provide for a state board of arbitration for the settlement of differences between employers and employees, to define the duties of said board, and to appropriate the sum of twenty-five hundred dollars therefor.

History: Approved March 10, 1891, Stats. 1891, p. 49.

Appointment of board. Term. When parties can not agree. Oath of office.

§ 1. On or before the first day of May of each year, the governor of the state shall appoint three competent persons to serve as a state board of arbitration and conciliation. One shall represent the employers of labor, one shall represent labor employees, and the third member shall represent neither, and shall be chairman of the board. They shall hold office for one year and until their successors are appointed and qualified. If a vacancy occurs, as soon as possible thereafter the governor shall appoint some one to serve the unexpired term; provided, however, that when the parties to any controversy or difference, as provided in section 2 of this act, do not desire to submit their controversy to the state board, they may by agreement each choose one person, and the two shall choose a third, who shall be chairman and umpire, and the three shall constitute a board of arbitration and conciliation for the special controversy submitted to it, and shall for that purpose have the same powers as the state board. The members of the said board or boards, before entering upon the duties of their office, shall be sworn to faithfully discharge the duties thereof. They shall adopt such rules of procedure as they may deem best to carry out the provisions of this act.

Duties of board.

§ 2. Whenever any controversy or difference exists between an employer, whether an individual, copartnership, or corporation, which, if not arbitrated, would involve a strike or lockout, and his employees, the board shall, upon application, as hereinafter provided, and as soon as practicable thereafter, visit, if necessary, the locality of the dispute and make careful inquiry into the cause thereof, hear all persons interested therein who may come before them, advise the respective parties what, if anything, ought to be done or submitted to by either, or both, to adjust said dispute and make a written decision thereof. This decision shall at once be made public, and shall be recorded upon proper books of record to be kept by the board.

Application. Notice. Costs.

§ 3. Said application shall be signed by said employer, or by a majority of his employees in the department of the business in which the controversy or difference exists, or their duly authorized agent, or by both parties, and shall contain a concise statement of the grievances complained of, and a promise to continue on in business or at work, without any lockout or strike, until the decision of said board, which must, if possible, be made within three weeks of the date of filing the application. Immediately upon receipt of said application, the chairman of said board shall cause public notice to be given of the time and place for hearing. Should the petitioners fail to keep the promise made therein, the board shall proceed no further thereupon without the written consent of the adverse party. And the party violating the contract shall pay the extra cost of the board entailed thereby. The board may then reopen the case and proceed to the final arbitration thereof as provided in section 2 hereof.

Decision binding six months.

§ 4. The decision rendered by the board shall be binding upon the parties who join in the application for six months, or until either party has given the other a written notice of his intention not to be further bound by the conditions thereof after the expiration of sixty days or any time agreed upon by the parties, which agreement shall be entered as a part of the decision. Said notice may be given to the employees by posting a notice thereof in three conspicuous places in the shop or factory where they work.

Public investigation.

§ 5. Both employers and employees shall have the right at any time to submit to the board complaints or grievances and ask for an investigation thereof. The board shall decide whether the complaint is entitled to a public investigation, and if they decide in the affirmative, they shall proceed to hear testimony, after giving notice to all parties concerned, and publish the result of their investigations as soon as possible thereafter.

Per diem.

§ 6. The arbitrators hereby created shall be paid five dollars per day for each day of actual service, and also their necessary traveling and other expenses incident to the duties of their office shall be paid out of the state treasury; but the expenses and salaries hereby authorized shall not exceed the sum of twenty-five hundred dollars for the two years.

Appropriation.

§ 7. The sum of twenty-five hundred dollars is hereby appropriated out of any money in the state treasury not otherwise appropriated, for the expenses of the board for the first two years after its organization.

§ 8. This act shall take effect and be in force from and after its passage.

A certificate may be revoked for dishonest practices, or for gross incompetency in the practice of the profession, which questions shall be determined by the district board of the district in which the person whose certificate is called in question shall reside, or shall be doing business; and upon a full investigation of the charges by the district board, an opportunity having been given the accused to be heard in his own defense or by counsel; and upon the verdict of at least four members of the district board, the board may issue its certificate to the secretary of state revoking the certificate of the person accused; and the secretary of state shall thereupon cancel such certificate. And on the cancellation of such certificate, it shall be the duty of the secretary of the district board to give notice of such cancellation to the county recorder of each county in this state, whereupon the recorder shall mark the certificate recorded in his office "Canceled."

After the expiration of six months the person whose certificate was revoked may have a new certificate issued to him by the secretary of state upon the certificate of the district board by which the certificate was revoked.

Action by architect—Proof of compliance with act not essential to recovery—Matter of defense.—Proof of compliance with the act by the architect is not essential to a right of recovery; but non-compliance is matter of defense to be set up and proved by the defendant.—Harris v. Bucher, 25 Cal. App. 380, 174 Pac. 56.

Board of architecture—Violation of duty to fix reasonable rules and regulations—Remedy.—If the board fixes unreasonable or arbitrary rules for the examination of applicants, the remedy is to apply for appropriate relief, and does not justify an attack upon the validity of the act by habeas corpus proceedings.—Ex parte McManus, 151 Cal. 331, 90 Pac. 702.

Certificate of board—Want of, does not invalidate contract.—The certificate required by the act is necessary to enable the architect to perform his contract, but the want of it at the time of its execution does not render the contract illegal and void.—Fitzhugh v. Mason, 2 Cal. App. 229, 83 Pac. 282.

Constitutionality—As to constitutionality of Medical Practice Act, see Ex parte Gerino, 143 Cal. 412, 66 L. R. A. 249, 77 Pac. 166.

Same—Board of architecture — Mode of appointment.—The provisions of the act as to the mode of appointment of the members of the state board of architecture are constitutional.—Ex parte McManus, 151 Cal. 331, 90 Pac. 702.

Same—Delegation of legislative power—Fixing standard of qualifications.—The legislature may delegate its power to regulate particular professions and fix standards of qualifications therefor to public commissions or boards, when such professions involve the exercise of skill and the possession of special knowledge and experience.—Ex parte McManus, 151 Cal. 331, 90 Pac. 702.

Same—Power of board not arbitrary.—No arbitrary power to make rules and regulations for the examination of applicants is conferred by the act, the authority given under the act is to pass such rules and regulations as are reasonably adapted to the purpose of determining the qualifications of applicants to practice the profession of architecture.—Ex parte McManus, 151 Cal. 331, 90 Pac. 702.

Same—Uniformity of operation—Classification.—The act is constitutional; the classification is reasonable, uniform in its operation, and makes no arbitrary or other discrimination between members of a class, and it does not grant special privileges or immunities to any members of a class that is not granted to all.—Ex parte McManus, 151 Cal. 331, 90 Pac. 702.

Same.—This statute can not be upheld as a police measure on the ground that it tended to promote the prosperity of those following the profession of architecture, by giving such persons who could obtain a license an advantage over others.—Binford v. Boyd, 178 Cal. 458, 174 Pac. 56.

Same.—This act can be upheld only upon the theory that the legislature believed that it was injurious to the public interest to allow unskilled and unqualified persons to prepare plans and specifications for the erection of buildings, owing to the dangers which might arise from defects in plans or construction.—Binford v. Boyd, 178 Cal. 458, 174 Pac. 56.

Construction of act.—The act qualifies the absolute prohibition against the preparing of building plans and specifications by unlicensed architects by permitting such architects to prepare such plans, provided the owner is informed that such person has no license.—Binford v. Boyd, 178 Cal. 458, 174 Pac. 56.

Same.—The act shows that it was not intended to prevent the sale of plans by a qualified person, but to prevent such sale by an unqualified person, unless the purchaser was informed of the fact.—Binford v. Boyd, 178 Cal. 458, 174 Pac. 56.

Same.—The object of the act was to secure the erection of buildings from plans prepared by persons sufficiently schooled in the profession to secure a license from the state board by complying with the state law.—Binford v. Boyd, 178 Cal. 458, 174 Pac. 56.

Corporations.—The act does not prohibit a corporation from contracting to furnish architectural plans and specifications to be prepared by third persons who are certified architects, and there is nothing in the act or the evils to be removed thereby which raises the implication that such is its effect.—Binford v. Boyd, 178 Cal. 458, 174 Pac. 56.

Same.—Can engage in business of architect by employing or engaging in certified architects under this statute, or by notifying persons with whom it contracts for building plans and specifications that the persons who prepare such plans and specifications are not certified architects.—Binford v. Boyd, 178 Cal. 458, 174 Pac. 56.

§ 2. An insolvent debtor, owing debts exceeding in amount the sum of three hundred dollars, may apply by petition to the superior court of the county, or city and county, in which he has resided for six months next preceeding the filing of his petition, to be discharged from his debts and liabilities. In his petition he shall set forth his place of residence, his inability to pay all his debts in full, his willingness to surrender all his estate and effects for the benefit of his creditors, and his desire to obtain a discharge from his debts and liabilities, and shall annex thereto a schedule and inventory, and valuation, in compliance with the provisions of this act. The filing of such petition shall be an act of insolvency, and thereupon such petitioner shall be adjudged an insolvent debtor.

§ 3. Said schedule must contain a full and true statement of all his debts and liabilities, exhibiting to the best of his knowledge and belief to whom said debts or liabilities are due, the place of residence of his creditors, and the sum due each; the nature of the indebtedness or demand, whether founded on written security, obligation, contract, or otherwise; the true cause and consideration thereof, and the time and place when and where such indebtedness accrued, and a statement of any existing pledge, lien, mortgage, judgment, or other security for the payment of the same; also, an outline of the facts touching any liability, directly or indirectly, in the nature of an act of insolvency, and thereupon such petitioner shall be adjudged an insolvent debtor.

§ 4. Said inventory must contain an accurate description of all the estate, both real and personal, of the petitioner, including his homestead, if any, and all property exempt by law from execution, and where the same is situated, and all encumbrances thereon; also, an outline of the facts touching any right of action in favor of the insolvent against any one.

§ 5. The petition, schedule, and inventory must be verified by the affidavit of the petitioner annexed thereto, and shall be in form substantially as follows: I, ———, do solemnly swear that the schedule and inventory now delivered by me contain a full, perfect, and true discovery of all the estate, real, personal, and mixed, goods and effects, to me in any way belonging; all such debts as are to me owing, or to any person or persons in trust for me, and all securities and contracts, and contracts whereby any money may hereafter become payable, or any benefit or advantage accrue to me or to my use, or to any other person or persons in trust for me; that the schedule and inventory, respectively, contain a clear outline of the facts touching any known right of action against me by any one, and an outline of the facts touching all rights of action in my favor against any one; that I have no lands, money, stock, or estate, reversion, or expectancy, besides that set forth in my schedule and inventory; that I have in no instance created or acknowledged a debt for a greater sum than I honestly and truly owe; that I have not, directly or indirectly, sold, or otherwise disposed of, or concealed, any part of my property, effects, or contracts; that I have not in any way compounded with my creditors whereby to secure the same, or to receive or to expect any profit or advantage therefrom, or to defraud or deceive any creditor to whom I am indebted in any manner. So help me God.

Order of court. Possession of sheriff. Notice of meeting of creditors. Election of assignee. Duty of sheriff.

§ 6. Upon receiving and filing such petition, schedule, and inventory, the court shall make an order declaring the petitioner insolvent, and directing the sheriff of the county, or city and county, to take possession of all the estate, real and personal, of the debtor, except such as may be by law exempt from execution, and of all his deeds, vouchers, books of account, and papers, and to keep the same safely until the appointment of an assignee. Said order shall further forbid the payment of any debts and the delivery of any property belonging to such debtor, to him, or for his use, and the transfer of any property by him; and shall further appoint a time and place for a meeting of the creditors, to prove their debts and choose an assignee of the estate, and shall designate a newspaper of general circulation published in the county, or city and county, in which the petition is filed, if there be one, and if there be none, in a newspaper published nearest to such county, or city and county, in which publication of such order shall be made. The time appointed for the election of an assignee shall not be less than eight nor more than ten days from the date of the order of adjudication. Upon the granting of said order, all proceedings against the said insolvent shall be stayed. When a receiver is appointed or an assignee chosen, as provided for in this act, the sheriff shall thereupon deliver to such receiver or assignee, as the case may be, all the property and assets of the insolvent which have come into his possession, and shall be allowed and paid as compensation for his services the same expenses and fees as would by law be collectible if the property had been levied upon and safely kept under attachment.

Publication of order. Expenses of.

§ 7. A copy of said order shall immediately be published by the clerk of said court, in a newspaper designated therein, as often as said newspaper is printed before the meeting of creditors, and be served by the clerk forthwith by the United States mail, postage prepaid, or personally, on all creditors named in the schedule. There shall be deposited in addition to the usual cost of commencing such proceedings a sum of money sufficient to defray the cost of the publication ordered by the court, and ten cents for each copy, to be mailed to or served on the creditors, which latter sum is hereby constituted the legal fee of the clerk for the mailing or service required in this section.

Claims entitled to vote for assignee. Claims barred. Exceptions to claims. Decision, effect of. Right of mortgagee to vote.

§ 8. No claim shall be entitled to a vote for the election of an assignee, unless such claim shall be placed on file in the office of the clerk of the court in which the proceedings are pending, at least two days prior to the time appointed for the election of an assignee. All claims shall be established by a statement, showing the amount and nature of the claim, and security, if any; such statement to be verified by the claimant, his agent or attorney; provided, no claim barred by the statute of limitations shall be proved or allowed against the estate of an insolvent debtor for any purpose. Any person interested in the estate of the insolvent may file exceptions to the legality or good faith of any claim, by setting forth specifically in writing his interest in the estate, and the grounds of his objection to such claim; such specifications of exceptions to be verified by the affidavit of the party objecting, his agent or attorney, setting out among other things that such exceptions are not made for the purpose of delay, or otherwise than in good faith in the best interest of said estate. Such exceptions to be filed with the clerk of the court at least one day before the time appointed for the election of an assignee; and such exception shall be heard and disposed of by the court, on affidavit or other evidence, in a summary manner, before the election of an assignee. But the decision of the court upon the exceptions as to whether the claimant shall be entitled to vote for an assignee shall not be conclusive upon the right of the party to participate in the assets of the insolvent, the enforcement of such right being subject to the laws of the state touching the establishment of claims against the estates of insolvents in case of dispute. No creditor or claimant, who holds any mortgage, pledge, or lien of any kind whatever, as security for the payment of his claim, shall be permitted to vote any part of his secured claim in the election of assignee, unless he shall first have the value of such security fixed as provided in section forty-eight of this act, or surrender to the sheriff or receiver of the estate of the insolvent, if any receiver, all such property so mortgaged or pledged, or assign such lien to such receiver or sheriff; such surrender or assignment of security or lien to be for the benefit of all creditors of the estate of the insolvent. The value of such security, if fixed by the court, shall be so fixed at least one day before the day appointed for the election of an assignee; in which event the claimant may prove his demand, as provided in this section, for any unsecured balance subject to the same exceptions as all other claims. [Amendment, Stats. 1897, p. 35.]

Adjudication, when made. Petition and bond.

§ 9. An adjudication of insolvency may be made on the petition of five or more creditors, residents of this state, whose debts or demands accrued in this state, and amount in the aggregate to not less than five hundred dollars; provided, that said creditors, or either of them, have not become creditors by assignment within thirty days prior to the filing of said petition. Such petition must be filed in the superior court of the county, or city and county, in which the debtor resides or has his place of business, and must be verified by at least three of the petitioners, setting forth that such person is about to depart from this state, with intent to defraud his creditors, or being absent from the state with such intent, remains absent; or conceals himself to avoid the service of legal process; or conceals, or is removing, any of his property to avoid its being attached or taken on legal process; or being insolvent, has suffered his property to remain under attachment, or legal process, for three days; or has confessed or offered to allow judgment in favor of any creditors; or wilfully suffered judgment to be taken against him by default; or has suffered or procured his property to be taken on legal process, with intent to give a preference to one or more of his creditors; or has made any assignment, gift, sale, conveyance, or transfer of his estate, property, rights, or credits, with intent to delay, defraud, or hinder his creditors; or in contemplation of insolvency, has made any payment, gift, grant, sale, conveyance or transfer of his estate, property, rights, or credits; or has been arrested and held in custody by virtue of any civil process of court founded on any debt or demand; and such process remains in force, and not discharged by payment, or otherwise, for a period of three days; or being a merchant or tradesman, has stopped or suspended, and not resumed payment within a period of forty days after the maturity of any written acknowledgment of indebtedness, unless the party holding such acknowledgment has, in writing, waived the right to proceed under this subdivision; or being a bank or banker, agent, broker, factor, or commission merchant, has failed for forty days to pay any moneys deposited with or received by him in a fiduciary capacity, upon demand of payment, excepting savings and loan banks, or associations who loan the money of their stockholders and depositors on real estate, and provide in their by-laws for the repayment of such deposits. The petitioners may, from time to time, amend and correct the petition, so that the same shall conform to the facts by leave of the court before which the proceedings are pending, such amendment or amendments to relate back to and be received as embraced in the original petition; but nothing in this section shall be construed to invalidate any loan of actual value, or the security therefor, made in good faith upon a security taken in good faith on the occasion of the making of such loan. The said petition shall be accompanied by a bond with two sureties in the penal sum of at least five hundred dollars, conditioned that if the debtor should not be declared an insolvent, the petitioners will pay all costs and damages, including a reasonable attorney's fee, that the debtor may sustain by reason of the filing of said petition. The court may, upon motion, direct the filing of an additional bond with different sureties, when deemed necessary.

Order to show cause. Order forbidding payment of debts or delivery of property.

§ 10. Upon the filing of such creditors' petition, the court, or a judge thereof, shall issue an order requiring such debtor to show cause, at a time and place to be fixed by said court, or judge, why he should not be adjudged an insolvent debtor, and at the same time, or thereafter, upon good cause shown therefor, said court, or judge, may make an order forbidding the payment of any debts, and the delivery of any property belonging to such debtor to him or for his use, or the transfer of any property by him.

Service of copy of petition on debtor.

§ 11. A copy of said petition, with a copy of the order to show cause, shall be served on the debtor, in the same manner as is provided by law for the service of summons in civil actions, but such service shall be made at least five days before the time fixed for the hearing; provided, that if, for any reason, the service is not made, the order may be renewed, and the time and place of hearing changed by supplemental order of the court; provided, however, that where the debtor or debtors on whom service is to be made reside out of this state; or has departed from the state; or can not, after due diligence, be found within the state; or conceals himself to avoid the service of the order to show cause, or any other process or orders in the matter; or is a foreign corporation, having no managing or business agent, cashier, or secretary within the state, upon whom service can be made, and such facts are shown to the court, or a judge thereof, by affidavit, such court or judge thereof shall make an order that the service of such order, or other process, be made by publication, in the same manner, and with the same effect, as service of summons by publication in ordinary civil actions.

Demurrer. Answer. Trial of issues.

§ 12. At the time fixed for the hearing of said order to show cause, or such other time as it may be adjourned to, the debtor may demur to the petition for the same causes as is provided for demurrer in other cases by the Code of Civil Procedure. If the demurrer be overruled, the debtor shall have five days thereafter in which to answer the petition. If the debtor answers the petition, such answer shall contain a specific denial of the material allegations of the petition controverted by him, and shall be verified in the same manner as pleadings in civil actions; and the issues raised thereon, may be tried with or without a jury, according to the practice provided by law for the trial of civil actions.

Order of court on adjudication of insolvency. Duty of sheriff. Meeting of creditors. Election of trustee.

§ 13. If the respondent shall make default, or if, after a trial, the issues are found in favor of the petitioners, the court shall make an order adjudging that said respondent is, and was at the time of filing the petition, an insolvent debtor, and that the debtor was guilty of the acts and things charged in the petition, or such of those acts and charges as the court may find to be true; and shall require said debtor, within such time as the court may designate, not to exceed three days, to file in court the schedule and inventory provided for in sections three and four of this act, duly verified, as required of a petitioning debtor; provided, that in the affidavit of the insolvent touching his property and its disposition he shall not be required to swear that he has not made any fraudulent preference, or committed any other act in conflict with the provisions of this act; but he may do so if he desires. Said order shall further direct the sheriff of the county, or city and county, where the insolvency petition is filed, or the receiver, if one has been theretofore appointed, to take possession of all the estate, real and personal, of the debtor, except such as may be by law exempt from execution and of all his deeds, vouchers, books of account, and papers, and to keep the same safely until the appointment of an assignee. Said order shall further forbid the payment of any debts, and the delivery of any property belonging to such debtor, to him, or for his use, and the transfer of any property by him; and shall further appoint a time and place for a meeting of the creditors, to prove their debts, and choose an assignee of the estate, and shall designate a newspaper of general circulation published in the county, or city and county, in which the petition is filed, if there be one; and if there be none, in a newspaper published nearest to such county, or city and county, in which publication of said order shall be made. The time appointed for the election of an assignee shall not be less than eight nor more than ten days from the date of the order of adjudication. Upon granting of said order, all proceedings against the said insolvent shall be stayed. When a receiver is appointed subsequent to adjudication, or an assignee is chosen as provided for in this act, the sheriff shall thereupon deliver to such receiver or assignee, as the case may be, all the property and assets of the insolvent which have come into his possession, and shall be allowed and paid as compensation for his service the same expenses and fees as would by law be collectible if the property had been levied upon and safely kept under attachment.

Order of court, publication and service of. Deposit of costs and fees.

§ 14. A copy of the order provided for in section thirteen of this act, shall immediately be published by the clerk of said court in the newspaper designated therein, as often as such newspaper is printed before the meeting of creditors, and upon the filing, at any time before the date set for such meeting, of the schedule required by said section thirteen, a copy of said order shall be served by the clerk forthwith by United States mail, postage prepaid, or personally, on all creditors named in said schedule. If said schedule is not filed prior to the day fixed for the election of an assignee, publication of said order as herein required shall be of itself sufficient notice to the creditors of the time and place appointed for the election of an assignee. No order of adjudication upon creditors' petition shall be entered unless there be first deposited, in addition to the usual cost of commencing said proceedings, a sum of money sufficient to defray the cost of the publication ordered by the court, and the further sum of five dollars, which is hereby constituted the legal fee of the clerk for the mailing or service of notice to creditors required in this section.

Proceedings, when dismissed.

§ 15. If, upon such hearing or trial, the issues are found in favor of the respondent, the proceedings shall be dismissed, and the respondent shall recover costs from the petitioning creditors in the same manner as on the final judgment in civil actions.

Process against absent or foreign debtors. Duty of sheriff.

§ 16. In all cases where the debtor resides out of this state, or has departed from the state; or can not, after due diligence, be found within the state; or conceals himself to avoid service of the order to show cause, or any other preliminary process or orders in the matter; or is a foreign corporation, having no managing or business agent, cashier, or secretary within the state upon whom service of orders and process can be made, and it therefore becomes necessary to obtain service of process and order to show cause, as provided in section eleven of this act, then the petitioning creditors, upon submitting the affidavits requisite to procure an order of publication, and presenting a bond in double the amount of the aggregate sum of their claims against the debtor, shall be entitled to an order of court directing the sheriff of the county, or city and county, in which the matter is pending, to take into his custody a sufficient amount of property of the debtor to satisfy the demands of the petitioning creditors, and the costs of the proceedings. Upon receiving such order of the court to take into custody property of the debtor, it shall be the duty of the sheriff to take possession of the property and effects of the debtor, not exempt from execution, to an extent sufficient to cover the amount provided for, and to prepare within three days from the time of taking such possession, a complete inventory of all the property so taken, and to return it to the court as soon as completed. The time for taking the inventory and making return thereof, may be extended for good cause shown to the court, or a judge thereof. The sheriff shall also prepare a schedule of the names and residences of the creditors, and the amount due to each, from the books of the debtor, or from such other papers or data of the debtor available that may come to his possession, and shall file such schedule list of creditors and inventory with the clerk of the court.

Rights of other creditors.

§ 17. In all cases where property is taken into the custody of the sheriff, as provided in the preceding section, if the property taken into custody by the sheriff does not embrace all the property and effects of the debtor not exempt from execution, any other creditor or creditors of the debtor, upon giving bond in double the amount of their claims, singly or jointly, shall be entitled to similar orders, and to like action, by the sheriff, until all claims be provided for, if there be sufficient property or effects. All property taken into custody by the sheriff by virtue of the giving of any such bonds shall be held by him for the benefit of all creditors of the debtor whose claims shall be duly proved, and as provided in this act. The bonds provided for in this and the preceding section to procure the order for custody of the property and the effects of the debtor, shall be conditioned that if, upon final hearing of the petition in insolvency, the court shall find in favor of the petitioners, such bonds and all of them shall be void; if the decision be in favor of the debtor, the proceedings shall be dismissed, and the debtor, his heirs, administrators, executors, or assigns, shall be entitled to recover such sum of money as shall be sufficient to cover the damages sustained by him, not to exceed the amount of the respective bonds, in any court having jurisdiction of the subject and the parties; provided, that if either the petitioners or the debtor shall appeal from the decision of the court, upon final hearing of the petition the appellant shall be required to give bond to the successful party in a sum double the amount of the value of the property in controversy, and for the costs of the proceedings. Any person interested in the estate may except to the sufficiency of the sureties on such bond, or bonds. When excepted to, the petitioner's sureties, upon notice to the person excepting of not less than two nor more than five days, must justify before a judge or county clerk in the same manner as upon bail on arrest; and upon failure to justify, or if others in their place fail to justify, at the time and place appointed, the clerk or judge shall issue an order vacating the order to take the property of the debtor into the custody of the sheriff.

Court may order sale of property.

§ 18. If in any case, proper affidavits and bonds are presented to the court, or a judge thereof, asking for and obtaining an order of publication, and an order for the custody of the property of the debtor, as provided in section sixteen and seventeen of this act, and thereafter the petitioners shall make it appear satisfactory to the court, or a judge thereof, that the interest of the parties to the proceedings will be subserved by a sale thereof, the court may order such property to be sold, in the same manner as property is sold under execution, the proceeds to be deposited in the court, to abide the result of the proceedings.

Election. Bond.

§ 19. At a meeting of the creditors in open court, those being entitled to vote, as provided by section eight, shall proceed to the election of one assignee. In electing an assignee, the opinion of the majority in amount of claims shall prevail. The clerk of the court shall keep a minute of the deliberations of said creditors, and of the election and appointment of an assignee, and enter the same upon the records of the court. The assignee shall file, within five days, unless the time be extended by the court, with the clerk, a bond, in an amount to be fixed by the court, to the state of California, with two or more sufficient sureties, approved by the court, and conditioned for the faithful performance of the duties devolving upon him. The bond shall not be void upon the first recovery, but may be sued upon from time to time by any creditor aggrieved, in his own name, until the whole penalty be exhausted. The sureties on such bond may be required to justify upon the application of any party interested, in the same manner as bail upon arrest in civil cases.

Assignee, when appointed.

§ 20. If, on the day appointed for the meeting, creditors do not attend, or refuse to elect an assignee; or if, after election, the assignee shall fail to qualify within the proper time, or if a vacancy occurs by death or otherwise, it shall be lawful for the court to appoint an assignee and fix the amount of his bond.

Assignment. Effect of.

§ 21. As soon as an assignee is elected or appointed and qualified, the clerk of the court shall, by an instrument under his hand and seal of the court, assign and convey to the assignee all the estate, real and personal, of the debtor with all his deeds, books and papers relating thereto, and such assignment shall relate back to the commencement of the proceedings in insolvency, and shall relate back to the acts upon which the adjudication was founded, and by operation of law shall vest the title to all such property and estate, both real and personal, in the assignee, although the same is then attached on mesne process, as the property of the debtor, and shall dissolve any attachment made within one month next preceding the commencement of the insolvency proceedings. Such assignment shall operate to vest in the assignee all of the estate of the insolvent debtor not exempt by law from execution. Whenever such assignment shall dissolve an attachment as herein provided, it shall also vacate any judgment made or entered, and dissolve and set aside any execution levied in any action or proceeding against the debtor commenced subsequently to the action in which the attachment is dissolved.

Authority of assignee.

§ 22. The assignee shall have the right to recover all the estate, debts, and effects of said insolvent. If, at the time of the commencement of proceedings in insolvency an action is pending in the name of the debtor, for the recovery of a debt or other thing which might or ought to pass to the assignee by the assignment, the assignee shall be allowed and admitted to prosecute the action, in like manner and with like effect as if it had been originally commenced by him. If there are any rights of action in favor of the insolvent for damages, on any account, for which an action is not pending, the assignee shall have the right to prosecute the same with the same effect as the insolvent might have done himself if no proceedings in insolvency had been instituted. If any action or proceeding at law, or in equity, in which the insolvent is defendant is pending at the time of the adjudication, the assignee may defend the same, in the same manner and with like effect as it might have been defended by the insolvent. In suit prosecuted or defended by the assignee, a certified copy of the assignment made to him shall be conclusive evidence of his authority to sue or defend.

Assignment, recording of. Preparation of schedule and inventory by assignee and service on creditors.

§ 23. The assignee shall, within one month after the making of the assignment to him, cause the same to be recorded in every county, or city and county, within this state, where any lands owned by the debtor are situated, and the record of such assignment, or a duly certified copy thereof, shall be conclusive evidence thereof in all courts. If the schedule and inventory required by this act have not been filed by the debtor the assignee shall within one month after his election, prepare and file such schedule and inventory from the best information he can obtain, and shall thereupon serve notice by United States mail, postage prepaid, or personally, on all creditors named in such schedule, whose claims have not been filed, to forthwith prove their demands.

Assignee may resign. Liability of outgoing assignee.

§ 24. Any assignee may at any time, by writing filed in court, resign his appointment, having first settled his accounts, and delivered up all the estate to such successor as the court shall appoint; provided, that if, in the discretion of the court, the circumstances of the case require it, upon good cause being shown, the court may, at any time before such settlement of account and delivery of the estate shall have been completed, revoke the appointment of such assignee and appoint another in his stead. The liability of the outgoing assignee, or of the sureties on his bond, shall not be in any manner discharged, released, or affected by such appointment of another in his stead.

Assignee, powers of, enumerated.

§ 25. The said assignee shall have power:

1. To sue in his own name and recover all the estate, debts, and things in action, belonging or due to such debtor, and no set-off or counterclaim shall be allowed in any such suit for any debt, unless it was owing to such creditor by such debtor at the time of the adjudication of insolvency.

2. To take into his possession all the estate of such debtor except property exempt by law from execution, whether attached or delivered to him, or afterward discovered, and all books, vouchers, evidence of indebtedness and securities belonging to the same.

3. In case of a non-resident absconding or concealed debtor, to demand and receive of every sheriff who shall have attached any of the property of such debtor, or who shall have in his possession any moneys arising from the sale of such property, all such property and moneys, on paying him his lawful costs and charges for attaching and keeping the same.

4. From time to time to sell at public auction all the estate, real and personal, vested in him as such assignee, which shall come to his possession and as ordered by the court.

5. On such sales to execute the necessary conveyances and bills of sale.

6. To redeem all valid mortgages and conditional contracts, and all valid pledges of personal property, and to satisfy any judgments which may be an encumbrance on any property sold by him, or to sell such property, subject to such mortgage, contracts, pledges, or judgments.

7. To settle all matters and accounts between such debtor and his debtors, subject to the approval of the court.

8. Under the order of the court appointing him, to compound with any person indebted to such debtor, and thereupon to discharge all demands against such person.

9. To have and recover from any person receiving a conveyance, gift, transfer, payment, or assignment, made contrary to any provision of this act, the property thereby transferred or assigned; or in case a redelivery of the property can not be had, to recover the value thereof, with damages for the detention.

Insolvent to deliver books, vouchers, notes, etc., to court.

§ 26. The insolvent shall, either before or on the day appointed for the meeting of creditors, deliver to the court all the commercial or account books he may have kept, which books shall be deposited in the clerk's office of said court. Said insolvent shall also deliver to the court at the same time, all vouchers, notes, bonds, bills, securities, or other evidences of debt, in any manner relating to or having any bearing upon or connection with the property surrendered by said debtor, and all such papers or securities shall be deposited in the clerk's office of said court, and the clerk shall hand them over, together with the books of the insolvent, to the assignee who may be appointed.

Embezzlement of property. Liability.

§ 27. If any person, before the assignment is made, having notice of the commencement of the proceedings in insolvency, or having reason to believe that insolvency proceedings are about to be commenced, embezzles or disposes of any of the moneys, goods, chattels, or effects of the insolvent, he is chargeable therewith, and liable to an action by the assignee for double the value of the property so embezzled or disposed of, to be recovered for the benefit of the estate.

Penalties for concealment, embezzlement, etc., of property.

§ 28. The same penalties, forfeitures, and proceedings by citation, examination and commitment shall apply on behalf of an assignee against persons suspected of having concealed, embezzled, conveyed away, or disposed of any property of the debtor, or of having possession or knowledge of any deeds, conveyances, bonds, contracts, or other writings which relate to any interest of the debtor in any real or personal estate as provided in the case of estates of deceased persons in sections one thousand four hundred and fifty-nine, one thousand four hundred and sixty, and one thousand four hundred and sixty-one of the Code of Civil Procedure.

Estate to be converted into money. No private sale without order. Petition for sale, notice of.

§ 29. The assignee shall as speedily as possible convert the estate, real and personal, into money. He shall keep a regular account of all moneys received by him as assignee to which every creditor or other person interested therein may, at all reasonable times, have access. No private sale of any property of the estate of an insolvent debtor shall be valid unless made under the order of the court, upon a petition in writing, which shall set forth the facts showing the sale to be necessary. Upon filing the petition, notice of at least ten days shall be given by publication and mailing, in the same manner as is provided in section seven of this act. If it appears that a private sale is for the best interests of the estate, the court shall order it to be made.

When court may order sale of portion of estate.

§ 30. In all cases where there has been personal service of the order to show cause, or voluntary appearance after order of publication, when it appears to the satisfaction of the court that the estate of the debtor, or any part thereof, is of a perishable nature, or is liable to deteriorate in value, or is disproportionately expensive to keep, the court may order the same to be sold in such manner as may be deemed most expedient, under the direction of the sheriff, receiver, or assignee, as the case may be, who shall hold the funds received in place of the property sold until further order of the court.

Outstanding debts or property, sale of. Action for damages, compromise of.

§ 31. Outstanding debts, or other property due or belonging to the estate, which can not be collected and received by the assignee without unreasonable or inconvenient delay or expense, may be sold and assigned in like manner as the remainder of the estate. If there are any rights of action for damages in favor of the insolvent prior to the commencement of the insolvency proceedings, the same may, with the approval of the court, be compromised.

Assignees to be allowed necessary expenses. Rate of commissions allowed.

§ 32. Assignees shall be allowed all necessary expenses in the care, management, and settlement of the estate, and shall be entitled to charge and receive for their services commissions upon all sums of money coming to their hands and accounted for by them, as follows: For the first thousand dollars, at the rate of seven per centum; for all above that sum and not exceeding ten thousand dollars, at the rate of five per centum; and for all above that sum, at the rate of four per centum; provided, however, that if the person acting as assignee was receiver of the property of the estate pending the election of an assignee, any compensation allowed him as such receiver shall be deducted from the compensation to which he otherwise would be entitled as such assignee.

Exhibit by assignee to court. Exceptions.

§ 33. At the expiration of three months from the appointment of the assignee in any case, or as much earlier as the court may direct, a time and place shall be fixed by the court at which the assignee shall exhibit to the court and to the creditors, and file just and true accounts of all his receipts and payments, verified by his oath, and a statement of the property outstanding, specifying the cause of its outstanding, also what debts or claims are yet undetermined, and stating what sum remains in his possession, and shall accompany the same with an affidavit that notice by mail has been given to all creditors named in the schedule filed by the debtor or the assignee that said accounts will be heard at a time specified in such notice, which time shall not be less than ten nor more than fifteen days from the filing of such accounts. At the hearing the court shall audit the accounts, and any person interested may appear and file exceptions thereto and contest the same, and thereupon the court may order a dividend paid to those creditors whose claims have been proven and allowed. Thereafter, further accounts, statements, and dividends shall be made in like manner as often as occasion requires; provided, however, that it shall be the duty of the assignee to file his final account within one year from the date of the order of adjudication, unless the court, after notice to creditors, shall grant further time, upon a satisfactory showing that great loss and waste would result to the estate by reason of the conversion of the property into money within said time, or that it has been impossible to do so by reason of litigation.

Account by assignee, filing of. Distribution of assets.

§ 34. The court shall at any time, upon the motion of any two or more creditors, require the assignee to file his account in the manner and upon giving the notice specified in the preceding section, and if he has funds subject to distribution, he shall be required to distribute them without delay.

Creditors to share pro rata. Bail, sureties or guarantors, rights of.

§ 35. All creditors whose debts are duly proved and allowed shall be entitled to share in the property and estate pro rata without priority or preference whatever, other than as provided in this act and in section one thousand two hundred and four of the Code of Civil Procedure; provided, that any debt proved by any person liable as bail, surety, guarantor, or otherwise, for the debtor, shall not be paid to the person so proving the same until satisfactory evidence shall be produced of the payment of such debt by such person so liable; and the share to which such debt would be entitled may be paid into court, or otherwise held, for the benefit of the party entitled thereto, as the court may direct.

Dividends, not delayed by subsequent proof of debts. Rights of subsequent creditors.

§ 36. Whenever any dividend has been duly declared, the distribution of it shall not be stayed or affected by reason of debts being subsequently proved, but the creditors proving such debts shall be entitled to a dividend equal to those already received by the other creditors, before any further dividend is made to the latter; provided, the failure to prove such claim shall not have resulted from his own neglect.

Refusal to account or pay dividends, discharge of assignee. Duty of discharged assignee.

§ 37. Should the assignee refuse or neglect to render his accounts as required by sections thirty-three and thirty-four of this act, or pay over a dividend when he shall have, in the opinion of the court, sufficient funds for that purpose, the court shall immediately discharge such assignee from his trust, and shall have power to appoint another in his place. The assignee so discharged shall forthwith deliver over to the assignee appointed by the court all the funds, property, books, vouchers, or securities belonging to the insolvent, without charging or retaining any commission or compensation for his personal services.

Final account and dividend.

§ 38. Preparatory to the final account and dividend, the assignee shall submit his account to the court, and file the same, and shall at the time of filing accompany the same with an affidavit that a notice by mail has been given to all creditors who have proved their claims, that he will apply for a settlement of his account and for a discharge from all liability as assignee, at a time specified in such notice, which time shall not be less than ten or more than twenty days from such filing. At the hearing the court shall audit the account, and any person interested may appear and file exceptions in writing and contest the same. The court thereupon shall settle the account, and order a dividend of any portion of the estate, remaining undistributed, and shall discharge the assignee, subject to compliance with the order of the court, from all liability as assignee to any creditor of the insolvent.

ARTICLE V.

Partnerships. Corporations.

§ 39. INSOLVENCY OF PARTNERSHIPS.

§ 40. PROVISIONS OF ACT APPLICABLE TO CORPORATIONS.

Insolvency of partnerships.

§ 39. Two or more persons who are partners in business, or the surviving partner of any firm, may be adjudged insolvent, either on the petition of such partners, or any one of them, or on the petition of five or more creditors of the partnership, qualified as provided for in section nine of this act, in which case an order shall be issued in the manner provided by this act, upon which all the joint stock and property of the partnership, and also all the separate estate of each of the partners, shall be taken, excepting such parts thereof as may be exempt by law; and all the creditors of the company, and the separate creditors of each partner, shall be allowed to prove their respective debts; and the assignee shall be chosen by the creditors of the copartnership, and shall also keep separate accounts of the joint stock or property of the copartnership, and the separate estate of each member thereof, and after deducting out of the whole amount received by such assignee the whole amount of the expenses and disbursements, the net proceeds of the joint stock shall be appropriated to pay the creditors of the copartnership, and the net proceeds of the separate estate of each partner shall be appropriated to pay his separate creditors; and if there shall be any balance of the separate estate of any partner after the payment of his separate debts, such balance shall be added to the joint stock for the payment of the joint creditors; and if there shall be any balance of the joint stock after the payment of the joint debts, such balance shall be divided and appropriated to and among the separate estate of the several partners according to their respective right and interest therein, and as it would have been if the partnership had been dissolved without any insolvency; and the sum so appropriated to the separate estate of each partner shall be applied to the payment of his separate debts, and the certificate of discharge shall be granted or refused to each partner as the same would or ought to be if the proceedings had been by or against him alone under this act; and in all other respects the proceedings as to the partners shall be conducted in the like manner as if they had been commenced and prosecuted by or against one person alone. If such copartners reside in different counties, the court in which the petition is first filed shall retain exclusive jurisdiction over the case. If the petition be filed by less than all the partners of a copartnership, those partners who do not join in the petition shall be ordered to show cause why they, as individuals, and said copartnership, should not be adjudged to be insolvent, in the same manner as other debtors are required to show cause upon a creditor's petition, as in this act provided; and no order of adjudication shall be made in said proceedings until after the hearing of said order to show cause; provided, that in case of proceedings by or against surviving partners, as such, only the partnership interest of deceased partners shall be subject to the control of the court in the insolvency proceedings; but the surviving partner, assignee, or creditors may pursue the property of the deceased partners in the court having jurisdiction thereof in probate proceedings.

Provisions of act applicable to corporations.

§ 40. The provisions of this act shall apply to corporations, and upon the petition of any officer of any corporation, duly authorized by the vote of the board of directors or trustees, at a meeting specially called for that purpose, or by the assent in writing of a majority of the directors or trustees as the case may be, or upon a creditor's petition made and presented in the manner provided in respect to debtors, the like proceedings shall be had and taken as are provided in the case of debtors. All the provisions of the act which apply to the debtor, or set forth his duties, examination, and liabilities, or prescribe penalties, or relate to fraudulent conveyances, payments and assignments, apply to each and every officer of any corporation in relation to the same matters concerning the corporation. Whenever any corporation is declared insolvent, all its property and assets shall be distributed to the creditors; but no discharge shall be granted to any corporation.

Proof of debt from debtor.

§ 41. All debts due and payable from the debtor at the time of the adjudication of insolvency, and all debts then existing but not payable until future time, a rebate of interest being made when no interest is payable by the terms of the contract, may be proved against the estate of the debtor.

Claims, proof and allowance of. Trial of.

§ 42. All demands against the debtor for or on account of any goods or chattels wrongfully taken, converted, or withheld by him, may be proved and allowed as debts to the amount of the value of the property so withheld, from the time of the conversion; provided, however, that if the assignee, or any creditor whose claim has been proven against the estate, shall request it in writing, the court shall require the matter of such claim for damages to be tried as an ordinary action at law, to determine the liability of the debtor for such damages.

Proof when debtor is bound as indorser, surety, etc.

§ 43. If the debtor shall be bound as indorser, surety, bail, or guarantor, upon any bill, bond, note, or other specialty or contract, or for any debt of any person, and his liability shall not have become absolute until the adjudication of insolvency, the creditor may prove the same after such liability shall have become fixed, and before the final dividend shall have been declared.

Contingent debts, how allowed.

§ 44. In all cases of contingent debts and contingent liabilities, contracted by the debtor, and not herein otherwise provided for, the creditor may make claim therefor and have his claim allowed, with the right to share in the dividends, if the contingency shall happen before the order of the final dividend; or he may, at any time, apply to the court to have the present value of the debt or liability ascertained and liquidated, which shall be done in such manner as the court shall order, and shall be allowed to prove for the amount so ascertained.

Bail, surety, guarantor, etc., proof of debt by.

§ 45. Any person liable as bail, surety, or guarantor, or otherwise, for the debtor, who shall have paid the debt, or any part thereof, in discharge of the whole, shall be entitled to prove such debt, or to stand in the place of the creditor, if he shall have proved the same, although such payments shall have been made after the proceedings in insolvency were commenced; and any person so liable for the debtor, and who has not paid the whole of said debt, but is still liable for the same, or any part thereof, may, if the creditor shall fail or omit to prove such debt, prove the same in the name of the creditor.

Fixed liability, proving proportionate part.

§ 46. Where the debtor is liable to pay rent, or other debt falling due at fixed and stated periods, the creditor may prove for a proportionate part thereof up to the time of the insolvency, as if the same became due from day to day, and not at such fixed and stated periods.

Set-off or counter-claim.

§ 47. In all cases of mutual debts and mutual credits between the parties, the account between them shall be stated, and one debt set off against the other, and the balance only shall be allowed and paid. But no set-off or counterclaim shall be allowed of a claim in its nature not provable against the estate; provided, that no set-off or counterclaim shall be allowed in favor of any debtor to the insolvent of a claim purchased by or transferred to him after the filing of the petition by or against him.

Mortgagee, pledgee, etc., conditions of admission as creditor.

§ 48. When a creditor has a mortgage, or pledge of real or personal property of the debtor, or a lien thereon, for securing the payment of a debt owing to him from the debtor, he shall be admitted as a creditor only for the balance of the debt, after deducting the value of such property, to be ascertained by agreement between him and the receiver, if any, and if no receiver, then upon such sum as the court, or a judge thereof, may decide to be fair and reasonable, before the election of an assignee, or by a sale thereof, to be made in such manner as the court, or judge thereof, shall direct; or the creditor may release or convey his claim to the receiver, if any, or if no receiver then to the sheriff, before the election of an assignee, or to the assignee if an assignee has been elected, upon such property, and be admitted to prove his whole debt. If the value of the property exceeds the sum for which it is so held as security, the assignee may release to the creditor the debtor's right of redemption thereon on receiving such excess; or he may sell the property, subject to the claim of the creditor thereon, and in either case the assignee and creditor, respectively, shall execute all deeds and writings necessary or proper to consummate the transaction. If the property is not sold or released, and delivered up, or its value fixed, the creditor shall not be allowed to prove any part of his debt.

Creditor proving claim barred from action. Valid lien. Unreasonable delay. Final judgment.

§ 49. No creditor, proving his debt or claim, shall be allowed to maintain any suit at law or in equity therefor, against the debtor, but shall be deemed to have waived all right of action and suit against him, and all proceedings already commenced, or unsatisfied, judgment already obtained thereon, shall be deemed to be discharged and surrendered thereby; and after the debtor's discharge, upon proper application and proof to the court having jurisdiction, all such proceedings shall be dismissed, and such unsatisfied judgments satisfied of record; provided, that no valid lien existing in good faith thereunder shall be thereby affected; and further provided, that a creditor proving his debt or claim shall not be held to have waived his right of action or suit against the debtor where a discharge has been refused or the proceedings have been determined without a discharge. And no creditor whose debt is provable under this act shall be allowed, after the commencement of proceedings in insolvency, to prosecute to final judgment any action therefor against the debtor until the question of the debtor's discharge shall have been determined, and any such suit or proceeding shall, upon the application of the debtor or of any creditor, or the assignee, be stayed to await the determination of the court in insolvency on the question of discharge; provided, that there be no unreasonable delay on the part of the debtor or the petitioning creditors, as the case may be, in prosecuting the case to its conclusion; and provided also, that if the amount due the creditor is in dispute, the suit, by leave of the court, in insolvency may proceed to judgment for the purpose of ascertaining the amount due, which amount may be proven in insolvency, but execution shall be stayed as aforesaid; provided, further, that where a valid lien or attachment has been acquired or secured in any such action, and an undertaking been offered and accepted in lieu of such lien or attachment, the case may be prosecuted to final judgment for the purpose of fixing the liability of the sureties upon such undertaking, but execution against the insolvent upon such judgment shall be stayed. [Amendment, Stats. 1897, p. 36.]

Fraudulent preference. Proof of claim. Dividends.

§ 50. Any person who shall have accepted any preference, having reasonable cause to believe that the same was made or given by the debtor contrary to any provision of this act, shall not prove the debt or claim on account of which the preference was made or given; nor shall he receive any dividend thereon until he shall first have surrendered to the assignee all property, money, benefit, or advantage received by him under such preference.

Court may examine debtor, etc.

§ 51. The court may, upon the application of the assignee, or of any creditor of the debtor, or without any application, before or after adjudication in insolvency, examine upon oath the debtor in relation to his property and his estate and any person tendering or making proof of claims, and may subpoena witnesses to give evidence relating to such matters. All examinations of witnesses shall be had and depositions shall be taken in accordance with and in the same manner as is provided by the Code of Civil Procedure.

When debtor may apply for discharge. Notice of application.

§ 52. At any time after the expiration of three months from the adjudication of insolvency, but not later than one year from such adjudication, unless the property of the insolvent has not been converted into money, the debtor may apply to the court for a discharge from his debts, and the court shall thereupon order notice to be given to all creditors who have proved their debts, to appear, on a day appointed for that purpose, and show cause why a discharge should not be granted to the debtor; said notice shall be given by mail and by publication at least once a week, for four weeks, in a newspaper published in the county, or city and county, or, if there be none, in a newspaper published nearest such county, or city and county; provided, that if no debts have been proven, such notice shall not be required.

Discharge, when not granted.

§ 53. No discharge shall be granted, or if granted shall be valid, if the debtor shall have sworn falsely in his affidavit annexed to his petition, schedule, or inventory, or upon any examination in the course of the proceedings in insolvency, in relation to any material fact concerning his estate, or his debts, or to any other material fact; or if he has concealed any part of his estate or effects, or any books or writing relating thereto; or if he has been guilty of fraud or wilful neglect in the care, custody, or delivery to the assignee of the property belonging to him at the time of the presentation of his petition and inventory, excepting such property as he is permitted to retain under the provisions of this act, or if he has caused or permitted any loss or destruction thereof; or if, within one month before the commencement of such proceedings, he has procured his lands, goods, moneys, or chattels to be attached, or seized on execution; or if he has destroyed, mutilated, altered, or falsified any of his books, documents, papers, writings, or securities, or has made, or been privy to the making of, any false or fraudulent entry in any book of account or other document with intent to defraud his creditors; or if he has given any fraudulent preference, contrary to the provisions of this act, or made any fraudulent payment, gift, transfer, conveyance, or assignment of any part of his property, or has lost any part thereof in gaming, or has admitted a false or fictitious debt against his estate; or, if having knowledge that any person has proven such false or fictitious debt, he has not disclosed the same to his assignee within one month after such knowledge; or if, being a merchant or tradesman, he has not, subsequently to the passage of this act, kept proper books of account; or if he, or any other person on his account, or in his behalf, has influenced the action of any creditor, at any stage of the proceedings, by any pecuniary consideration or obligation; or if he has, in contemplation of becoming insolvent, made any pledge, payment, transfer, assignment, or conveyance of any part of his property, directly or indirectly, absolutely or conditionally, for the purpose of preferring any creditor or person having a claim against him, or who is, or may be, under liability for him, or for the purpose of preventing the property from coming into the hands of the assignee, or of being distributed under this act in satisfaction of his debts; or if he has been convicted of any misdemeanor under this act, or has been guilty of fraud contrary to the true intent of this act; or, in case of voluntary insolvency, has received the benefits of this or any other act of insolvency or bankruptcy, within three years next preceding his application for discharge; or if insolvency proceedings in which he could have applied for a discharge are pending by or against him in the superior court of any other county, or city and county, in the state. And before any discharge is granted, the debtor shall take and subscribe an oath to the effect that he has not done, suffered, or been privy to any act, matter, or thing specified in this act, as grounds for withholding such discharge or as invalidating such discharge, if granted.

Opposition to discharge.

§ 54. Any creditor opposing the discharge of a debtor shall file specifications in writing, of the ground of his opposition, and after the debtor has filed and served his answer thereto, which pleadings shall be verified, the court shall try the issue or issues raised, with or without a jury, according to the practice provided by law in civil actions.

Certificate of discharge.

§ 55. If it shall appear to the court that the debtor has in all things conformed to his duty under this act, and that he is entitled under the provisions thereof to receive a discharge, the court shall grant him a discharge from all his debts, except as hereinafter provided, and shall give him a certificate thereof, under the seal of the court, in substance as follows: In the superior court of the county of ———, state of California. Whereas, ——— has been duly adjudged an insolvent under the insolvent laws of this state, and appears to have conformed to all the requirements of law in that behalf, it is therefore ordered by the court that said ——— be forever discharged from all debts and claims, which by said insolvent laws are made provable against his estate, and which existed on the ——— day of ———, on which the petition of adjudication was filed by (or against) him, excepting such debts, if any, as are by said insolvent laws excepted from the operation of a discharge in insolvency. Given under my hand, and the seal of the court, this ——— day of ———, A. D. ——. Attest: ———, clerk.

(Seal) ———, judge.

Discharge releases debtor from what. Proviso.

§ 57. A discharge, duly granted under this act, shall, with the exceptions aforesaid, release the debtor from all claims, debts, liabilities, and demands, set forth in his schedule, or which were or might have been proved against his estate in insolvency, and may be pleaded by a simple averment that on the day of its date such discharge was granted to him, setting forth the same in full, and the same shall be a complete bar to all suits brought on any such debts, claims, liabilities, or demands, and the certificate shall be prima facie evidence in favor of such fact and of the regularity of such discharge; provided, however, that any creditor of said debtor, whose debt was proved or provable against the estate in insolvency, who shall see fit to contest the validity of such discharge on the ground that it was fraudulently obtained, and who has discovered the facts constituting the fraud subsequent to the discharge, may, at any time within two years after the date thereof, apply to the court which granted it to set it aside and annul the same, or if the same shall have been pleaded, the effect thereof may be avoided collaterally upon any such grounds.

§ 59. fer is not made in the usual and ordinary course of business of the debtor, or if such seizure or sequestration is made under a judgment which the debtor has confessed or offered to allow, that fact shall be prima facie evidence of fraud. All assignments, transfers, conveyances, mortgages, or encumbrances of real estate shall be deemed, under this section, to have been made at the time the instrument conveying or affecting such realty was filed for record in the county recorder's office of the county, or city and county, where the same is situated.

But no property or homestead shall be set apart, as aforesaid, until it is first proved that notice of the hearing of the application therefor has been duly given by the clerk, by causing to be posted in at least three public places in the county at least ten days prior to the time of such hearing, setting forth the name of said insolvent debtor, and the time and place appointed for the hearing of such application, which said notice shall briefly indicate the homestead sought to be exempted or the property sought to be set aside; and the decree must show that such proof was made to the satisfaction of the court, and shall be conclusive evidence of that fact.

Receiver, appointment of. Account, report, compensation.

§ 67. Upon the filing of either a voluntary or involuntary petition in insolvency, a receiver may be appointed by the court in which the proceeding is pending, or by a judge thereof, at any time before the election of an assignee, when it appears by the verified petition of a creditor that the assets of the insolvent, or a considerable portion thereof, have been pledged, mortgaged, transferred, assigned, conveyed, or seized, on legal process, in contravention or violation of the provisions of section fifty-nine of this act, and that it is necessary to commence an action to recover the same. The appointment, oath, undertaking and powers of such receiver shall in all respects be regulated by the general laws of the state applicable to receivers. When an assignee is chosen, and has qualified, the receiver shall forthwith return to court an account of the assets and property which have come into his possession, and of his disbursements, and a report of all actions or proceedings commenced by him for the recovery of any property belonging to the estate, and the court shall thereupon summarily hear and settle the receiver's account, and shall allow him a just compensation for his services, including a reasonable attorney's fee, whereupon the receiver shall deliver all property, assets, or effects remaining in his hands, to the assignee, who shall be substituted for the receiver in all pending actions or proceedings.

Sections of Code of Civil Procedure relating to contempts applicable.

§ 68. All sections of the Code of Civil Procedure of the state of California relating to contempts are hereby made applicable to all proceedings under this act.

Attachment. Costs a preferred debt. Award of costs.

§ 69. When an attachment has been made and is not dissolved before the commencement of proceedings in insolvency, or is dissolved by an undertaking given by the defendant, if the claim upon which the attachment suit was commenced is proved against the estate of the debtor, the plaintiff may prove the legal costs and disbursements of the suit, and of the keeping of the property, and if the levying of said attachment and the putting of the sheriff's keeper in charge has had the effect of preserving intact the assets of said insolvent, and the general creditors have been benefited thereby, the amount of costs allowed shall be a preferred debt. In all contested matters in insolvency the court may, in its discretion, award costs to either party, to be paid by the other, or to either or both parties, to be paid out of the estate, as justice and equity may require; and in awarding costs, the court may issue execution therefor. In all involuntary cases under this act, the court shall allow the petitioning creditors out of the estate of the debtor, if any adjudication of insolvency be made, as a preferred claim, all legal costs and disbursements incurred by them in that behalf. [Amendment approved March 25, 1911; Stats. 1911, p. 489.]

Dismissal of petition where it is voluntary.

§ 70. The court may, upon the application of the debtor, if it be a voluntary petition, or of the petitioning creditors, if a creditor's petition, dismiss the petition and discontinue the proceedings at any time before the appointment of an assignee upon giving ten days' notice to the creditors, in the same manner that notice of the time and place of an election of an assignee is given, if no creditor files written objections to such dismissal; provided, however, that by consent of all creditors the proceedings may be dismissed at any time. After the appointment of an assignee, no dismissal shall be made without the consent of all parties interested in or affected thereby.

Appeals.

§ 71. An appeal may be taken to the supreme court in the following cases:

1. From an order granting or refusing an adjudication of insolvency;
2. From an order made at the hearing of any account of an assignee, allowing or rejecting a creditor's claim, in whole or in part;
3. From an order granting or overruling a motion for a new trial;
4. From an order settling an account of an assignee;
5. From an order against or in favor of setting apart homestead or other property claimed as exempt from execution;
6. From an order granting or refusing a discharge to the debtor.

The notice, undertaking, and procedure on appeal shall conform to the general laws of this state regulating appeals in civil cases, except that when an assignee has given an official undertaking and appeals from a judgment or order in insolvency, his official undertaking stands in the place of an undertaking on appeal, and the sureties therein are liable on such undertaking; provided, however, that an appeal from an order granting or refusing an adjudication of insolvency shall not stay proceedings unless a written undertaking be entered into on the part of the appellant, with at least two sureties, in such an amount as the court, or a judge thereof, may direct, but not less than double the value of the property involved, to the effect that if the order appealed from be affirmed, or the appeal dismissed, appellant will pay all costs and damages which the adverse parties may sustain by reason of the appeal and the stay of proceedings.

Repeal of prior act.

Mr. Justice Speer says, In re Macon Sash, etc., Co., 112 Fed. 323, the proposition that the federal bankruptcy law suspends state bankruptcy act is as clear upon authority as it must inevitably be by the logic of the supremacy of the national law. Among the numerous authorities sustaining this point, see Barber v. Mexico International Co., 73 Conn. 587, 48 Atl. 758; Harbaugh v. Costello, 184 Ill. 110, 116, 75 Am. St. Rep. 147, 56 N. 44. Jurisdiction attaches upon the filing of the petition, properly signed and verified, and a service of a copy thereof with a copy of the order to show cause, on the debtor.—Luhrs v. Kelly, 67 Cal. 289, 7 Pac. 696.

45. Jurisdictional facts—Proof of losses.—The requirement as to proof of losses sustained by the insolvent, as required by section 36 of the act (1852), is not jurisdictional.—Langenour v. French, 34 Cal. 92.

cause.—Ohleyer v. Bunce, 2 Cal. Unrep. 252, 3 Pac. 105.

52. Jurisdiction not lost by discharge.—Discharge and settlement of accounts is not such a final judgment or order as to affect the jurisdiction of the court.—Rued v. Cooper, 109 Cal. 682, 34 Pac. 98.

53. Jurisdiction is one quasi in rem.—Proceeding in insolvency is one quasi in rem, and the property of the insolvent passes on the adjudication under the control of the court, and the jurisdiction of the court is not lost by the court where there is any property, or right of action remaining unadministered.—Rued v. Cooper, 109 Cal. 682, 34 Pac. 98.

54. Where petition does not show fraud.—Where the insolvent is guilty of fraud the act denies its benefits to him; but if the petition does not show fraud on its face, the court has jurisdiction to proceed and distribute the fund, even though the insolvent debtor should have been guilty of fraud and not entitled to his discharge.—Cohen v. Barrett, 5 Cal. 195.

55. Jurisdiction of custody of estate when federal act becomes effective not lost when previously acquired.—Custody of estate of insolvent is acquired from the order under section 9, staying further judicial proceedings against it, and at that time court acquires jurisdiction to conduct the proceedings to a conclusion without being affected by the federal law.—Martin v. Berry, 37 Cal. 208.

56. Jurisdiction of equity to compel assignee to execute his trust.—The court in equity has jurisdiction to compel the assignee to execute his trust, and the creditor's remedy under the act is not exclusive.—Sanderson v. McIntosh, 65 Cal. 36, 2 Pac. 728.

57. Proceedings are not sua iuris in law or equity, and jurisdiction is vested in the district courts independent of their general jurisdiction, as of a new remedy created by statute.—Cohen v. Barrett, 5 Cal. 195.

58. Several petitions of partners.—The insolvency court acquires no jurisdiction over the partnership property through the several petitions of the individual partners, and the discharge of the latter can not operate in favor of the partnership.—Glenn v. Arnold, 56 Cal. 631; Freeman v. Campbell, 56 Cal. 639.

59. Debts of banker.—Where the petition shows on its face that the indebtedness as to which the petitioner is seeking a discharge was incurred in the business of banking, the court has no jurisdiction of the proceedings.—Cohen v. Barrett, 5 Cal. 195, 210.

c. Parties.

60. No parties except insolvent at filing of petition.—There are no parties except the petitioner, at the time of an adjudication in insolvency, nor until after one or more creditors shall have made and filed proofs of claims, and such an adjudication and an order fixing the day for the election of an assignee did not violate section 170 of the Code of Civil Procedure, because of the election as assignee of the judge's son-in-law.—Chinette v. Conklin, 105 Cal. 465, 38 Pac. 1107.

61. Insolvent, who is.—The insolvent act is for the relief of insolvents, and one whose assets are 40 per cent above his liabilities is not an insolvent.—Hunt v. Creditors, 9 Cal. 45.

62. Insolvency defined.—One who is unable to pay his debts with his own means is an insolvent.—Washburn v. Huntington, 78 Cal. 573, 21 Pac. 305.

63. Same.—A debtor is not insolvent, within the meaning of the act, if he has sufficient means or resources of any kind to enable him to pay all his debts as they become due in the ordinary course of business, though he may not have sufficient money to meet them or to pay a particular debt when due.—Sacry v. Lobree, 84 Cal. 41, 23 Pac. 1088.

64. Same.—One who is not in a condition to meet his engagements, or to pay his debts in the usual and ordinary course of business; but he is not insolvent merely because his assets, at a given date, may not satisfy all the demands against him due and to become due.—Bell v. Ellis, 33 Cal. 620.

65. Same.—One is insolvent though he controls property out of which he may voluntarily pay his debts, if such property is beyond the process of the law.—Adams v. Prather, 176 Cal. 33, 167 Pac. 534.

66. Same.—A debtor is insolvent when he is unable to pay his debts, out of his own means, as they become due.—In re Ramazina, 110 Cal. 488, 42 Pac. 980.

67. Excess of assets over liabilities is not inconsistent with insolvency.—In re Choze, 112 Cal. 630, 44 Pac. 1066.

68. Means in another state.—A debtor is insolvent when he is unable to pay his debts from his own means, when due, but it is not essential that his means should be in this state.—Cook v. Cockins, 117 Cal. 140, 48 Pac. 1025.

69. Act of insolvency.—A creditor's petition which alleges that the insolvent, in contemplation of insolvency, sold and conveyed a stock of merchandise, described in the petition, sufficiently states an act of insolvency.—In re Patton, 110 Cal. 33, 42 Pac. 459.

70. Partnership.—The fact that the assets exceed the liabilities of a partnership does not necessarily prove solvency, when the petition discloses the hopeless insolvency of the partners.—In re Ramazzina, 110 Cal. 488, 42 Pac. 980.

71. Insolvency of insurance companies, what constitutes.—See Kerr's Cyc, Political Code, § 602.

d. Petition.

72. Commencement of proceedings within the statute is the filing a petition sufficient to support an adjudication of insolvency.—La Point v. Boulware, 104 Cal. 264, 37 Pac. 927.

73. Complaint.—Petition and schedule constitute the complaint.—Wilson v. Creditors, 32 Cal. 406.

74. How addressed and entitled.—Petition may be addressed to court or judge, and may be entitled as being in the matter of the insolvent to be discharged of his debts, though not necessarily so. It should be brief and refer to the schedule.—Wilson v. Creditors, 32 Cal. 406.

75. What must state—Discharge of debts.—Petition must so state if insolvent seeks discharge for debts not described or imperfectly stated.—Wilson v. Creditors, 32 Cal. 406.

76. Same—Indebtedness to five creditors.—Facts showing indebtedness to at least five creditors should be alleged with the certainty and fullness as is required in a complaint for debt.—In re Russell, 70 Cal. 132, 11 Pac. 622.

77. Same—Same.—Petition must show that they are at least five in number, and that they are creditors of the insolvent to the extent of five hundred dollars, and failure to do so is fatal to their petition; and the petition can not be amended by bringing in new creditors.—Anderson v. Superior Court, 122 Cal. 216, 54 Pac. 829.

78. Same—Same—Creditors described as firms.—The petition is sufficient under section 8, if it describes the creditors as firms or copartnerships, although it does not give the names of the partners.—In re Russell, 70 Cal. 132, 11 Pac. 622.

79. Same—Same—Same.—Petition of creditor firms is sufficient if it states the name of the firms, without the names of their members.—In re Russell, 70 Cal. 132, 11 Pac. 622; In re Dennery, 89 Cal. 101, 26 Pac. 639; Campbell v. Judd, 2 Cal. Unrep. 522, 7 Pac. 804, 7 West Coast R. 372.

80. What need not state—Six months' residence.—Petition need not allege residence in the county for six months prior to filing.—In re Thomas, 5 Cal. Unrep. 303, 44 Pac. 327.

81. Same—Same.—Non-residence of partners does not defeat the right of a partnership firm to become a petitioning creditor.—In re Dennery, 89 Cal. 101, 26 Pac. 639.

82. Same—Same.—The fact of six months' residence need not be stated in petition.—Barrett v. Carney, 33 Cal. 530.

82a. Place of business of insolvent corporation.—County of may be proved by parol.—98 Cal. 318, 33 Pac. 198.

83. Residence—Sufficient statement.—A statement that petitioner is "a resident of the city of San Francisco," is a sufficient statement that he is a resident of the fourth judicial district.—Slade v. Creditors, 10 Cal. 483.

84. Same—Same.—A cause of action is stated when it shows that the creditors are residents of California, that the demands are due, accrued in this state, and states their nature and amounts, and such other facts required by section 8 of the act of 1880.—In re Close, 106 Cal. 574, 39 Pac. 1067.

85. Same—Failure to state six months' residence.—Where the petition does not state the fact, the court may be informed of it in some other mode, and when attacked in a collateral proceeding, it is presumed in favor of the validity of the judgment that the court informed itself as to such residence.—Barrett v. Carney, 33 Cal. 530.

86. Averment that debts were created in state unnecessary to give the court jurisdiction.—Sharp v. Creditors, 10 Cal. 418.

87. Statement of name of each creditor.—Petition must state the name of each creditor, if known, and if unknown, must so state.—McAllister v. Strode, 7 Cal. 428.

88. Failure to include all property.—The failure to include certain property will not be sufficient to affect the jurisdiction of the court, where there is full compliance with the requirements of the statute in all other respects.—Newlove v. Mercantile Trust Co., 156 Cal. 657, 105 Pac. 971.

89. Insufficiency of mode of statement—Collateral attack.—Petition can not be attacked collaterally for a mere insufficiency in the mode of statement, but only for a total absence of averment.—Mogk v. Peterson, 75 Cal. 496, 17 Pac. 446.

90. Vagueness of statement—Collateral attack.—Mere vagueness of statement is not ground for collateral attack.—Pope v. Kirchner, 77 Cal. 152, 19 Pac. 264.

91. Statement of insolvency of debtor, necessary.—Creditor's petition, which is based upon a transfer with intent to defraud creditors, and which fails to state that the debtor was insolvent at the time the transfer was made, or the time of the transfer or what property was transferred, will not support an adjudication in insolvency, and is insufficient on both general and special demurrer.—In re Mealy, 127 Cal. 103, 59 Pac. 313.

92. Specific allegations of fraud.—Under section 8 a creditor's petition is not demurrable if it alleges the transfer of the property with intent to hinder, delay and defraud creditors, and sets forth the name of the grantee, together with the circumstances of time and place, and a general description of the property conveyed.—In re Patton, 110 Cal. 33, 42 Pac. 459.

93. Amended petition—Four creditors.—Where one of the creditors to the original petition has been paid, and only four remain to present an amended petition, the court is without jurisdiction to entertain the same.—In re Whipple, 129 Cal. 426, 62 Pac. 65.

94. Allegation of partnership.—Partnership petition need not directly allege that petitioners are partners, where it sufficiently appears from the whole petition that they are.—In re Ramazzina, 110 Cal. 488, 42 Pac. 980.

95. Negating fiduciary character of debts.—Petition need not aver that the debts were not fiduciary so as to show that they were not within the provision of section 13.—Brewster v. Ludekins, 19 Cal. 162.

96. Partnership petition—Sufficiency of.—The allegation that the insolvents, naming them, as "copartners, doing business under the firm name . . . are indebted to your petitioners," can only be understood as charging that the indebtedness arose out of the partnership business.—Wright v. Cohn, 88 Cal. 328, 26 Pac. 600.

97. Application in joint name of partners.—An application made in the joint name of the partners is insufficient as being without the authority of the act.—Meyer v. Kohlman, 8 Cal. 44.

97a. Same—Joint property of partnership only.—A petition, schedule and affidavit, in the joint name of partners, which shows a surrender of joint property only, is insufficient.—Meyer v. Kohlman, 8 Cal. 44.

98. Insufficiency not obviated by proof.—Insufficiency of petition can not be obviated by proof.—Judson v. Atwill, 9 Cal. 477.

99. Signature of insolvent to petition not required.—The petition need not be signed by the insolvent or his attorney, but he must sign the schedule.—Wilson v. Creditors, 32 Cal. 406.

99a. Failure of petitioners to sign, not ground for collateral attack.—Where proceedings are regular on their face it is not subject to collateral attack on the ground that the signers of the petition were not actual creditors.—Riego v. Foster, 125 Cal. 178, 57 Pac. 896.

100. Signature of insolvent not required—May be signed by attorney.—The signature of the insolvent is not necessary.—Brewster v. Ludekins, 19 Cal. 162.

101. Need not be verified.—Petition need not be verified.—Wilson v. Creditors, 32 Cal. 406.

102. Creditors' petition — Verification.—Verification of petition by three creditors is necessary to its validity, and is jurisdictional. Verification held a nullity.—In re Visalia City Water Co., 119 Cal. 561, 51 Pac. 856.

103. Verification in usual form.—Verification in the usual form of verification of pleadings, which includes matters stated on information and belief, is not objectionable.—Wright v. Cohn, 88 Cal. 328, 26 Pac. 600.

104. Verification by new creditor—Amended petition.—A new creditor not in the original petition is not authorized to verify.—In re Whipple, 129 Cal. 426, 62 Pac. 65.

See, also, In re Visalia City Water Co., 119 Cal. 561, 51 Pac. 856; Anderson v. Superior Court, 122 Cal. 216, 54 Pac. 829.

105. Prayer for discharge not necessary, and it is sufficient if the petition avers petitioners desire to be discharged.—In re Chope, 112 Cal. 630, 44 Pac. 1066.

106. Collateral attack.—To be immune from collateral attack, the petition should set forth such a state of facts as bring the case within the statute, and due publication of notice to creditors.—Friedlander v. Loucks, 34 Cal. 18.

e. Schedule.

107. Schedule and petition constitute the complaint.—Wilson v. Creditors, 32 Cal. 406.

108. Schedule consists of three parts: Losses, debts, and inventory.—Schedule should consist of three parts: First, summary statement of the insolvent's affairs, with list of losses sustained, as complete as it can be conveniently made; second, a list of his debts; and, third, a perfect inventory of the estate, real, personal and mixed.—Wilson v. Creditors, 32 Cal. 406.

109. Inventory most material part.—The most material part is the inventory of insolvent's estate, and should be made as full and complete as possible.—Wilson v. Creditors, 32 Cal. 406.

110. Defective statement not ground of dismissal.—Defective statement of items is not ground for dismissing proceeding.—Bennett v. Creditors, 22 Cal. 38.

111. Failure to state items with sufficient particularity.—The failure to state items with sufficient particularity is a defect affecting the sufficiency of the papers as pleadings.—Bennett v. Creditors, 22 Cal. 38.

112. Same—Creditor not prejudiced.—A creditor is not prejudiced by a decree of discharge of his debtor under the insolvent act, or prevented from enforcing his claim, if the debts and liabilities are not set out in the schedule with the particularity required by the act.—Slade v. Creditors, 10 Cal. 483.

113. Statement when creditor unknown.—A statement "that the schedule of his debts and liabilities, annexed to his petition, contains the names of his creditors as near as he can state them," is a sufficient compliance with the act, even though the schedule did not contain the name of the creditor who was the assignee of a note imperfectly described, and did not state that he was ignorant of the same or that the owner of the note was unknown.—Barrett v. Carney, 33 Cal. 530.

114. Omission of dollar mark.—Where the amounts written in the schedule clearly show that they represent dollars, the omission of the dollar mark will not be deemed a material defect in determining the amount of the insolvent's debts.—Newlove v. Mercantile Trust Co., 156 Cal. 657, 105 Pac. 971.

115. Failure to allege ignorance when creditor unknown.—Where the schedule fails to give the name of the owner of certain promissory notes, or to state ignorance of such name, the discharge of the insolvent is insufficient to bar subsequent action on the notes.—Judson v. Atwill, 9 Cal. 477. See, also, McAllister v. Strode, 7 Cal. 428.

116. Insufficiently described note.—A note by the insolvent payable to the order of Alfred McCarty, described in the schedule as "Alfred McCarty, borrowed money, April, 1855, $500," is insufficiently described, a discharge is no bar to a subsequent action thereon.—McCarty v. Christie, 13 Cal. 79.

117. Variance in description of debt is not material if described so as to enable the holder to readily identify it.—Brewster v. Ludekins, 19 Cal. 162.

118. Same.—Where the schedule describes a certain note as in suit when in fact at the time of filing the petition it has passed into judgment, the variance is not fatal.—Brewster v. Ludekins, 19 Cal. 162.

119. Defective statement of promissory notes.—Defective statement of certain promissory notes which constitute a part of the debts and liabilities of the insolvent, does not invalidate the proceedings.—Slade v. Creditors, 10 Cal. 483.

120. Intentional omission of property may be shown in an action on a promissory note in answer to a plea of a discharge.—Dean v. Baker, 64 Cal. 232, 30 Pac. 806.

121. Inaccurate description of promissory note.—Where the insolvent is liable as an indorser on the note of another person, it is inaccurate to describe such note and liability as contingent, giving the names of the maker, without giving that of the present owner, or stating that he is ignorant of such name.—McAllister v. Strode, 7 Cal. 428.

122. Meagreness of detail can not be reached by an objection to the substance.—Wilson v. Creditors, 32 Cal. 406.

123. Errors in not fatal to right to discharge.—Insolvent is entitled to a discharge notwithstanding errors in his schedule, where he acted in good faith and under advice of counsel.—In re Bregard, 84 Cal. 322, 24 Pac. 317.

124. Examination of insolvent in reference to schedule.—If creditors have reason to suppose that petitioner's insolvency is simulated or pretended, or that he has fraudulently misrepresented his affairs in any respect, they may charge fraud and have the insolvent examined in detail in reference to his schedule.—Wilson v. Creditors, 32 Cal. 406.

125. Omission of worthless debts not fraudulent.—Debts due insolvent, shown to be worthless and barred by limitation, omitted from schedule, does not amount to fraud and false swearing, and is not ground for collateral attack.—Pope v. Kirchner, 77 Cal. 152, 19 Pac. 264.

126. Omission of property from verified schedule—Perjury.—An insolvent who willfully omits from his schedule, verified according to the requirements of the insolvent act, any of his property is guilty of perjury, and the provision in the act making such omission a misdemeanor does not affect the statute against perjury.—People v. Platt, 67 Cal. 21, 7 Pac. 1.

127. Debts—Unliquidated damages.—Unliquidated damages for repudiated or abandoned lease is not a debt within the meaning of the insolvent act.—In re Bell, 85 Cal. 119, 24 Pac. 633.

128. Same—Provable debt.—Under section 37, debts not due, but payable at a future time, are provable debts.—In re Dennery, 89 Cal. 101, 26 Pac. 639.

129. Same—Purpose of schedule.—The principal object is to inform the court that in fact the petitioner is insolvent, and to assist the court and assignee in settling the estate.—Wilson v. Creditors, 32 Cal. 406.

129a. Same—"False and fictitious debts."—Partnership debts which a copartner has attempted to pay with partnership assets without insolvent's knowledge, are not "false and fictitious debts."—In re Bregard, 84 Cal. 322, 24 Pac. 317.

130. Same—Partnership property.—The insolvent should include all property in which he is interested, including partnership property and debts for which he is personally liable.—In re Bregard, 84 Cal. 322, 24 Pac. 317.

130a. Contingent debts—Debts payable at a future time may be proven as liabilities and are released under the act.—Mooney v. Detrick, 85 Cal. 549, 22 Pac. 1111, 26 Pac. 280.

131. Losses—Objection that it is vague and indefinite has nothing to do with the contest on the ground of fraud.—Grow v. Creditors, 31 Cal. 328.

131a. Same—Estimate not honestly made.—Where a petitioner in insolvency alleges losses in trade, and he fails, as a witness, to explain how the same were incurred, it is to be inferred that his estimate of such losses was not made honestly.—Schloss v. Creditors, 31 Cal. 201.

131b. Indebtedness of insurance companies, estimate of.—See Kerr's Cyc. Political Code, § 602a.

132. Assets not losses material in contest of discharge.—A contest by the creditors of an application of the debtor for a discharge, based upon fraud, brings out the acts of the petitioner in relation to his estate, and his schedule of assets, not the schedule of his losses.—Grow v. Creditors, 31 Cal. 328.

133. Losses—Amend to make more definite.—If a more complete and definite schedule of the insolvent's losses is desired, the proper course is to move to amend.—Grow v. Creditors, 31 Cal. 328.

134. Same—Schedule fatally defective.—A schedule of losses, after specifying certain bad debts, specifies "large amounts of other bad debts," and is not, for that reason, fatally defective in not giving a list of losses.—Brewster v. Ludekins, 19 Cal. 162.

134a. Same—Summary of may be incorporated in the petition.—Wilson v. Creditors, 32 Cal. 406.

135. Same—Purpose is to show cause of insolvency.—The principal object is to show good faith by showing cause of inability to pay debts.—Wilson v. Creditors, 32 Cal. 406.

135a. Assets—Estate in expectancy.—Future revenue from office of county treasurer does not constitute an estate in expectancy within the meaning of the insolvent law, and the concealment of that fact in his petition does not amount to fraud.—Grow v. Creditors, 31 Cal. 328.

136. Signature of insolvent required to schedule, though not to petition.—Wilson v. Creditors, 32 Cal. 406.

136a. Same—Schedule of losses only.—Where it consisted of three parts, liabilities, assets, and losses, and only the schedule of losses was signed by the insolvent, that is sufficient to protect the proceedings from collateral attack.—Brewster v. Ludekins, 19 Cal. 162.

137. Verification necessary.—Schedule must be verified.—Wilson v. Creditors, 32 Cal. 406.

138. Verification by involuntary insolvent not required.—Involuntary insolvent is not required to file a verified inventory and schedule.—In re Green, 96 Cal. 162, 31 Pac. 15.

139. Verification before judge, not before notary.—Verification must be before the judge of the court to which application is made, and no jurisdiction to adjudge a discharge exists where such verification is made before a notary.—Baker v. Everhart, 65 Cal. 27, 2 Pac. 495.

f. Answer.

140. Verification.—Although the act of 1852 did not require verification of the answer, under the act of 1880, requiring it, enacted subsequent to the filing of the petition but prior to filing answer, the answer should have been verified.—Strueven v. Creditors, 62 Cal. 45.

141. Plea to charge of fraud may be guilty or not guilty; but insolvent may object, as by demurrer, that the acts charged do not amount to fraud.—Wilson v. Creditors, 32 Cal. 406.

g. Bond.

142. Covers only costs and damages.—Bond of original creditor's petition covers only costs and damages, but not costs and damages under a new petition in a new proceeding.—Anderson v. Superior Court, 122 Cal. 216, 54 Pac. 829.

143. Necessity — A proceeding without bond, in the face of objections to the want of same, and without waiver thereof, is in excess of the jurisdiction of the court, and prohibition will lie to restrain the proceeding.—Anderson v. Superior Court, 122 Cal. 216, 54 Pac. 829.

144. Failure to give.—Failure to give does not render the proceedings, but is matter of abatement, and must be pleaded before the trial of the issues, and if not specifically urged it is waived, and can not be presented after adjudication. — In re Clarke, 125 Cal. 388, 58 Pac. 22.

145. Failure to file, not jurisdictional.—Failure to file the bond required by section 8, with two sureties and all the creditors as principals, though irregular, does not affect the jurisdiction of the court.—Creditors v. Consumer's Lumber Co., 93 Cal. 318, 33 Pac. 196.

146. Defect in.—A debtor of the insolvent can not raise the question of defectiveness in the assignee's bond in an action by the latter, where the creditors make no objection.—Mogk v. Peterson, 75 Cal. 496, 17 Pac. 446.

147. Sufficiency.—The insolvent act contemplates a bond with two sureties and all the creditors as principals.—In re Visalia City Water Co., 119 Cal. 561, 51 Pac. 856.

147a. Same.—Bond not signed by all the petitioning creditors and by two sureties is insufficient.—In re Mealy, 127 Cal. 103, 59 Pac. 313.

148. Same—Creditors and debtor only interested.—Creditors and debtor are alone interested in the amount and sufficiency of the assignee's bond.—Best v. Johnson, 78 Cal. 217, 12 Am. St. Rep. 41, 3 L. R. A. 168, 20 Pac. 415.

149. Effect of objections to.—An objection to the form of the bond filed with the original petition, and to the sufficiency of the sureties, is a waiver of other objections to the bond, and to the lack of a new bond after the filing of the amended petition.—In re Clarke, 125 Cal. 388, 58 Pac. 22.

150. Creditors only can sue.—The creditors only, can sue on the assignee's bond.—Best v. Johnson, 78 Cal. 217, 12 Am. St. Rep. 41, 3 L. R. A. 168, 20 Pac. 415.

151. Wrongful seizure or detention of property or money—Assignee's sureties not liable for.—Best v. Johnson, 78 Cal. 217, 12 Am. St. Rep. 41, 3 L. R. A. 168, 20 Pac. 415.

h. Order to show cause, and notice to creditors.

152. Publication—Sufficiency.—When the adjudication is made on Monday, and the order to show cause and notice to creditors was published the following Saturday, which was the first day of publication after the making of the order, and publication was made on each intervening Saturday thereafter for thirty-six days, until the day set for the meeting of creditors, the requirements of section 7 of the act are sufficiently complied with.—Newlove v. Mercantile Trust Co., 156 Cal. 657, 105 Pac. 971.

153. Order to show cause—Served by publication.—The order to show cause, required by section 10 of the act (1880), may be served by publication, so far as the rights of the assignee are concerned, as if personal service had been made.—Arnold v. Kahn, 67 Cal. 472, 8 Pac. 36.

154. Same—Sufficient.—An order directing the clerk to issue an "order for the creditors to appear . . . and show cause why the insolvent should not be discharged from his debts, in pursuance of the insolvent laws, and likewise make an assignment of his estate for the benefit of his creditors." is a substantial compliance with sections 5 and 8 of the act.—Flint v. Wilson, 36 Cal. 24.

155. Same—Insufficient.—If made the day before the presentation of the petition, it was coram non judice and void.—Hastings v. Cunningham, 39 Cal. 137.

See, also, Hahn v. Kelly, 34 Cal. 391, 94 Am. Dec. 742.

156. Notice to creditors—Order to publish notice and order for meeting of creditors.—Order to publish notice to creditors is not insufficient because it combines such order with order for meeting of creditors.—Langenour v. French, 34 Cal. 92.

157. Same—Not process.—Even if it were, the fact that it did not run in the name of the people is not a fatal error.—Brewster v. Ludekins, 19 Cal. 162.

158. Same—No provision for notice to creditors signing petition.—No provision for notice to creditors signing the petition.—Ohleyer v. Bunce, 2 Cal. Unrep. 252, 3 Pac. 165.

159. Same—Publication.—Notice to creditors must be published for the first time at least thirty days before the day fixed for the creditors to appear and show cause, otherwise a judgment of discharge is void.—McDonald v. Katz, 31 Cal. 167.

160. Same—Date of publication, is the first day notice is published.—Clarke v. Ray, 6 Cal. 600.

161. Same—Publication sufficient.—Publication on December 7, returnable January 6, following, is a sufficient compliance with the requirement for 30 days notice.—Dean v. Grimes, 72 Cal. 442, 14 Pac. 178.

162. Same—Same.—Notice to creditors to appear December 1, 1879, published on November 1, 1879, was in time.—Wilson v. Creditors, 55 Cal. 476.

163. Same—Same.—Where the order for meeting of creditors was made May 21, 1879, and the date for the meeting was fixed for June 23, 1879, publication of notice to be made once a week for four weeks in "The Woodland Democrat," publication in "The Woodland Daily Democrat" on May 23d and 30th, and June 6 and 13, was sufficient.—Steele v. Creditors, 58 Cal. 244.

164. Same—Newspaper need not be designated.—Newspaper need not be designated by judge in the order for publication.—Steele v. Creditors, 58 Cal. 244.

165. Same—Service by mail.—Notice to creditors, may be served by mail under section 7 of the act.—Pomeroy v. Gregory, 66 Cal. 574, 6 Pac. 493.

166. Same—Service by mail sufficient.—Mailing four days after the making of the order is a sufficient compliance with the requirement that the mailing shall be "forthwith."—Newlove v. Mercantile Trust Co., 156 Cal. 657, 105 Pac. 971.

167. Same—Proof of publication may be made by affidavit of proprietor of newspaper in which published.—Barrett v. Carney, 33 Cal. 530.

168. Same—Same.—The recitals of an order appointing an assignee is sufficient proof of publication of notice to creditors.—Ohleyer v. Bunce, 65 Cal. 544, 4 Pac. 549.

271. No rule of law to prevent an insolvent debtor from giving preference.—There is no rule of law which prevents a debtor, in insolvent circumstances, from the application of his property to the payment of one debt rather than another.—Randall v. Buffington, 10 Cal. 491.

272. Same—Section 39 does not prohibit preferences.—Section 39 of the act contains nothing prohibiting an insolvent from conveying his property, either absolutely or as security, directly to one of his creditors to the exclusion of the rest.—Lawrence v. Neff, 41 Cal. 566.

273. Transferee's knowledge of insolvency.—When transferee knows sufficient facts to put him on inquiry, he will be charged with reasonable cause to believe the debtor to be insolvent.—Washburn v. Huntington, 78 Cal. 573, 21 Pac. 305.

274. Transfer to secure future payments—Good faith of transferee—Ignorance of insolvency.—A transfer of property to secure future payments, and not for previous liability is not a fraudulent preference under the insolvent act, where the transferee paid full value, and did not know or have reason to know that the transferor was insolvent, notwithstanding the transfer was made within 30 days prior to the filing of the petition.—Haskin v. James, 96 Cal. 258, 31 Pac. 36.

275. Transferee's want of notice of seller's fraud.—Transfer can not be vacated for fraud of seller where the buyer had no part therein and no notice of the fraud.—Grunsky v. Parlin, 110 Cal. 179, 42 Pac. 575.

276. Creditor's knowledge of insolvency implied, when.—A creditor can not wilfully shut his eyes to the means of information which he knows is at hand, and if he does so, his willing ignorance is equivalent to actual knowledge.—Levy v. Irvine, 134 Cal. 664, 66 Pac. 953.

277. Same.—When the means of knowledge were ample, and the creditor had opportunity to know from the books placed in his hands, he is charged with knowledge, if he fails to make an investigation.—Levy v. Irvine, 134 Cal. 664, 66 Pac. 953.

278. Transfer out of the usual course of business.—Transfer from debtor to creditor not in the usual course of business is prima facie fraudulent, and sufficient to charge transferee with notice of insolvency.—Godfrey v. Miller, 80 Cal. 420, 22 Pac. 290.

279. Same.—A transfer from the debtor to a creditor not in the usual or ordinary course of business is prima facie evidence that the transferee had reasonable cause to believe that the debtor was insolvent and that the transfer was made to prevent the property from reaching his assignee in insolvency for the benefit of the creditors.—Washburn v. Huntington, 78 Cal. 573, 21 Pac. 305.

280. Same—Prima facie presumption.—A transfer to a creditor not in the usual course of business is prima facie presumed to be a preference in violation of section 55 of the act; but such presumption may be overcome by counter evidence that no preference was intended.—Haas v. Whittier, 97 Cal. 411, 32 Pac. 449.

281. Same—Same—Prima facie presumption of, is overturned by uncontradicted evidence of debtor and creditor that no preference was intended and that both intended that all creditors should be treated alike.—Haas v. Whittier, 97 Cal. 411, 32 Pac. 449.

282. Same—Transfer on Sunday with knowledge of attachment.—A transfer of a horse and buggy from debtor to creditor, on a Sunday, without trial, with knowledge that other property of the debtor was attached the preceding day, and that another attachment was expected the following day, was not in the usual course of business, and the transferee will be held to have been charged with notice of insolvency.—Godfrey v. Miller, 80 Cal. 420, 22 Pac. 290.

283. Same—Bill of sale of entire stock in trade is not in the usual course of business, and is prima facie fraudulent and void as to creditors.—Chevallier v. Commins, 106 Cal. 580, 39 Pac. 929.

284. Same—Entire stock in trade.—A transfer by a merchant of his entire stock in trade to a creditor is not in the usual course of business, and when made by an insolvent debtor, upon proof thereof, the burden is on the purchaser to disprove fraud by showing ignorance of the intent of the insolvent to make a fraudulent preference.—Tapscott v. Lyon, 103 Cal. 297, 37 Pac. 225.

285. Same—Books of account.—Transfer of book accounts, made by means of orders drawn on debtors in favor of insolvent's creditor, is an assignment out of the usual and ordinary course of business within the meaning of the act.—Washburn v. Huntington, 78 Cal. 573, 21 Pac. 305.

286. Same—Same.—Transfer of accounts, books, journal, ledger and blotter of firm, to the father-in-law of one of the partners, residing in another county, is not in the usual course of business, and is prima facie fraudulent, and the burden is thrown on the defendant in an action by the assignee for the recovery of the property to show the contrary.—Ballou v. Andrews Banking Co., 128 Cal. 562, 61 Pac. 102.

287. Same—Same.—Transfer of a part or of all of a firm's books is not in the usual course of business.—Ballou v. Andrews Banking Co., 128 Cal. 562, 61 Pac. 102.

288. Same—Instruction held out of place.—An instruction as to knowledge or reason to know the insolvency of the transferor, on the part of the transferee, is out of place if it omits to include the question as to the transfer out of the usual course of business where the evidence shows the transfer of the stock of goods.—Matthews v. Chaboya, 111 Cal. 435, 44 Pac. 169.

289. Action by assignee—Creditor without knowledge of insolvency.—In an action by assignee to recover property alleged to have been transferred in preference of a creditor in violation of the insolvent act, findings that defendant neither knew nor believed, nor had reasonable cause to believe transferor was insolvent or made the transfer in contemplation of insolvency, are sufficient to support a judgment for defendant.—Smith v. Fratt, 4 Cal. Unrep. 821, 37 Pac. 1033.

289a. Same—Transfer eight months prior to commencement of proceedings.—Action by assignee to recover property transferred by the insolvent eight months prior to commencement of proceedings. Nonsuit.—McNeil v. Hansen, 115 Cal. 214, 46 Pac. 1065.

289b. Same—Unsuccessful defense—Attorney's fee.—Trustee of property conveyed in trust less than thirty days before commencement of proceedings is not entitled to attorney's fees for unsuccessfully defending an action for their recovery brought by the assignee.—Sanger v. Ryan, 122 Cal. 52, 54 Pac. 522.

290. Question of intent is one of fact, not of law.—Question of intent of insolvent is one of fact and not of law.—Haas v. Whittier, 97 Cal. 411, 32 Pac. 449.

291. Motives of creditor immaterial, when.—Motives of creditor are immaterial, if debtor does not intend a preference.—Haas v. Whittier, 97 Cal. 411, 32 Cal. 449.

292. Payment of debt incurred in fiduciary capacity.—The fact that a fraudulent transfer is made in part payment of indebtedness for moneys held in a fiduciary capacity, does not relieve the transaction of its fraudulent character.—Godfrey v. Miller, 80 Cal. 420, 22 Pac. 290.

293. Sale of entire stock of goods with intent to give preference.—One admittedly an insolvent can not pay one creditor with intent to make a preference, and if he sells his entire stock of goods to a creditor with such intent, and the creditor is aware of that fact, the sale is void, although full value was paid and applied to pay an honest debt.—Tapscott v. Lyon, 103 Cal. 297, 37 Pac. 225.

294. Good faith of transferee—Payment of full value.—Where transferee paid full value for goods, in good faith, without knowledge of fraudulent intent on part of insolvent the transfer can not be attacked as fraudulent.—Haskin v. James, 96 Cal. 258, 31 Pac. 36.

See, also, Albertoll v. Branham, 80 Cal. 631, 13 Am. St. Rep. 200, 22 Pac. 404.

295. Purchase by copartner at public auction.—Purchase by copartner of books of account of insolvent firm at public auction, not made with insolvent effects, may be made, and such copartner may enforce a claim in favor of the firm against the estate of an insolvent copartner.—In re Levy v. Schwab (Bank of Woodland v. Schwab), 130 Cal. 282, 62 Pac. 520.

296. Transfer void as to transferee and subsequent transferees.—Where a transfer by an insolvent is void as against creditors, it is void as to a second transferee.—Ballou v. Andrews Banking Co., 128 Cal. 562, 61 Pac. 102.

299. Prohibition to restrain assignee's action.—Prohibition will not lie against an assignee in insolvency to prevent the bringing of an action to recover property of the insolvent transferred in a fraudulent preference.—Goddard v. Superior Court, 90 Cal. 364, 27 Pac. 298.

299a. Transfer to hinder, delay, and defraud creditors by one who is insolvent involves actual fraud and not merely legal fraud.—In re Strock, 128 Cal. 658, 61 Pac. 282.

299b. Act construed as to fraud.—The fraud referred to in section 55 of the act (1880) is construed to mean fraud on the provisions of the act.—Washburn v. Huntington, 78 Cal. 573, 21 Pac. 305.

q. Debts in fiduciary capacity.

300. A dealer in mining stocks who receives money to buy stock for another, buys the stock, sells it at a profit, and refuses to deliver either stock or proceeds on demand, such proceeds are held in trust, and the obligation created is one created in a fiduciary capacity, and is not affected by his discharge in insolvency.—Herrlich v. McDonald, 80 Cal. 472, 22 Pac. 299.

r. Hearing and trial.

301. Time set for hearing—Adjournment of court.—The fact the court was adjourned though not for the term, at the time appointed for the hearing of objections, and at the time of such hearing, is no objection to the validity of the proceedings, it not appearing that the parties suffered injustice.—Clarke v. Ray, 6 Cal. 600.

301a. Fraud—The issue of fraud should be tried by a jury as provided in section 20.—Davenport v. Creditors, 62 Cal. 29.

Foster, 125 Cal. 178, 57 Pac. 896.

304. Same.—Certified copy of assignment is conclusive evidence under section 18 of the insolvent act of the assignee's authority, and such authority can not be collaterally attacked when such certificate is presented in evidence in support thereof.—Fitzgerald v. Neustadt, 91 Cal. 600, 27 Pac. 936.

305. Same—Legislative power to make rule.—There is no reason why the legislature had not the power to make such a rule of evidence.—Fitzgerald v. Neustadt, 91 Cal. 600, 27 Pac. 936.

306. Fraudulent understanding.—Evidence of an understanding between the insolvent and the transferee, that he would trade with no one else, and that if he failed in business he would turn over the business to such transferee, is admissible to show intent; and such an agreement, if good between the parties is void as to creditors, and is no defense to an action by the assignee for the recovery of the property transferred in accordance with its terms.—Chevalier v. Commins, 106 Cal. 580, 39 Pac. 829.

307. Conflict as to fraudulent transfer.—In an action by an assignee to recover personal property alleged to have been fraudulently transferred, and the question is as to whether there is a conflict of evidence as to the purpose of the transfer, the fact that the evidence goes to show that one of the witnesses who testified had acted in bad faith and was unworthy of belief is immaterial.—Chevalier v. Commins, 106 Cal. 580, 39 Pac. 929.

308. Prima facie evidence of fraudulent transfer.—The transfer of a mercantile business to a creditor, in satisfaction of his claim, within one month prior to the filing of a creditor's petition is prima facie evidence of fraud, and the transferee has reasonable cause to believe the fact of insolvency; but this prima facie evidence may be rebutted.—Matthews v. Chaboya, 111 Cal. 435, 44 Pac. 169.

309. Same—Sufficient to set aside transfer.—Transfer to a creditor, under all the conditions which under section 55 render it a fraudulent preference, of property occupied, but not claimed, as a homestead, is sufficient ground to set the same aside at the suit of the assignee, and to restore the property to the estate of the insolvent.—La Point v. Blanchard, 101 Cal. 549, 36 Pac. 98.

310. Same—Transfer not in usual course of business.—Transfer out of usual course of business is merely prima facie evidence of fraud, and may be overcome by proof of creditor's good faith, without knowledge of debtor's insolvency, and without intent to secure a preference.—Bernheim v. Christal, 76 Cal. 567, 18 Pac. 683.

311. Knowledge of insolvency—Admissions.—Conversations with third persons, in which debtor admitted insolvency, are admissible in support of allegation of reasonable cause to believe against transferee of insolvent debtor.—Washburn v. Huntington, 78 Cal. 573, 21 Pac. 305.

312. Affidavit of insolvent required by section 49 is properly admissible in evidence to show what he intended to show at the trial of the opposition of the creditors to his discharge.—In re Harris, 81 Cal. 350, 22 Pac. 867.

313. Proof of non-citizenship—non-residence.—Must be made by one who claims the benefit of such fact.—Porter v. Innis, 79 Cal. 183, 21 Pac. 729.

313a. Account books—Failure to present is prima facie fraudulent.—An insolvent must deposit in the clerk's office his books of account for inspection of creditors, and his failure to do so, or explain such failure, is prima facie evidence of fraud to the injury of his creditors.—Schloss v. Creditors, 31 Cal. 201.

313b. Certificate of discharge is prima facie evidence of regularity of proceedings.—A discharge is prima facie evidence of regularity of proceedings.—Pope v. Kirchner, 77 Cal. 152, 19 Pac. 264.

313c. Same.—Certificate of discharge is prima facie evidence of the regularity of the proceedings.—Herrlich v. McDonald, 80 Cal. 472, 22 Pac. 299.

t. Instructions.

314. Fraud in execution of deed—Instruction erroneous.—Where fraud is charged in the execution of a deed to his property shortly prior to making application for a discharge, it is error to instruct the jury "That to find the charge of fraud sustained, they must believe the deed made with intent to defeat, hinder or delay creditors, and to have been actually delivered to grantees; that proof of record was no proof of delivery."—Fisk v. Creditors, 12 Cal. 281.

315. Fraudulent intent—Instruction erroneous.—An instruction as to fraudulent intent is error where the fraud is a legal fraud and no evidence of actual fraud exists.—Matthews v. Chaboya, 111 Cal. 435, 44 Pac. 169.

u. Findings and conclusions.

316. Unnecessary.—Formal findings and conclusions of law are not necessary upon an adjudication of insolvency.—In re Clarke, 125 Cal. 388, 58 Pac. 22.

317. Finding of indebtedness is sufficiently supported by evidence that the indebtedness in the aggregate is equal to the exact sum of several items of indebtedness set forth in the petition, although not incurred in the manner therein stated.—In re Abbott, 74 Cal. 381, 16 Pac. 21.

v. Adjudication of insolvency.

318. May be made on return day of order to show cause, without meeting of creditors.—The court may adjudge a party insolvent in an involuntary proceeding on the return day of the order to show cause, without waiting for a meeting of creditors.—Lyon v. Crosby, 64 Cal. 34, 27 Pac. 786.

319. When made.—Adjudication of insolvency occurs when order is made for meeting of creditors.—Cerf v. Oaks, 59 Cal. 132.

320. Order is interlocutory—Entry in minutes.—The order is interlocutory and should be entered in the minutes, but the failure to do so, or an incomplete or informal entry, does not render the adjudication invalid, if the order is sufficient in form and substantial.—In re Clarke, 125 Cal. 388, 58 Pac. 22.

321. Order relates back to the date the petition was filed.—State Inv., etc., Co. v. San Francisco, 101 Cal. 135, 35 Pac. 549.

322. Order is sufficient proof, when.—Adjudication in voluntary insolvency is sufficient proof, in the absence of a contrary showing, of inadequacy of the debtor's property to pay his debts.—Ruggles v. Cannedy, 127 Cal. 290, 46 L. R. A. 371, 53 Pac. 911.

323. Sufficiency of order.—Adjudication is sufficient if the defendant is adjudged insolvent on a specific date prior to the filing of the petition, and ever since has been, and still is, and its sufficiency is not affected by the unnecessary conclusion of law that the defendant was insolvent.—In re Clarke, 125 Cal. 388, 58 Pac. 22.

323a. Attorney's fee for contesting adjudication in insolvency.—The insolvent act makes no provision for an attorney's fee for contesting adjudication.—In re Close, 106 Cal. 574, 39 Pac. 1067.

w. Notice of adjudication.

324. Mailing sufficient, when.—Where the place of residence of the creditors only appears in the petition, addressing the notice to the residences, instead of to their places of business, held not material.—Pope v. Kirchner, 77 Cal. 152, 19 Pac. 264.

325. Clerical error in affidavit of mailing, held not material.—Pope v. Kirchner, 77 Cal. 152, 19 Pac. 264.

326. Clerical error in publication.—A slight clerical error in the spelling of the insolvent's name is not material where the name is published twice correctly in the same notice.—Pope v. Kirchner, 77 Cal. 152, 19 Pac. 264.

x. Discharge.

327. Pending appeal from order setting apart homestead.—Under sections 48 and 49 the insolvent is entitled to a discharge, subject to the right of the creditors to oppose the same on stated grounds, but the order setting apart a homestead under sections 60 and 67 is not one of these grounds, and an appeal pending from such order does not affect the right to a discharge.—Demartin v. Demartin, 85 Cal. 76, 24 Pac. 596.

328. Pending election of assignee—Appointment of assignee.—The insolvent has nothing to do with the appointment of the assignee, and he is not prevented from asking for his discharge by the delay of the creditors in electing an assignee.—In re Harris, 81 Cal. 350, 22 Pac. 867.

329. Objections to discharge may be on either of two grounds: First, illegality in appointment of assignee, which raises a question of law for the court; and, second, fraud committed by insolvent, which raises a question of fact for the jury.—Wilson v. Creditors, 32 Cal. 406.

330. Assignee may oppose on ground of fraud of insolvent, and is not precluded from so doing because of acceptance of office of assignee.—Hinkel v. Creditors, 63 Cal. 328.

331. Creditor's opposition.—Each creditor may file his opposition to the discharge and may withdraw it at will, whether the other creditors consent or not (Ross, J., dis.).—Brangon v. Creditors, 64 Cal. 394, 1 Pac. 477.

332. Same—Right of creditor to oppose.—Any creditor has the right to be made a party to the insolvency proceeding for the purpose of opposing the discharge, or obtaining his proportion of the assets, whether named in the assignment or not.—Lambert v. Slade, 4 Cal. 337.

333. Same—Same—Need not be judgment creditor.—A creditor, to have a right to oppose an insolvent's discharge under the act of 1852, need not be a judgment creditor.—Davenport v. Creditors, 62 Cal. 29.

334. Same—Formal answer to objections.—The court is not deprived of jurisdiction to determine objections of creditor to discharge of insolvent, by failure of latter to file formal answer thereto.—Estate of Clark, 128 Cal. 147, 60 Pac. 663.

335. Same—Waiver of formal answer to objections.—Absence of formal answer to objections is waived by creditor by introducing evidence to support objections.—Estate of Clark, 128 Cal. 147, 60 Pac. 663.

336. Same—Unanswered specifications.—After demurrer sustained to some and striking others, specifications setting forth fraudulent conduct on insolvent's part sufficient to deprive him of right to discharge, remain unanswered, it is error to dismiss creditor's opposition after failure to amend after demurrer, and the discharge will be reversed on appeal.—Estate of Rich, 129 Cal. 494, 62 Pac. 56.

336a. Same—Failure to answer—Dismissal.—When the insolvent fails or refuses to answer an accusation of fraud the court may dismiss the case, but can not take his estate and distribute it to creditors without discharging their claims against him.—Sanborn v. Creditors, 37 Cal. 609.

337. Same—Each objection requires an answer as a separate defense.—Each objection specified is in the nature of a separate defense, and if it shows sufficient ground, it must be answered and found in insolvent's favor to entitle him to a discharge.—Estate of Rich, 129 Cal. 494, 62 Pac. 56.

338. Same—Objections stricken out.—Objections based on specifications of irrelevant and immaterial facts may be stricken out on motion.—Dyer v. Bradley, 89 Cal. 557, 26 Pac. 1103.

339. Failure to keep proper account books.—Where the creditor fails to specify defects an objection that insolvent failed to keep proper account books is not sufficient to defeat application for discharge.—Estate of Clark, 128 Cal. 147, 60 Pac. 663.

340. Same—Same.—Failure to keep proper account books prevents a merchant or tradesman from obtaining a discharge under the act of 1880, and the fact of omission in good faith was immaterial.—In re Good, 78 Cal. 399, 20 Pac. 860.

341. Same—Same.—Where the evidence showed that the insolvent had not engaged in business prior to July 20, 1881, the question whether he kept proper books of account from and after the passage of the act (June 16, 1880) is immaterial.—In re Lukes, 71 Cal. 113, 12 Pac. 390.

342. Same—Same.—An insolvent merchant or tradesman engaged in business prior to the passage of the act of 1880, but who did not keep proper account books, is not prohibited under section 49 of the act from obtaining a discharge.—In re Lukes, 71 Cal. 113, 12 Pac. 390.

343. Same—Same.—Where the books of the firm fail to show a debt of the firm for money loaned, the appearance of which on the books would have shown insolvency, the books were not "proper."—In re Good, 78 Cal. 399, 20 Pac. 860.

344. Same—Same.—The keeping of such books only as showed solvency does not satisfy the requirement, and the failure to keep proper books of account defeats discharge.—Sullivan v. Washburn & Moen Mfg. Co., 139 Cal. 257, 72 Pac. 992.

345. Same—Burden of proof is on creditors.—The burden is on the creditors to prove the insolvent, who has filed the affidavit required by section 49, guilty of some act which the statute makes a barrier to his discharge.—In re Harris, 81 Cal. 350, 22 Pac. 867.

346. Same—Too late, when.—The objection to the jurisdiction for defects in the proof of publication of notice to creditors comes too late after the creditor has made a general appearance, filed his claim in due and proper form, and voluntarily appeared in opposition to the discharge, and then for the first time raises the objection.—In re Yoell, 131 Cal. 581, 63 Pac. 913.

347. General demurrer—Plea amounting to.—Objection that matters, if taken as confessed, do not amount to fraud, is in nature of general demurrer, and must be overruled if any of the charges are sufficient.—Grow v. Creditors, 31 Cal. 328.

348. Creation of fraudulent debt in fiduciary capacity.—Objection that debtor in fiduciary capacity created a fraudulent debt is not valid as against discharge.—Dyer v. Bradley, 89 Cal. 557, 26 Pac. 1103.

349. "Sworn falsely"—Unintentional mistake.—An unintentional and innocent mistake in the affidavit is not within the meaning of the words "sworn falsely" in section 49 of the insolvent act, so as to prevent the insolvent from obtaining his discharge.—Demartin v. Demartin, 85 Cal. 76, 24 Pac. 596.

349a. Same—Element of fraud essential.—The phrase "have sworn falsely," in section 49 of the insolvent act, necessarily imports a wilful act done with a fraudulent intent, and from which the element of fraud can not be eliminated.—Dean v. Grimes, 72 Cal. 442, 14 Pac. 178; Demartin v. Demartin, 85 Cal. 76, 24 Pac. 596.

350. Benefit of act—Prior illegal proceeding.—A discharge can not be successfully contested on the ground that the insolvent had had the benefit of the act within three years prior to the application for discharge, where the prior petition had been dismissed because of less than three hundred dollars indebtedness.—In re Marsh, 115 Cal. 230, 46 Pac. 1072.

351. Former adjudication—Res adjudicata.—A former adjudication as to the validity and bona fides of a deed from the insolvent conveying certain of his property executed a few days before the filing of his petition, in an action by the assignee to set aside the deed, is a defense to an objection on the same ground to his discharge made by the creditors.—In re Baird, 84 Cal. 95, 24 Pac. 167.

352. Ignorant preference of a creditor, at time insolvent did not know his insolvency, is no bar to his discharge.—In re Harris, 81 Cal. 350, 22 Pac. 867.

353. Fraud in procuring—Forfeiture of benefits of act.—Under the provisions of section 32 of the act a discharge procured by fraud, concealment of property, or false statement in his schedule, can not be pleaded in bar of a subsequent suit.—Ellsasser v. Hunter, 26 Cal. 279.

354. As a bar—Fraud in procuring.—The discharge of an insolvent debtor under the act (1852) does not relieve him from liability upon a judgment previously rendered, upon which execution is subsequently issued, where it is shown that the discharge was procured by fraud, concealment of property, or false statements in his schedule.—Ellsasser v. Hunter, 26 Cal. 279.

355. Same—Future liability—Hiring for a fixed term.—A discharge is a bar to an action for the recovery of money due, subsequent to discharge under a previous contract entered into prior to discharge, for a fixed term, and the liability under such contract is one within the meaning of the act.—Mooney v. Detrick, 85 Cal. 549, 22 Pac. 1111, 26 Pac. 280.

356. Same—Debts created in a fiduciary capacity.—A commission merchant who receives goods to be sold and the proceeds transmitted to the consignor, less commission, and who sells the goods and fails to transmit the proceeds, thereby incurs a debt in a fiduciary capacity, and an action thereon against such merchant is not barred by a discharge in insolvency.—Mayberry v. Cook, 121 Cal. 588, 54 Pac. 95.

357. Same.—No defense when the record in insolvency neither names the plaintiff nor the contract on which action is brought, nor states that defendant described all his debts and liabilities to the best of his knowledge and belief.—Rourke v. McLaughlin, 38 Cal. 196.

358. Same.—Under act of 1880 bars action on judgment rendered in 1876.—Hundley v. Chaney, 65 Cal. 363, 4 Pac. 238.

360. Same—Contract of hiring.—A discharge is no bar to action on a contract for hiring for a certain length of time, where the money became due thereon after the discharge.—Mooney v. Detrick, 3 Cal. Unrep. 191, 22 Pac. 1111.

361. Effect—Debts owing at time of filing petition.—A discharge only affects debts owing at the filing of the petition.—Waggle v. Worthy, 74 Cal. 266, 5 Am. St. Rep. 440, 15 Pac. 831.

362. Release of mortgage.—Decree of discharge from promissory note secured by mortgage does not release the mortgage, but merely limits the mortgagee to the proceeds of the mortgage.—Luning v. Brady, 10 Cal. 265.

363. Same—Judgment not satisfied, when.—A judgment based on the fraudulent acts of the insolvent is not satisfied by the latter's discharge under the insolvent act.—Carit v. Williams, 74 Cal. 183, 15 Pac. 751.

364. Same—Judgment rendered in another state.—Discharge in this state is no bar to an action on a judgment rendered in another state in favor of a resident thereof.—Bean v. Loryea, 81 Cal. 151, 22 Pac. 513.

365. Same—Under void proceedings.—Where the proceedings under the act are without jurisdiction they are void, and the discharge can not be pleaded in bar on a subsequent creditor's suit.—Meyer v. Kohlman, 8 Cal. 44.

366. Same.—Judgment of discharge does not extinguish the debt, but merely relieves the debtor from compulsory payment, and leaves subsequent payment to his conscience.—Smith v. Richmond, 19 Cal. 476.

367. Same—Final as to insolvent—Jurisdiction to administer trust remains.—After the discharge the insolvent is not a necessary or proper party to subsequent proceedings, and so far as he is reasonably concerned the adjudication is final, but the jurisdiction of the court to administer the trust remains until the property is finally disposed of.—Rued v. Cooper, 109 Cal. 682, 34 Pac. 98.

368. Same—Discharge of partner as individual operates as a discharge from individual liability for the partnership debts.—Hawley v. Campbell, 62 Cal. 442; Dresbach v. Creditors, 63 Cal. 187.

369. Agreement not to contest, whether verbal or written, in consideration of payment of debt in full, is a "pecuniary consideration or obligation," and renders the discharge void under section 49.—Estudillo v. Meyerstein, 72 Cal. 317, 13 Pac. 869.

370. Denial.—Return of goods by the assignee to the sheriff, when discharge denied, held proper.—Appel v. Creditors, 57 Cal. 211.

371. Fraud in procuring discharge may be pleaded by the sheriff in an action against him by the transferee of a discharged insolvent for damages sustained in a levy of execution upon a judgment rendered previous to such discharge.—Ellsasser v. Hunter, 26 Cal. 279.

372. Collateral attack upon—Jurisdiction of court not proper subject of inquiry.—In a collateral attack upon a judgment of discharge the question of the jurisdiction of the court is not a proper subject of inquiry.—Friedlander v. Loucks, 34 Cal. 18.

373. Extra-territorial operation and effect.—Insolvent laws have none, and contracts of citizens of other states can not be discharged thereunder, unless such citizens voluntarily become parties to the proceeding.—Scamman v. Bonslett, 118 Cal. 93, 62 Am. St. Rep. 226, 50 Pac. 272.

374. Same.—Where both debtor and creditor were citizens of California at the date of the contract, and it was made and is payable in this state, a certificate of discharge in insolvency is a valid defense, although the creditor had afterwards become a resident of another state.—Scamman v. Bonslett, 118 Cal. 93, 62 Am. St. Rep. 226, 50 Pac. 272.

375. Same.—A discharge under the insolvent law does not bar an action by the citizen of another state on a promissory note which does not specify the place of payment, where the holder was at the time of its execution and continued to be a resident and citizen of another state.—Rhodes v. Borden, 67 Cal. 7, 6 Pac. 850.

376. Action to set aside for fraud.—May be brought under section 53, and need not necessarily be brought by motion in the insolvency proceedings.—Estudillo v. Meyerstein, 72 Cal. 317, 13 Pac. 869.

377. Same—Assignee.—An assignee of claims against an insolvent, not himself a creditor, is not within the terms of section 53 of the act of 1880, and can not, after the discharge of the insolvent, maintain an action to set aside the decree on the ground of fraud.—Sanborn v. Doe, 92 Cal. 152, 27 Am. St. Rep. 101, 28 Pac. 105.

378. Same—Creditor.—Creditor only can commence proceeding to annul certificate of discharge, as provided in section 53 of the act of 1880, and the assignee has no right to do so.—Wagner v. Superior Court, 4 Cal. Unrep. 310, 34 Pac. 648.

379. Same—Same.—The effect of a final discharge in insolvency proceedings is to end them so far as the insolvent is concerned, and can only be restored by a creditor's application to set it aside and annul the discharge.—Wagner v. Superior Court, 100 Cal. 359, 34 Pac. 820.

380. Stay of proceedings made pending petition for discharge under the insolvent act would not prevent issue of execution and sale of property of the judgment debtor thereunder during the time for the lien of the judgment.—Isaac v. Swift, 10 Cal. 71, 70 Am. Dec. 698.

380a. Right to set aside for fraud, not assignable.—Right to set aside decree on the ground of fraud under section 53 of the act of 1880, not subject to assignment.—Sanborn v. Doe, 92 Cal. 152, 27 Am. St. Rep. 101, 28 Pac. 105.

y. Judgment.

381. In rem as to status of debtor.—Decree is one in rem so far as the status of the debtor is concerned.—Arnold v. Kahn, 67 Cal. 472, 8 Pac. 36.

382. Collateral attack upon—Recital of jurisdictional facts.—A judgment which recites "That the requirements of said act . . . and all orders of the court herein, have, in every respect, been fully complied with and performed by said petitioner," sufficiently shows the existence of all jurisdictional facts necessary to uphold the judgment against collateral attack.—Langenour v. French, 34 Cal. 92.

383. Void for want of jurisdiction.—A judgment of discharge rendered by the county court without jurisdiction is void, and the creditors may enforce collection of their debts at discretion.—People ex rel. Sturgis v. County Court, 28 Cal. 115.

384. Docketing judgment is not required to preserve the lien.—Hastings v. Cunningham, 39 Cal. 137.

z. Contempt.

385. Failure to file schedules, and failure to obey a citation to answer concerning his property, may be punished, as for contempt, by imprisonment until he obeys the order.—In re Clarke, 125 Cal. 388, 58 Pac. 22.

386. Holding property claimed by receiver.—One who holds property claimed by receiver of an insolvent estate can not be adjudged in contempt for refusing to turn it over to the receiver on an order of court where he holds such property adversely to the insolvent for a corporation of which he is an officer.—Ex parte Hollis, 59 Cal. 405.

387. Refusal to surrender property.—Refusal of insolvent, after adjudication, may be punished as for contempt.—Ex parte Clark, 110 Cal. 405, 42 Pac. 905.

aa. Appeal and error.

388. Order refusing an adjudication.—Such an order is appealable, and therefore writ of error will lie.—Widber v. Superior Court, 94 Cal. 430, 29 Pac. 870.

389. Order requiring verification of schedule not appealable.—Order requiring an involuntary insolvent to verify his schedule is not appealable.—In re Abbott, 74 Cal. 381, 16 Pac. 21.

390. Time to appeal.—Minute order for discharge does not conclude trial where the court subsequently made findings and judgment of discharge was entered and an appeal within sixty days after filing of findings is in time notwithstanding the unexplained lapse of a year from the minute order and the filing of findings.—Sullivan v. Washburn & Moen Mfg. Co., 139 Cal. 257, 72 Pac. 992.

391. Jurisdiction of supreme court.—The supreme court has jurisdiction on appeal from a judgment in an insolvent case, as a special case within the meaning of section 336 of the practice act.—Fisk v. Creditors, 12 Cal. 281.

392. Appealable order.—Res adjudicata.—An order denying the right of the insolvent to grape crop on homestead, and affirming the right of the assignor, is appealable, and becomes res adjudicata, and a bar to an action to recover it, upon failure to appeal within the time limited.—Sunkler v. McKenzie, 127 Cal. 554, 78 Am. St. Rep. 86, 59 Pac. 982.

393. Appeal by creditor.—Service of notice of appeal need only be served on the insolvent, and need not be served on the receiver or the other creditors who had not filed proof of claims.—In re Choze, 112 Cal. 630, 44 Pac. 1066.

394. Same—Not estopped by making proof of claim.—Creditor is not estopped to pursue an appeal from adjudication of insolvency by making proof of claim.—In re Choze, 112 Cal. 630, 44 Pac. 1066.

395. Right of appeal regulated by general law.—Right of appeal regulated by the general law for appeals in civil cases.—Dennery v. Superior Court, 84 Cal. 7, 24 Pac. 147.

396. Bond of assignee operates as undertaking on appeal.—Under § 67 of the act of 1880 the assignee's bond operates as an undertaking on an appeal by him from a judgment or order, and when the judgment or order directs the payment of money, operates as a stay bond.—In re Sharp, 92 Cal. 577, 28 Pac. 783.

397. Order denying motion to dismiss proceedings made by creditor after adjudication of insolvency is not appealable.—In re Wierbitzky, 96 Cal. 310, 31 Pac. 115.

398. Crudities and bad grammar in the petition do not vitiate the pleading on appeal.—In re Ramazzina, 110 Cal. 488, 42 Pac. 980.

399. Appeal by creditor stays all proceedings under the order of adjudication, and the superior court has no jurisdiction to modify the order so as to allow execution against homestead of insolvent.—Stater v. Superior Court, 107 Cal. 536, 40 Pac. 949.

400. Appealable order.—An order directing the assigner to render an account as required by section 29 of the insolvent act of 1886, is not appealable.—Rosenthal, Feder & Co. v. Levy, 73 Cal. 9, 14 Pac. 368.

401. When the evidence is insufficient to sustain any of the grounds of opposition, a judgment refusing the discharge will be reversed.—In re Baird, 84 Cal. 95, 24 Pac. 167.

402. Appeal in contempt proceedings.—See “Constitutionality,” 5.

bb. Attorney’s fee.

403. Petition for, must show value of estate.—A petition for attorney’s fee in an insolvent case, which fails to show the nature and value of the estate, is insufficient.—In re Close, 106 Cal. 574, 39 Pac. 1067.

Dissolved savings bank fund.

§ 2. It is hereby made the duty of every person or corporation holding funds of any savings bank or trust company or bank of deposit, at the end of five years from and after such bank has ceased to receive deposits or do business, to pay the same into the state treasury, which money shall be held in the state treasury in a fund which is hereby designated as “the dissolved savings bank fund”; and at the same time it shall be the duty of such person or corporation to furnish to the state controller a list of the names of all depositors to whom said moneys belong or to whom said bank owes the same.

Investment of funds.

§ 6. Whenever and as often as there is in the state treasury to the credit of the said "the dissolved savings bank fund" the sum of ten thousand dollars, the state board of examiners must invest the same in civil funded bonds of this state, or in bonds of the United States, or in bonds of the several counties of this state; the investments to be made in such manner and upon such terms as the board shall deem for the best interests of the said "the dissolved savings bank fund"; provided, that no bonds of any counties shall be purchased, of which the debt, debts, or liabilities at the time exceed fifteen per cent of the assessed value of the taxable property of said county.

Bonds purchased, delivery to state treasury.

§ 7. All bonds purchased by the board under the provisions of this act must be delivered to the state treasurer, who shall keep them as a portion of said "the dissolved savings bank fund," the interest upon such bonds to be placed by him to the credit of said fund.

No foreign banking corporation shall transact business in this state until such corporation has made the assignment of capital required by this section and has received a certificate from the superintendent of banks; provided, that a foreign banking corporation shall not be permitted to accept deposits of money in this state but may receive a certificate from the superintendent of banks to transact in this state only the business of buying or selling, paying or collecting bills of exchange, or of issuing letters of credit or of receiving money for transmission or transmitting the same by draft, check, cable or otherwise, or of making loans; and provided, further, that those foreign banking corporations that now have power to do a banking business in this state and which now receive deposits of money shall be permitted to continue to accept money on deposit. Such service upon such attorney shall be deemed personal service on such corporation. The superintendent of banks shall forthwith forward by mail, postage prepaid, a copy of every process served upon him under the provisions of this section, addressed to the manager or agent of such corporation, at its principal place of business in this state. § 19. The aggregate of paid-up capital together with the surplus, of every commercial bank, must equal ten per centum of its deposit liabilities. The aggregate of paid-up capital and surplus of every savings bank having a capital stock, and the reserve fund of every savings bank without a capital stock, must equal the following percentages of its deposit liabilities:

- (a) Ten per centum of any amount up to and including two million dollars.
- (b) Seven and one-half per centum of any amount in excess of two million dollars up to and including five million dollars.

Total reserves of commercial banks.

§ 20. Every commercial bank shall maintain total reserves against its aggregate deposits, exclusive of United States and postal savings deposits and deposits of the state of California and of any county and municipality in the state of California, which are secured as required by law, as follows:

1. Eighteen per centum of such deposits if such bank has its principal place of business in a city having a population of one hundred thousand or over.
2. Fifteen per centum of such deposits, if such bank is located in a city having a population of fifty thousand or over and less than one hundred thousand.
3. Twelve per centum of such deposits if such bank is located elsewhere in the state.

How maintained. If member of federal reserve bank. Penalty for not maintaining reserves.

At least one-half of the total reserves shall be maintained as reserves on hand and shall consist of gold bullion or any form of money or currency authorized by the laws of the United States, and the remainder of the total reserves required by the provisions of this section shall be maintained as reserves on deposit or as reserves on hand; such reserves on hand to consist of gold bullion or any form of money or currency authorized by the laws of the United States; provided, however, that all or any part of the reserves may be deposited, subject to call, with a federal reserve bank in the district in which such bank is located.

If any bank shall have become a member of a federal reserve bank, it shall comply with the reserve requirements of the federal reserve act and its amendments, and its compliance therewith shall be in lieu of, and shall relieve such bank from compliance with, the provisions of this section.

If any bank shall not maintain the total reserves required the superintendent of banks may impose a penalty upon it, based upon the length of time such encroachment upon its total reserves amounting to one per centum or more of its aggregate deposits shall continue, at the following rates:

1. At the rate of six per centum per annum upon any such encroachment not exceeding two per centum of such deposits.
2. At the rate of eight per centum per annum upon any additional encroachment in excess of two and not exceeding three per centum of such deposits.

The superintendent of banks shall, in his discretion, upon the nomination of any bank, designate a depository or depositories for the reserves on deposit of such bank provided for by this act. Except as otherwise provided in this section, such depository shall be a bank or national banking association located in this state. Every reserve depository, which has its principal place of business in a judicial township or in a city located in this state in which the population is less than fifty thousand, shall have at all times as its total reserves an amount equal to the total reserves required by the provisions of this section for every bank which has its principal place of business in a city having a population of fifty thousand or over and less than one hundred thousand. But no bank or national banking association shall hereafter be designated as a depository of any such reserves unless it shall have a combined capital and surplus of not less than the following amounts:

2. Two hundred thousand dollars, if located in a city which has a population of one hundred thousand or over and less than three hundred thousand;
3. One hundred fifty thousand dollars, if located in a city which has a population of fifty thousand or over and less than one hundred thousand;
4. One hundred thousand dollars, if located elsewhere in the state.

Such depository may also be a banking corporation with a capital and surplus of one million dollars or more, located in any city in the United States.

Restoration of reserves. "Reserves on hand." "Reserves on deposit." "Total reserves." "Reserve depository."

If the total reserves of any bank shall be less than the amount required by this section, such bank shall not increase its liabilities by making any new loans or discounts, otherwise than by discounting bills of exchange on sight, or by paying any dividends from profits until the full amount of its total reserves has been restored. The superintendent of banks may notify any bank whose total reserves shall be below the amount herein required, to restore such total reserves; and, if it shall fail for thirty days thereafter to restore such total reserves, such bank shall be deemed insolvent and may be proceeded against under the provisions of this act; provided, that all deposits of money herein permitted or required shall comply with the provisions of section forty-three of this act.

The term, "reserves on hand," when used in this act, means the reserves against deposits kept, pursuant to the provisions of this act, in the vault of any bank or in any safety deposit box in any other bank in this state, said box to be under the exclusive control of the depositing bank.

The term, "reserves on deposit," when used in this act, means the reserves against deposits maintained by any bank pursuant to this act in reserve depositories, or in a federal reserve bank in the district in which such bank is located and not in excess of the amount authorized by this act.

The term, "total reserves," when used in this act, means the aggregate of reserves on hand and reserves on deposit maintained pursuant to the provisions of this act.

The term, "reserve depository," when used in this act, means a bank, trust company or banking corporation designated by the superintendent of banks on the nomination of the depositing bank as a depository for reserves on deposit. Dividends. Surplus. Charging loss to surplus. Depositors' prior claim.

§ 21. The directors of any bank having a capital stock may, at certain times, and in such manner as its by-laws prescribe, declare and pay dividends to depositors and stockholders of so much of the profits of the bank, and of the interest arising from the capital, surplus and deposits, as may be appropriated for that purpose under its by-laws or under its agreements with depositors, but every such bank shall, before the declaration of any such dividend, carry at least one-tenth part of the net profits of the stockholders for the preceding half year, or for such period as is covered by the dividend, to its surplus, until such surplus shall amount to twenty-five per centum of its paid-up capital stock. The whole or any part of such surplus, if held as the exclusive property of the stockholders, may at any time be converted into paid in capital, in which event such surplus shall be restored in the manner above provided until it amounts to twenty-five per centum of the aggregate paid-up capital stock. Subject to the provisions of section nineteen of this act, any losses sustained by any such bank in excess of its undivided profits may be charged to and paid from its surplus, in which event such surplus shall be restored in the manner above provided, to the amount required by law; provided, however, that any bank which has invested any portion of its surplus in its bank premises, furniture and fixtures, vaults, or safe deposit vaults and boxes necessary or proper to carry on its banking business shall not be permitted to charge any loss to that portion of its surplus so invested. A larger surplus may be created and nothing herein contained shall be construed as prohibitory thereof. The capital and assets of any such bank are a security to depositors and stockholders, depositors having the priority of security over stockholders. [Amendment approved May 6, 1913. Stats. 1913, p. 147.]

Preference to depositors. Terms and conditions on which bank may borrow money.

§ 21a. No bank, banker, or bank officer, shall give preference to any depositor or creditor except as otherwise authorized by law; provided, that any commercial bank or commercial department of a departmental bank, is authorized and empowered for temporary purposes, to borrow money, or to borrow money and pledge or hypothecate as collateral security therefor, its assets not exceeding fifty per centum in excess of the amount borrowed, but only to the extent and upon terms and conditions as follows:

(6) No bank shall make partial payments upon any certificate of deposit.

(7) In no case shall an overdraft of more than ninety days' standing be allowed as an asset of any bank.

§ 23. When a bank desires to do a departmental business, it shall first obtain the consent of the superintendent of banks, and in its application therefor, file a statement making a segregation of its capital and surplus for each department. Such capital and surplus, when so apportioned and approved by the superintendent of banks, shall be considered and treated as the separate capital and surplus of such department as if each department was a separate bank. Thereafter a bank may, from time to time, with the previous consent and approval of the superintendent of banks and subject to the provisions of section nineteen of this act, change any segregation and apportionment of capital and surplus previously made and make a new segregation and apportionment of its capital and surplus. Every bank hereafter organized doing a departmental business shall have paid up, in cash, capital stock as follows:

Not applicable to existing banks. May not decrease capital. Census.

The foregoing classification shall not apply to any bank already in existence which has received from the superintendent of banks a certificate to do a banking business; nor to any bank the location of which shall have been included by annexation or consolidation within the limits of a city of a class requiring a larger capitalization, but no bank thus excepted shall be permitted to establish any new branch office as provided in section nine of this act or to remove its place of business from the original limits of the city or township wherein it was located prior to such annexation or consolidation until it shall have the capital required of banks in such city not within said exception. Such excepted banks may not in any case decrease their capital stock but may increase the same in the manner provided by law to an amount either greater or less than that required of banks in such city not within said exception. The capital stock referred to herein shall be increased from time to time and to the same extent as provided for in section nineteen of this act. For the purposes of this act, the population shown and determined by the last preceding federal census, or any subsequent census compiled and certified under any law of this state, shall be deemed to be the population of any city in which any such bank is to be organized. If the principal place of business of any bank so organized is located outside of the corporate limits of any city, then the population of that portion of the judicial township in which said bank is to have its principal place of business, which is not included within the boundaries of any municipal corporation, as such population is shown and determined by such federal or subsequent official census, shall be the basis for classification under the provisions of this act. No department shall receive deposits from any other department of the same corporation; except that a trust department, in proper cases, may make deposits of trust or any other funds under its control with the savings department of the same corporation and may, upon order, previously obtained, of any court having jurisdiction of any trust or fund, make deposits of moneys belonging thereto with the commercial department of the same corporation; provided, however, that any bank having departments shall have the right to sell and transfer any bonds, securities or loans from one department to another upon receipt of the actual value thereof, if such bonds, securities or loans are, under the provisions of this act, a legal investment for the department purchasing the same. [Amendment of June 3, 1915. In effect August 8, 1915. Stats. 1915, p. 1109.]

§ 27. All money and assets belonging to each department, whether on hand or with other banks, and the investments made, shall be held solely for the repayment of the depositors and other claimants of each such department, as herein provided, until all depositors and other claimants of each such department shall have been paid, and the overplus then remaining shall be applied to any other liabilities of such bank. [Amendment approved May 6, 1913. Stats. 1913, p. 151.]

Signs must show kind of bank. "Branch."

§ 28. Every bank, which maintains a branch office, must on all window signs and in advertising, and on letterheads and other stationery on which the business of said branch office is transacted, use in letters and type, equal in prominence to that used in its corporate name, the word "branch" and the name of the place where its principal business is located. Non-stock corporations heretofore created.

§ 29. Every corporation heretofore created under the laws of this state, doing a banking business therein, and which has no capital stock, may elect to have a capital stock, and may issue certificates of stock therefor, in the same manner as corporations formed under the provisions of part IV, title I, chapter I, article I, of the Civil Code, relating to the formation of corporations; provided, that no such corporation shall use or convert any moneys or funds theretofore belonging to it, or under its control, into capital stock; but such funds or moneys must be held and managed only for the purposes and in the manner for which they were created. Before such change is made, a majority of the members of such corporation present at a meeting called for the purpose of considering the proposition whether it is best to have a capital stock, its amount, and the number of shares into which it shall be divided, must vote in favor of having a capital stock, fix the amount thereof, and the number of shares into which it shall be divided. Notice of the time and the place of holding such meeting, and its object, must be given by the president of such corporation by mailing notice of such meeting to each member of such corporation at his last known post office address at least ten days prior to the day fixed for such meeting, and by publication in some newspaper printed and published in the county, or city and county, in which the principal place of business of the corporation is situated, at least once a week for three consecutive weeks prior to the holding of the meeting. A copy of the proceedings of this meeting, giving the number of persons present, the votes taken, the notice calling the meeting, the proof of its publication, the amount of capital actually subscribed and by whom, all duly certified by the president and secretary of the corporation, must be filed in the office of the secretary of state and clerk of the county where the articles of incorporation are filed. Thereafter such corporation is possessed of all the rights and powers and is subject to all the obligations, restrictions and limitations, as if it had been originally created with a capital stock.

§ 30. Any bank may conduct a safe-deposit department, but shall not invest more than one-tenth of its capital and surplus in such safe-deposit department.

Sale of business. Conditions of sale stated. Rights of creditors. Publication of notice.

§ 31. Any bank may sell the whole of its business or the whole of the business of any of its departments to any other bank which may purchase such business after obtaining the consent of the stockholders of the selling and of the purchasing banks holding of record at least two-thirds of the issued capital stock of each of such corporations; such consent to be expressed either in writing executed and acknowledged by such stockholders and attached to the instrument of sale, or to a copy thereof, or by vote at a stockholders' meeting of each of such banks called for that purpose. The selling and purchasing banks must for such purposes enter into an agreement of sale and purchase, which agreement shall contain all the terms and conditions connected with such sale and purchase. Such agreement shall contain proper provision for the payment of liabilities of the selling bank or of the department sold, and in this particular shall be subject to the approval of the superintendent of banks; and shall not be valid until such approval is obtained. Such agreement may contain provisions for the transfer of all deposits to the purchasing bank, subject, however, to the right of every depositor of the selling bank to withdraw his deposit in full amount on demand after such transfer, irrespective of the terms under which it was deposited with the selling bank. The rights of creditors of the selling bank shall not in any manner be impaired by any such sale, nor shall any liability or obligation for the payment of any money due or to become due, or any claim or demand, in any manner, or for any cause existing against such selling bank or against any stockholder thereof, be in any manner released or impaired, and all the rights, obligations and relations of all the parties, creditors, depositors, trustees and beneficiaries of trusts shall remain unimpaired by the sale, but such bank to which the other shall sell all its business or all the business of any of its departments, shall succeed to all such relations, obligations, trusts and liabilities and be held liable to pay and discharge all such debts and liabilities and to perform all such trusts of the selling bank in the same manner as if such bank to which the other had sold had itself incurred the obligation or liability or assumed the relation of trust, and the stockholders of the respective corporations so entering into such agreement shall continue subject to all the liabilities, claims and demands existing against them as such at or before such sale. Immediately after the execution of such agreement of sale and purchase notice thereof shall be published for at least four successive weeks in a newspaper in each of the counties of the state in which either of such banks shall have its principal place of business; provided, however, that no action can be brought against such selling bank or any of its stockholders on account of any deposits so transferred after the expiration of one year from the last day of publication herein required. An affidavit showing such publication shall be filed in the office of the superintendent of banks within ten days after the last publication thereof. The affairs of such selling bank, or selling department of a bank, shall remain subject to the provisions of this act. [Amendment approved May 6, 1913. Stats. 1913, p. 151.]

§ 31a. Any bank incorporated under the laws of this state may consolidate with one or more banks incorporated under the laws of this state, its capital stock, properties, trusts, claims, demands, contracts, agreements, obligations, debts, liabilities and assets of every kind and description, upon such terms and in such manner as may be agreed upon by their respective boards of directors, a copy of which agreement must be filed in the office of the superintendent of banks; provided, that such agreement shall be subject to the approval of the superintendent of banks and shall not be valid until such approval be obtained; provided, further, that no such consolidation shall take effect until such agreement shall have been ratified and confirmed in writing by the stockholders of the respective banks holding of record at least two-thirds of the issued capital stock of their respective banks, or such agreement may be submitted to the stockholders of each of such corporations at a meeting thereof to be called upon notice specifying the time, place and object thereof, addressed to each stockholder at his last known post-office address and deposited in the post-office, postage prepaid, at least two weeks prior to the date fixed for said meeting, and published for at least two successive weeks, prior to the date of said meeting, in a newspaper in each of the counties of the state in which any of such banks shall have its principal place of business, and if such agreement shall be approved at each of such meetings of the respective stockholders separately by the vote or ballot of the stockholders owning at least two-thirds of the stock of each such bank, the same shall be the agreement of such banks. In case of such consolidation "articles of incorporation and consolidation" must be prepared, setting forth:

First—The name of the new corporation;

Second—The purpose for which it is formed;

Third—The place where its principal business is to be transacted;

Fourth—The term for which it is to exist, which shall not exceed fifty years;

Fifth—The number of its directors (which shall not be less than three) and the names and residences of the persons appointed to act as such until their successors are elected and qualified;

Sixth—The amount of its capital stock and the number of shares into which it is divided;

Seventh—The amount of stock actually subscribed, and by whom;

Eighth—The names of the constituent corporations.

By whom signed. Articles filed with county clerk. With secretary of state. Certificate of authorization. Obligations not impaired. Right to increase stock.

Said articles of incorporation and consolidation must be signed and countersigned by the president and secretary of each constituent corporation and sealed with their corporate seals. There must be annexed thereto the approval of the superintendent of banks and memoranda of the ratification and confirmation thereof by the stockholders of each constituent corporation, which must be respectively signed and acknowledged by stockholders representing at least two-thirds of the capital stock of their respective corporations. When completed as aforesaid said articles must be filed in the office of the county clerk of the county in which is located the principal place of business of the new corporation, and a copy of the articles of incorporation and consolidation certified by such county clerk must be filed in the office of the secretary of state, who must issue, over the great seal of the state, a certificate that a copy of the articles of incorporation and consolidation containing the required statement of facts has been filed in his office. The secretary of state must file in his office a duplicate of the certificate hereinbefore provided for and copies thereof, duly certified by the secretary of state, shall have the same force and effect in evidence as the original. A copy of the articles of incorporation and consolidation, certified by said secretary of state, must be filed in the office of the superintendent of banks, and also in the office of the county clerk of any county in which were filed the original articles of incorporation of either of the constituent corporations. When the superintendent of banks issues the certificate of authorization provided for by section one hundred twenty-eight of this act the new or consolidated corporation shall be a body politic and corporate by the name stated in the certificate, and for the term of fifty years, unless it is, in the articles of incorporation and consolidation, otherwise stated and thereupon each constituent corporation named in the articles of incorporation and consolidation must be deemed and held to have become extinct in all courts and places, and said new corporation must be deemed and held in all courts and places to have succeeded to all their several capital stocks, properties, trusts, claims, demands, contracts, agreements, assets, choses and rights in action of every kind and description, both at law and in equity, and to be entitled to possess, enjoy, and enforce the same and every [part] thereof, as fully and completely as either and every of its constituents might have done had no consolidation taken place. Said consolidated or new corporation must also, in all courts and places, be deemed and held to have become subrogated to its several constituents and each thereof, in respect to all their contracts and agreements with other parties, and all their debts, obligations, and liabilities, of every kind and nature, to any persons, corporations, or bodies politic, whomsoever, or whatsoever, and said new corporation must sue and be sued in its own name in any and every case in which any or either of its constituents might have sued or might have been sued at law or in equity had no such consolidation been made. Nothing in this section contained shall be construed to impair the obligation of any contract to which any of such constituents were parties at the date of such consolidation. by the state treasurer, the superintendent of banks or other public officials for or in respect of trust companies, shall be performed for such national banking association equally with trust companies. Every such national banking association which shall be authorized to exercise said fiduciary powers, and which has qualified by making the deposit of securities required by the law of this state, may act, or may be appointed by any court to act in any such capacity in like manner as an individual. The superintendent of banks shall inspect and examine the books, records and assets of the trust department of each national banking association which conducts a trust department in this state to the same extent that the said superintendent of banks exercises visitatorial supervision over trust companies organized and existing under the laws of this state.

The charge by the state banking department for all services rendered to any national banking association by the superintendent of banks, in accordance with the provisions of this section, shall be paid by the national banking association requiring such services. Such charge for services shall be determined by the superintendent of banks, and shall be no higher than the charge for a similar service to trust companies organized under the laws of this state.

The cost of all regular and ordinary service shall be calculated upon the amount of the securities deposited by each such national bank with the treasurer of the state for the due execution and faithful performance of its court and private trusts at the same ratio as is applied to the capital and surplus of trust companies organized under the laws of this state in determining the cost to them for such services.

The cost of all special and extraordinary services shall be the same as that provided for in section one hundred twenty-four of this act. [New section added May 15, 1919. In effect July 22, 1919. Stats. 1919, p. 628.]

Any commercial bank, individual, trust company, association, firm, stock company, copartnership or corporation, violating any provision of this section shall forfeit to this state one hundred dollars a day for every day during which such violation continues. deposit any money then in his hands as such officer or trustee or which may thereafter come into his hands, and until the further order of the court, in any bank organized under the laws of the state of California; and upon such deposit being made, the officer or trustee so depositing the same shall thereafter and while such moneys remain on deposit in such bank, be relieved and discharged from all liability and responsibility therefor, and the bond required of such officer or trustee given upon his appointment shall be thereupon by said court reduced to such an amount as the court may deem reasonable; such deposit shall be repaid only upon the orders of said court, and shall be a preferred claim against such bank and be paid in full before any other depositor of such bank shall have been paid.

Certified checks.

§ 52. Whenever a check drawn on any bank is certified by any officer or employee of such bank, the amount thereof shall be immediately charged against the account of the person, firm or corporation drawing the same. It shall be unlawful for any officer or employee of any bank to certify any check drawn upon such bank unless the person, firm or corporation drawing the check has on deposit with the bank at the time such check is certified, an amount of money subject to the payment of such check, equal to the amount specified in such check. Any officer or employee of any bank who shall willfully violate the provisions of this section, or shall resort to any device, or receive any fictitious obligations, directly or indirectly, in order to evade the provisions hereof, or who shall certify checks before the amount thereof shall have been regularly entered to the credit of the drawer, shall be guilty of a felony. Real estate to be sold within five years. Appraisal of value. Notice of sale. Minimum price. Fees. Cost.

§ 54. All real estate purchased by any bank at sales under pledges, mortgages or deeds of trust for its benefit for money loaned and such as may be conveyed to it by borrowers in satisfaction and discharge of loans made thereon and all other real estate owned or held by it, which is not necessary for carrying on its business, must be sold or exchanged for other real estate by such bank within five years after title thereto shall have vested in it by purchase or otherwise; provided, however, that no exchange of such real estate for other real estate shall be made unless and until written consent thereto shall first be given by the superintendent of banks; and provided, further, that any real estate so taken in exchange may be held for such period of time as the superintendent of banks may fix but not to exceed five years. Parcels of such real estate not sold or exchanged within said time may be purchased by any person wanting the same upon the conditions and proceedings following: The intending purchaser may file a petition in the superior court in and for the county wherein said real estate or any portion thereof is situated; upon the filing of such petition a citation shall be issued out of said court directed to the bank owning such real estate requiring such bank to show cause on a day certain which shall be not earlier than ten days after the service of such citation, why commissioners should not be appointed by said court for the purpose of appraising the value of the real estate described in the petition and of selling the same at public auction under the provisions of this section. If there shall be any liens or encumbrances of record against such real estate the person or persons holding such liens or encumbrances shall likewise be cited and the court shall in its final decree distribute the proceeds of such sale, if a sale thereof shall be made, according to the equities of the parties. If it shall appear at the hearing of such petition that the real estate therein sought to be purchased is held by such bank in violation of the provisions of this section or of the constitution of this state, the court shall appoint three commissioners to appraise the value thereof and sell the same at public auction at the county seat of the county wherein said real estate or any part thereof is located. Notice of which said sale shall be given to the bank owning said real estate and to any other persons interested therein as shown by the records of such county at least ten days before the date of such sale and shall be published once a week for three successive weeks in some newspaper published in the county where such real estate or any part thereof may be located, or if no newspaper shall be published in such county then in a newspaper published in some neighboring county. Such notice shall state the time and place of such sale and shall describe the real estate to be sold with common certainty and state the value thereof as fixed by the appraisement of such commissioners and state that no bid less than such appraised value will be received therefor. No sale shall be made for an amount less than the appraised value of such real estate fixed by said commissioners, and in the event that no bid is received at such sale at least equal to said appraised value of said real estate no intending purchaser can institute the proceedings provided for in this section within one year thereafter. In case of any sale made under the provisions of this section and of the refusal of any bank owning such real estate or of any lienholder or encumbrancer to execute the conveyances or releases necessary or proper to vest the title of such bank, lienholder or encumbrancer in the purchaser thereof the court shall have power in such proceedings to direct said commissioners to execute such deeds, conveyances or releases upon the payment to them of the purchase price therefor. The fees of such commissioners and cost of sale shall be fixed by the court, upon making such appointment, but the entire expense thereof shall not exceed one hundred dollars. The cost of any such proceedings shall be borne by the intending purchaser if no sale shall be made, but if a sale shall be made the costs of such proceedings shall be borne by the purchaser of the property and the person who filed the petition and advanced the costs of such proceedings shall be reimbursed in case he shall not become such purchaser. All sales hereunder shall be returned to the court having jurisdiction of the matter in the same manner as in the case of sales, by commissioners, of real estate on foreclosure of mortgages. Nothing in this section contained shall be deemed to affect the power of the superintendent of banks to require the writing down of the value of real estate held by any bank, at any time, when such writing down shall be proper. [Amendment of May 17, 1917. In effect July 27, 1917. Stats. 1917, p. 622.]

Any bank which shall have become a member of a federal reserve bank shall be subject to the examinations required under the terms of the federal reserve act, and the superintendent of banks may, in his discretion, accept such examination in lieu of the examination required under the provisions of this act, and he, his agents and employees, may furnish to the federal reserve board, the federal reserve bank, or to examiners duly appointed by the federal reserve board or the federal reserve bank, copies of all examinations made, and may disclose to such federal reserve board, federal reserve bank, or examiner, any information with reference to the condition or affairs of state bank members. Application for permission to engage in foreign banking.

§ 58. Any bank possessing a capital and surplus of one million dollars or more may file application with the superintendent of banks for permission to exercise, upon such conditions and under such regulations as he may prescribe, either or both of the following powers:

First—To establish branches in foreign countries or in dependencies or insular possessions of the United States for the furtherance of the foreign commerce of this state and of the United States.

Second—To invest an amount not exceeding in the aggregate ten per centum of its paid-in capital stock and surplus in the stock of one or more banks or corporations chartered or incorporated under the laws of the state of California, and principally engaged in international or foreign banking or banking in a dependency or insular possession of the United States either directly or through the agency, ownership or control of local institutions in foreign countries, or in such dependencies or insular possessions.

Such applications shall specify the name and capital of the bank filing it, the powers applied for and the place or places where the banking operations proposed are to be carried on. The superintendent of banks shall have power to approve or to reject such application in whole or in part if for any reason the granting of such application is deemed inexpedient, and shall also have power from time to time to increase or decrease the number of places where such banking operations may be carried on.

Information regarding foreign branches.

Every bank operating foreign branches shall be required to furnish information concerning the condition of such branches to the superintendent of banks upon demand, and every bank investing in the capital stock of banks or corporations described under subparagraph two of the first paragraph of this section shall be required to furnish information concerning the condition of such banks or corporations to the superintendent of banks upon demand, and the superintendent of banks may order special examinations of the said branches, banks or corporations at such time or times as he may deem best. The cost of such special examinations shall be paid by said branches, banks or corporations.

Regulations by superintendent.

Before any bank shall be permitted to purchase stock in any such corporation the said corporation shall enter into an agreement or undertaking with the superintendent of banks to restrict its operations or conduct its business in such manner or under such limitations and restrictions as the said superintendent of banks may prescribe for the place or places wherein such business is to be conducted. If at any time the superintendent of banks shall ascertain that the regulations by him are not being complied with, said superintendent of banks shall be authorized and shall have power to institute an investigation of the matter and to send for persons and papers, subpoena witnesses and administer oaths in order to satisfy himself as to the actual nature of the transactions referred to. Should such investigation result in establishing the failure of the corporation in question, or of the bank or banks which may be stockholders therein, to comply with the regulations laid down by the said superintendent of banks, such banks may be required to dispose of stockholdings in the said corporation upon thirty days' notice, and in the event of their noncompliance with such order the superintendent of banks may institute proceedings for forfeiture of license

Every such bank shall conduct the accounts of each foreign branch independently of the accounts of other foreign branches established by it and of its home office, and shall at the end of each fiscal period transfer to its general ledger the profit or loss accruing to each branch as a separate item. Capital stock of savings banks. Without capital stock.

§ 60. Every savings bank hereafter organized must have paid up in cash a capital stock of not less than

(a) Twenty-five thousand dollars if its principal place of business is located in any locality the population of which does not exceed five thousand persons;

(b) Fifty thousand dollars if its principal place of business is located in any city the population of which is more than five thousand persons, but does not exceed twenty-five thousand persons;

(c) One hundred thousand dollars if its principal place of business is located in any city the population of which is more than twenty-five thousand persons but does not exceed one hundred thousand persons;

(e) Three hundred thousand dollars if its principal place of business is located in any city the population of which is more than two hundred thousand persons.

Excepting that any savings bank organized without capital stock must have a reserve fund of at least one million dollars. Until the capital stock or reserve fund hereinbefore required shall be actually paid in, the superintendent of banks shall refuse to issue the certificate required by this act. The foregoing classification shall not apply to any savings bank already in existence which has received its certificate to do a banking business from the superintendent of banks; nor to any bank the location of which shall have been included by annexation or consolidation within the limits of a city of a class requiring a larger capitalization, but no bank thus excepted shall be permitted to establish any new branch office as provided in section nine of this act or to remove its place of business from the original limits of the city or township wherein it was located prior to such annexation or consolidation until it shall have the capital required of banks in such city not within said exception. Such excepted banks may not in any case decrease their capital stock but may increase the same in the manner provided by law to an amount either greater or less than that required of banks in such city not within said exception; provided, that nothing herein shall be construed to affect the provisions of section nineteen of this act relative to the proportion of capital and surplus to deposits or of section twenty-three of this act relative to the capital stock required of banks doing a departmental business. The provisions of section twenty-three of this act, as to population, shall apply to any bank organized under the provisions of this section. [Amendment approved May 6, 1913. Stats. 1913, p. 160.]

Purchase of real or personal property by savings banks.

1. The lot and building in which the business of the bank is carried on; furniture and fixtures, vaults and safe deposit vaults and boxes necessary or proper to carry on its banking business; such lot and building, furniture and fixtures, vaults and safe deposit vaults and boxes shall not, in the aggregate, be carried on the books of such bank as an asset to an amount exceeding its paid-up capital and surplus; and hereafter, the authority of a two-thirds vote of all of the directors shall be necessary to authorize the purchase of such lot and building, or the construction of such building.

(3) Bonds of any railroad corporation, the payment of which has been guaranteed, both as to principal and interest, by a railroad corporation meeting the requirements of either subdivision (1) or (2) of paragraph (f) of this section; provided, that such guaranteeing corporation has had for the period herein fixed net earnings amounting to at least one and one-half times the interest on all its outstanding mortgage indebtedness and, in addition thereto, sufficient, taken with the earnings of all corporations whose bonds it has guaranteed, to qualify as investments for savings banks, as in this section provided, all such guaranteed bonds; provided, that the excess of income of any corporation whose bonds have been so guaranteed, over the amount required by this section for such corporation, shall not apply to or be included in determining the income so required; provided, further, that the guarantee of such bonds hereafter guaranteed must establish a lien upon all the operating properties of the guaranteeing corporation, which lien must take precedence over any subsequent issues of mortgage obligations by said guaranteeing corporation.

Rule for determination of income.

In determining the income of any corporation specified in paragraph (f) of subdivision three of this section, there shall be included the income of any corporation or corporations out of which it shall have been formed through consolidation or merger, and of any corporation or corporations, the entire business and income producing property of which the corporation issuing such bonds has wholly acquired.

IV. An underlying or divisional closed mortgage or deed of trust of property which forms a part of the operating system of the corporation then owning said property. In the case of bonds secured by an underlying or divisional closed mortgage or deed of trust, the net income required by this section shall be based exclusively upon the income, maintenance charges, operating expenses, taxes, and mortgage indebtedness of or against the property covered by such underlying or divisional closed mortgage or deed of trust, or, if such income, maintenance charges or operating expenses can not be definitely ascertained, on the proper proportionate share of such property in the general income, maintenance charges, operating expenses, and taxes of the corporation then owning such property and on the mortgage indebtedness of or against the property covered by such underlying or divisional closed mortgage or deed of trust; provided, however, that if the payment of the bonds secured by such underlying or divisional closed mortgage or deed of trust shall be guaranteed or assumed by the corporation then owning the property securing the same, such bonds shall be legal investments for savings banks, if the net income of such corporation from all sources shall equal the amount herein required, notwithstanding any insufficiency of the income derived from the property covered by such underlying or divisional closed mortgage or deed of trust to meet the requirements of this section.

No savings bank shall purchase the bonds of any railroad corporation deriving less than twenty per centum of its gross receipts from passenger revenues.

In determining the income of any corporation specified in paragraph (g) of subdivision three of this section, there shall be included the income of any corporation or corporations out of which it shall have been formed through consolidation or merger, and of any corporation the entire business and income producing property of which the corporation issuing such bonds has wholly acquired.

III. A refunding mortgage or deed of trust providing for the retirement of all prior lien mortgage debts of said corporation and restricting the issuance of further bonds until such time as the income of said corporation shall have been at least sufficient, during the twelve months next preceding the issuance of any additional bonds, to meet the earning requirements of such corporation after including the additional bonds then proposed to be issued; or,

Trust deed on operative property.

IV. An underlying or divisional closed mortgage or deed of trust of property which forms a part of the operating system of the corporation then owning said property. In the case of bonds secured by an underlying or divisional closed mortgage or deed of trust, the net income required by this section shall be based exclusively upon the the income, maintenance charges, operating expenses, taxes and mortgage indebtedness of or against the property covered by such underlying or divisional closed mortgage or deed of trust or, if such income, maintenance charges or operating expenses can not be definitely ascertained, on the proper proportionate share of such property in the general income, maintenance charges, operating expenses and taxes of the corporation then owning such property and on the mortgage indebtedness of or against the property covered by such underlying or divisional closed mortgage or deed of trust; provided, however, that if the payment of the bonds secured by such underlying or divisional closed mortgage or deed of trust shall be guaranteed or assumed by the corporation then owning the property securing the same, such bonds shall be legal investments for savings banks, if the net income of such corporation from all sources shall equal the amount herein required, notwithstanding any insufficiency of the income derived from the property covered by such underlying or divisional closed mortgage or deed of trust to meet the requirements of this section.

Definitions.

Market value of oil and timber land.

In determining the market value of any real estate under the provisions of paragraph (h), subdivision three of this section, where such real estate, improved or unimproved, consists of oil or other mineral or timber land, the value represented by such oil or other mineral or timber shall not be included in fixing such market value.

Nothing herein contained shall prevent savings banks from making loans secured by mortgage or deed of trust upon lands wherein redwood timber is included in fixing the market value thereof.

Collateral trust bonds.

(i) Collateral trust bonds or notes when secured by either:

(1) Deposit of bonds authorized for investment by this section of a market value at least fifteen per centum in excess of the par value of the collateral trust bonds or notes issued; or,

(2) Deposit of bonds authorized for investment by this section and other securities of a combined market value at least twenty per centum in excess of the par value of the collateral trust bonds or notes issued; provided, that the par value of said collateral trust bonds or notes shall in no case exceed the market value of that portion of the security represented by bonds authorized for investment by his section.

"Net earnings."

"Net earnings" as used in this section shall be deemed to mean the amount remaining after deducting from the gross earnings all taxes, maintenance charges and operating expenses except depreciation charges, sinking fund charges and interest on indebtedness.

Unless herein otherwise expressly provided the period for which any corporation must have "net earnings" sufficient to qualify its bonds as an investment for savings banks under this section shall be either the fiscal year of such corporation next preceding the investment therein by any savings bank or twelve consecutive months in the fourteen months next preceding such investment.

Bonds, etc., certified by superintendent of banks.

No notes, bonds, or other securities shall be deemed to come within or conform to the requirements of either of paragraphs (f), (g), (h), or (i) of subdivision three of this section, unless such notes, bonds or other securities shall, in the manner provided in this act, have been certified by the superintendent of banks to come within and fully conform to the requirements of one or the other of said paragraphs; provided, however, that any bank may, without such certification by the superintendent of banks, purchase any note or bond or issue of notes or bonds provided for in said paragraph (h), when-

The legality of investments heretofore lawfully made pursuant to the provisions of this section, or of any law of this state as it existed on and subsequent to July 1, 1909, shall not be affected by any amendments to this section or this act; nor shall any such amendments require the changing of investments once lawfully made under this act.

Investment value of bonds.

Any bonds authorized by this section as a legal investment for savings banks may be carried on the books of said bank at their investment value, based on their market value at the time they were originally bought, unless the superintendent of banks shall require any or all of the bonds which may thereafter have a market value less than the original investment value to be written down to such new market value which shall be done gradually if practicable and in such manner as he may determine; or he may, by a plan of amortization to be determined by him, require such gradual extinction of premium as will bring such bonds to par at maturity.

When it shall be necessary to prevent loss to any savings bank on an obligation owned or on a debt previously contracted in good faith, it may, with the previous written consent of the superintendent of banks, purchase or acquire bonds of any railroad corporation incorporated under the laws of the state of California and operated exclusively therein, notwithstanding such bonds do not conform to the requirements in this section contained; provided, any bonds so purchased or acquired must be sold for the best price obtainable by any bank within five years after such purchase or acquisition.

Bonds of public utilities.

No savings bank shall hereafter purchase or loan money upon any bond, note or other evidence of indebtedness, issued by any "public utility," subject to the jurisdiction, regulation or control of the railroad commission of this state under the provisions of the "public utilities act," approved December 23, 1911, and acts amendatory thereof or supplemental thereto, unless each such bond, note or other evidence of indebtedness was either:

- (c) A note issued for a period not exceeding twelve months, in accordance with the provisions of subdivision (b) of section fifty-two of said act.

State does not guarantee validity of bonds.

No provision of this act, and no act or deed, done or performed under or in connection therewith, and no finding made or certificate issued under any provision thereof, shall be held or construed to obligate the state of California to pay, or be liable for the payment of, or to guarantee in any manner whatsoever, the regularity or the validity of the issuance of any stock or bond certificate, or bond, note, or other evidence of indebtedness certified under any provisions of this act, by the superintendent of banks.

Advertisement of bonds as legal investment. Penalty for false advertisement.

It shall not be lawful for any individual, firm, association, bank, trust company, stock company, copartnership or corporation to advertise by newspaper or circular or in any other manner that any securities are legal investments for savings banks in this state or to use any advertisement which might lead the public to believe that any securities conform to the requirements of law relating to investments by savings banks unless such securities are such as are specified in paragraphs (a), (aa), (b), (c), (d), (e), (j), or (k) of subdivision three of this section or shall, in the manner provided in this act, have been certified by the superintendent of banks to come within and fully conform to the requirements of one or the other of paragraphs (f), (g), (h), or (i) of subdivision three of this section or unless such advertisement shall have been approved in writing by the superintendent of banks prior to publishing, circulating or otherwise issuing the same. Any individual, firm, association, bank, trust company, stock company, copartnership or corporation who shall advertise any securities in violation of the provisions of this paragraph shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and shall be punishable by a fine not exceeding one thousand dollars or by imprisonment in a county jail not exceeding one year or by both such fine and imprisonment. [Amendment of May 15, 1919. In effect July 22, 1919. Stats. 1919, p. 631.]

Superintendent of banks may investigate bonds.

§ 61a. The superintendent of banks shall have power, when any issue of bonds or securities is presented to him for that purpose, to investigate and ascertain whether such bonds or securities come within and fully conform to all the requirements of paragraphs (f), (g), (h), or (i) of subdivision three of section sixty-one of this act, or of either of said paragraphs.

Opinions of attorneys.

He may also investigate and ascertain for what period of time, and upon what conditions, any franchise granted to or held by any corporation issuing any such bonds or securities will remain in force, and any other facts or conditions bearing upon the value or sufficiency of such bonds. The superintendent of banks may accept and act upon the opinions and appraisements of any attorneys, engineers, or appraisers which may be presented by such person or corporation, so applying, and the reports of any of the executive officers of the corporation issuing such bonds or securities, on any question of fact concerning or affecting such bonds or securities, the security thereof, the franchise conditions herein mentioned, or the financial condition of the corporation issuing the same. In lieu of or in addition to such opinions, appraisements and reports, the superintendent of banks may, if he deems proper, have any or all such matters passed upon and certified to him by attorneys, engineers, appraisers or accountants of his own selection at the expense of the applicant. If the superintendent of banks shall find from such investigation that the bonds or securities so presented come within and fully conform to all the requirements of any of said paragraphs of subdivision three of section sixty-one of this act, and is satisfied from such investigation as to such franchise conditions, he shall so certify unless for any reason he shall be of the opinion that such bonds are not a safe or proper investment for saving banks, and in such event or if such bonds shall fail to meet the requirements of this act such certificate must be refused. (b) If the commercial bank making such loan be liable, directly or indirectly, or contingently, for the repayment of such loan or any part thereof;

(c) If its term, including any renewal thereof by agreement, express or implied, exceed the period of one year;

(d) Or to an amount under any circumstances in excess of twenty-five per centum of the capital and surplus of the commercial bank making such loan.

All the provisions of this section relating to reports shall apply to the granting of credit and all loans made under any credit given and payments made thereon shall also be reported immediately after the same is made. In case of a loan made without the previous authorization of the directors, the fact of making such loan shall forthwith be reported and the action of the board of directors, in confirming or refusing to confirm such loan within thirty days thereafter, and the fact of final payment when made shall be reported in the same manner as herein required for loans made under previous authorization. Any officer, director, agent, or employee of a commercial bank, who knowingly procures a loan from such commercial bank contrary to the provisions of this section, shall be guilty of a felony. In case of the neglect or failure of the secretary or cashier of any such bank to report to the superintendent of banks, as herein provided, any of the facts so required to be reported, or in case of the neglect or failure of the secretary or cashier of any such bank to report to the superintendent of banks any loan made contrary to the provisions of this section, the bank shall be liable therefor and shall forfeit to the people of the state of California twenty-five dollars per day for each day, or part thereof, during which such neglect or failure continues.

Any such trust company may, as provided in this act, accept or receive any deposit of money or personal property authorized, directed or permitted to be made with any such corporation by any court or law of this state, and may accept and execute any trust provided for in this act, or permitted by any law of this state, to be taken, accepted or executed by an individual. Any such trust company, if located in a city the population of which does not exceed one hundred thousand persons must segregate that portion of its capital and surplus assigned to or available for its trust business and must apportion and set aside at least fifty thousand dollars of such paid-up capital as security for the faithful performance and execution of all private trusts accepted by it and must also apportion and set aside at least fifty thousand dollars of such paid-up capital as security for the faithful performance and execution of all court trusts accepted by it and whenever such trust company shall, under the provision of sections ninety-six and ninety-eight of this act, be required to make the first additional deposit of securities with the state treasurer, such trust company must also apportion and set aside an additional fifty thousand dollars of paid-up capital as security for the faithful performance and execution of all private trusts accepted by it and must also apportion and set aside an additional fifty thousand dollars of paid-up capital as security for the faithful performance and execution of all court trusts accepted by it, and any such trust company, if located in a city, the population of which exceeds one hundred thousand persons, must segregate that portion of its capital and surplus assigned to or available for its trust business and must apportion and set aside at least one hundred thousand dollars of such paid-up capital as security for the faithful performance and execution of all private trusts accepted by it and must also apportion and set aside at least one hundred thousand dollars of such paid-up capital as security for the faithful performance and execution of all court trusts accepted by it; provided, that no such trust company shall at any time be required to apportion and set aside any portion of its surplus as security for the faithful performance and execution of such private trusts, nor shall it be prohibited from so doing; and provided, further, that the respective amounts of capital or capital

Upon receiving such request in writing, and satisfactory proof of the facts warranting such withdrawal, it shall be the duty of the superintendent of banks to forthwith deliver to the state treasurer a written order directing the withdrawal of said securities so as to conform with the provisions of this section, and it shall be the duty of the state treasurer to comply with such written order. The validity or legality of any act or proceeding done or taken by any such trust company, relating to or in connection with the administration of any such trusts, shall not be affected or impaired by the neglect or failure of such trust company, or of any officer or employee thereof, to comply with any of the provisions of this act, but all such acts and proceedings done or taken prior to the revocation of its certificate of authority to do such business by the superintendent of banks, under the provisions of this act, or the revocation by any court or judge thereof of the appointment, order or decree theretofore entered in such trust matter shall be as valid and effective for all purposes as if any such neglect or failure had not occurred. State banking department superintendent appointed by governor.

§ 120. There is hereby created a state banking department. The chief officer of such department shall be the superintendent thereof, and be known as the superintendent of banks. He shall be appointed by the governor, and shall hold office at the pleasure of the governor. He shall not, either directly or indirectly, be interested in any commercial bank, savings bank or trust company, or as an individual banker. He shall receive an annual salary of ten thousand dollars, to be paid monthly out of the state treasury on a warrant of the controller. He shall, within fifteen days from the time of notice of his appointment, take and subscribe to the constitutional oath of office, and file the same in the office of the secretary of state, and execute to the people of the state a bond in the penal sum of fifty thousand dollars, with corporate surety or two or more sureties to be approved by the governor of the state, conditioned for the faithful discharge of the duties of his office. [Amendment approved February 6, 1911. Stats. 1911, p. 7.]

Employees of superintendent of banks. Compensation. In case of vacancy. Not to borrow from banks.

§ 121. The superintendent of banks shall employ a chief deputy, attorney and such examiners and other assistants as he may need to discharge in a proper manner the duties imposed upon him by law, none of which examiners or assistants or attorney shall be interested in any bank in this state as director, stockholder, officer or employee, and they shall perform such duties as he shall assign to them. He shall fix the compensation of the chief deputy, attorney, examiners and other assistants, which compensation shall be paid monthly on his certificate and on the warrant of the controller out of the state treasury. The chief deputy shall within fifteen days from the time of his appointment take and subscribe to the constitutional oath of office and file the same in the office of the secretary of state. No person shall be appointed a chief deputy who has not had at least three years' active banking experience, either as an executive officer or employee of some bank in this state. In case of the absence or inability to act, or vacancy in the office of the superintendent of banks for thirty consecutive days, the chief deputy shall execute to the people of the state a bond in the penal sum of fifty thousand dollars, with corporate surety or two sureties to be approved by the controller and treasurer of the state, conditioned for the faithful discharge of the duties of the superintendent while such deputy acts as superintendent, and upon filing such bond such deputy shall have all the power and duties of superintendent of banks, until the inability of the superintendent shall be removed, or until a new superintendent of banks shall have been appointed by the governor. No superintendent of banks, chief deputy, or bank examiner, shall be or shall become indebted, directly or indirectly, either as borrower, endorser, surety, or guarantor, to any bank under his supervision or subject to his examination. [Amendment approved May 6, 1913. Stats. 1913, p. 184.]

This section was also amended April 21, 1911, Stats. 1911, p. 1017.

Principal office.

§ 122. The superintendent of banks shall have his principal office in the city of San Francisco, and may also have suitable rooms in the city of Los Angeles, wherein to conduct the business of the state banking department. The superintendent shall, from time to time, obtain the necessary furniture, stationery, fuel, lights, and other proper conveniences for the transaction of such business; the expense of which shall be paid out of the state treasury on the certificate of the superintendent and the warrants of the controller.

State banking fund created. Proportionate payment of each bank into fund. Revolving fund.

§ 123. A fund is hereby created to be known as the state banking fund, and out of said fund shall be paid all the expenses incurred in and about the conduct of the business of the banking department, including the salary of the superintendent, chief deputy, attorney, examiners and other assistants, traveling expenses, furnishing of rooms and rent. Each bank shall pay annually its share of one hundred and ten thousand dollars, to be determined by the proportion which the capital and surplus which shall include all reserve and contingent funds, of any incorporated bank or the surplus, reserve and contingent funds of any bank organized without a capital stock bear to the capital, surplus, reserve and contingent funds in the aggregate of all such banks receiving certificates of authorization from the superintendent of banks, as shown by the last report of such bank to the superintendent of banks; provided, that the superintendent of banks may, in any fiscal year and in the exercise of his discretion, collect from each bank a less sum to be determined by the proportion established in this section, if such less sum be sufficient to pay all the expenses incurred in and about the conduct of the business of the banking department, including the salary of the superintendent, chief deputy, attorney, examiners and other assistants, traveling expenses, furnishing of rooms and rent. All money collected or received by the superintendent of banks, under and by virtue of the provisions of this act, shall be by him delivered to the treasurer of the state, who shall deposit the same to the credit of said banking fund, and the unexpended balance of all moneys heretofore paid into the state treasury by any of the bank commissioners or the superintendent of banks, shall be retained and become a part of said fund; provided, however, that the superintendent shall have authority to retain in his possession and under his control the sum of two thousand dollars to be used by him as a revolving fund for the benefit of the state banking department until the end of the fiscal year at which time he shall make full settlement with the treasurer of the state. If any such bank shall fail to pay such charges as are herein required, the superintendent shall forthwith cancel the certificate of said bank. [Amendment of May 15, 1919. In effect July 22, 1919. Stats. 1919, p. 655.]

Inspection of banks. Extra examinations. May administer oaths. Audit.

§ 124. Every bank and the trust department of every title insurance company doing a trust business, shall be subject to the inspection of the superintendent of banks. The superintendent of banks, the chief deputy, or some competent person or persons to be appointed by the superintendent of banks, to be known as examiners, shall visit and examine every bank at least once each fiscal year. On every such examination inquiries shall be made by him as to the condition and resources of the bank, the mode of conducting and managing its affairs, the action of its directors, the investment and disposition of its funds, the safety and prudence of its management, the security afforded to those by whom its engagements are held and whether the requirements of its articles of incorporation and the law have been complied with in the administration of its affairs, and as to such other matters as the superintendent may prescribe. Whenever, in the judgment of the superintendent of banks, the condition of any bank renders it necessary or expedient to make an extra examination or to devote any extraordinary attention to its affairs the superintendent of banks shall have authority to make any and all necessary extra examinations and to devote any necessary extra attention to the conduct of its affairs; and such bank shall pay for all such extra services rendered by the superintendent of banks at a price to be fixed by the superintendent of banks but not to exceed twenty dollars per day for the examination of the principal office of such bank and twenty dollars a day for the examination of each branch office of each bank. The superintendent of banks shall also have power to examine, or cause to be examined, every agency located in this state of any foreign bank or banking corporation, for the purpose of ascertaining whether it has complied with the laws of this state, and for such other purposes and as to such other matters as the superintendent may prescribe. The superintendent, chief deputy, and every such examiner shall have the power to administer an oath to any person whose testimony he may require on the examination of any bank, or on the examination of any agency of any foreign bank or banking corporation, and to compel appearance and attendance of any such person for the purpose of any such examination. When a bank shall have been examined by any examiner, and he finds securities therein which are, in his judgment, of doubtful value, he shall report the same to the superintendent of banks, who thereupon shall be authorized to employ appraisers at the expense of such bank to appraise said securities, at a compensation to be fixed by the superintendent of banks. The superintendent of banks shall, whenever required to do so by any bank, provide an auditor to make an audit of the affairs of such bank. The compensation for making such audit shall be paid by the bank direct to the person making the audit. Nothing herein shall be deemed to authorize or require the superintendent of banks to inspect or supervise the private trust business or title insurance business of any corporation doing a trust business. [Amendment of May 15, 1919. In effect July 22, 1919. Stats. 1919, p. 656.]

No such examiner shall be appointed receiver of any bank whose books, papers and affairs he shall have examined pursuant to his appointment.

Neglect of duty.

§ 126. If the chief deputy or any examiner shall have knowledge of the insolvency or unsafe condition of any bank mentioned in this act, and that it is unsafe or inexpedient to permit said bank to continue business, and shall neglect to forthwith report such fact in writing over his signature to the superintendent of banks, he shall be guilty of felony.

Written consent for organizing banks. Certificate to transact business. Examination of capital, etc. Fee.

§ 127. When any number of persons desire to organize a corporation to conduct any one or more or all of the businesses mentioned in divisions (a), (b), and (c) of section two of this act or to circulate stock subscription lists for any such proposed corporation the previous written consent of the superintendent of banks to such proposed organization must be obtained. No bank shall transact any business in this state without the written approval of the superintendent of banks, and without his written certificate stating that it has complied with the provisions of this act, and all the requirements of law, and that it is authorized to transact, within this state, the business specified therein; which certificate may be withheld by the superintendent of banks whenever he has reason to believe that the bank is being formed for any other than the legitimate objects contemplated by this act, or whenever he has reason to believe that the public convenience and advantage will not be promoted by the opening of such bank, or whenever he has reason to believe that the corporate name assumed by such bank resembles, so closely as to be likely to cause confusion, the name of any other bank previously formed under the laws of this state. Before issuing such certificate the superintendent of banks shall examine, or cause an examination to be made, in order to ascertain whether the requisite capital of such bank has been paid up in cash or the requisite reserve or surplus fund has been accumulated. The superintendent of banks shall not authorize such bank to commence business until it appears from such examination, or other evidence satisfactory to him, that the requisite capital has been, in good faith, subscribed and paid in, in cash, or that the requisite surplus or reserve fund has been accumulated or paid in, in cash, and until said bank shall have paid a fee of fifty dollars for each department to be operated by said bank. This section was also amended May 6, 1913, Stats. 1913, p. 187.

Certificate of authorization issued.

§ 128. When the certified copy of articles of incorporation of any bank shall have been filed with the secretary of state, and application made for the issuance of a certificate to do business as a bank, the superintendent of banks, provided he has not withheld granting his certificate for any of the reasons set forth in section one hundred twenty-seven hereof, shall ascertain, from the best sources of information at his command, whether the character and general fitness of the persons named as stockholders are such as to command the confidence of the community in which such bank is proposed to be located, and, if so satisfied, he shall, within sixty days after such application has been made to him, issue, under his hand and official seal, the certificate of authorization required by this act. The superintendent of banks shall file a duplicate of such certificate in his own office. [Amendment of May 17, 1917. In effect July 27, 1917. Stats. 1917, p. 619.]

Publication of statement. Shall show, what.

§ 132. At the time of furnishing such report to the superintendent of banks, every bank shall also publish a condensed statement of its financial condition, at least once in some newspaper of general circulation, published in the city or town where its principal place of business is located, and, if no paper is published in such town, then in some newspaper of general circulation in the county where its principal place of business is located. Such published statement shall show the total amount of loans, the total amount of overdrafts, the total amount invested in bonds and other securities, the total amount due from banks, the total amount of checks and other cash items, the total amount of cash on hand, capital paid in, surplus funds; undivided profits, less expenses and taxes paid; due to other banks and bankers, due to trust companies and savings banks; individual deposits subject to checks; demand certificates of deposit; time deposits; certified checks; cashier's checks outstanding; and such other items as will show the actual financial condition of the bank making the report.

When capital is impaired. Assessment. Public sale. Private sale.

§ 133. Whenever it shall appear from the report of any bank, or the superintendent of banks shall have reason to believe that the capital of any bank is impaired or reduced below the amount required by law, it shall be the duty of the superintendent of banks and he shall have the power to examine said bank and ascertain the facts, and in case he finds such impairment or reduction of capital, he shall require such bank to make good the deficiency so appearing within sixty days after the date of such requisition. The directors of every such bank, upon which such requisition shall have been made, shall levy an assessment upon the stock thereof to repair such deficiency, and shall cause notice of such requisition to be given to each stockholder of the bank and of the amount of the assessment which he must pay for the purpose of making good such deficiency, by a written or printed notice mailed to such stockholder at his last known address or served personally upon him. If any stockholder shall refuse or neglect to pay the assessment specified in such notice within thirty days from the date of mailing or serving such notice as aforesaid, the directors of such bank shall have the right to sell to the highest bidder at public auction the stock of such stockholder, after giving a previous notice of such sale for ten days in a newspaper of general circulation published in the county where the principal place of business of such bank is located, and a copy of such notice of sale shall also be served on the owner of such stock by being served personally on him or by mailing to his last known address ten days before the day fixed for such sale; or such stock may be sold at private sale and without such public notice; provided, however, that before making such private sale thereof an offer in writing shall first be obtained and a copy thereof served upon the owner of record of the stock sought to be sold, either personally or by mailing a copy of such order to his last known address; and if, after service of such offer, such owner shall still refuse or neglect to pay such assessment within two weeks from the time of the service of such offer, the said directors may accept such offer and sell such stock to the person making such offer, or to any other person or persons making a larger offer than the amount named in the offer submitted to the stockholder; but such stock shall in no event be sold for a smaller sum than the valuation put on it by the superintendent of banks in his determination and requisition as to said assessment, nor for less than the amount of said assessment so called for and the expense of sale. Out of the avails of the stock so sold, the director shall pay the amount of assessment levied thereon, and the necessary costs of sale, and the balance, if any, shall be paid to the person or persons whose stock has thus been sold. A sale of stock as herein provided shall effect an absolute cancellation of the outstanding certificate or certificates evidencing the stock so sold, and shall make the same null and void, and a new certificate shall be issued by the bank to the purchaser thereof. Violation of law by bank.

§ 134. If it shall appear to the superintendent of banks that any bank has violated or failed to comply with the provisions of its articles of incorporation, or any law of this state, he may, by an order under his hand and official seal, which seal must be adopted by him, addressed to such bank, direct such bank to discontinue such violation and to comply with the law; or, if it shall appear to the superintendent of banks that such bank is conducting business in an unsafe or injurious manner, he may, in like manner direct the discontinuance of any such unsafe or injurious practices. Such order shall require such bank to show cause, before the superintendent of banks, at a time and place to be fixed by him, why said order should not be observed. If upon such hearing it shall appear to the superintendent of banks that such bank is conducting business in an unsafe or injurious manner, or is violating or failing to comply with the provisions of its articles of incorporation, or any law of this state, then the superintendent of banks shall make such order final, and such bank shall immediately comply with such order made by the superintendent of banks. Such banks shall have ten days after any such order is made final in which suit may be commenced to restrain enforcement of such order, and unless such action be so commenced and enforcement of said order be enjoined within ten days, by the court in which such suit is brought, then such bank shall comply with such order. [Amendment approved May 6, 1913 Stats. 1913, p. 191.]

Superintendent of banks may call stockholders' meeting.

§ 135. Whenever the superintendent of banks shall deem it expedient he may call a meeting of the stockholders of any bank organized under the laws of this state, by a personal notice of such meeting for fifteen days previous thereto. All necessary expense incurred in the serving of such notice shall be borne by the bank whose stockholders are required to convene. [New section added May 6, 1913. Stats. 1913, p. 191.]

Action to dissolve bank violating law.

§ 135a. If the capital of any bank shall be impaired, or if any bank shall refuse to submit its books, papers and concerns to the inspection of any examiner, or if any officer thereof shall refuse to be examined upon oath touching the concerns of such bank, or if such bank shall violate the provisions of its articles of incorporation, or any law of this state, or if such bank shall suspend payment of its obligations, or if such bank shall conduct its business in an unsafe or unauthorized manner, or if from any examination or report provided for by this act the superintendent of banks shall conclude that such bank is in an unsound or unsafe condition to transact the business for which it is organized, or that it is unsafe and inexpedient for it to continue business, an action to procure a judgment dissolving such corporation may be maintained by the superintendent of banks. [New section approved May 6, 1913. Stats. 1913, p. 191.]

Superintendent of banks may take possession of bank violating law. Resumption of business. Collection of debts. Action against stockholders. Liquidation and distribution.

§ 136. Whenever it shall appear to the superintendent of banks that any bank has violated the provisions of its articles of incorporation or any law of this state, or is conducting its business in an unsafe or unauthorized manner, or if the capital of any bank is impaired, or if any bank shall refuse to submit its books, papers and concerns to the inspection of any examiner, or if any officer thereof shall refuse to be examined upon oath touching the concerns of any such bank, or if any bank shall suspend payment of its obligations, or if from any examination or report provided for by this act the superintendent of banks shall have reason to conclude that such bank is in an unsound or unsafe condition to transact the business for which it is organized, or that it is unsafe and inexpedient for it to continue business, or if any bank shall neglect or refuse to observe any order of the superintendent of banks specified in sections one hundred thirty-three or one hundred thirty-four of this act, the superintendent of banks may forthwith take possession of the property and business of such bank and retain such possession until such bank shall resume business, or its affairs be finally liquidated as herein provided. On taking possession of the property and business of any such bank the superintendent of banks shall forthwith give notice of such fact to any and all banks, trust companies, associations and individuals, holding or in possession of any assets of such bank. No bank, trust company, association or individual knowing of such taking possession by the superintendent of banks, or notified as aforesaid, shall have a lien or charge for any payment, advance or clearance thereafter made, or liability thereafter incurred against any of the assets of the bank of whose property and business the superintendent of banks shall have taken possession as aforesaid. Such bank may, with the consent of the superintendent of banks, resume business upon such conditions as may be approved by him. Upon taking possession of the property and business of any such bank the superintendent of banks shall have authority to collect moneys due to such bank and do such other acts as are necessary to conserve its assets and business, and shall proceed to liquidate the affairs thereof as hereinafter provided. The superintendent of banks shall collect all debts due and claims belonging to it, and upon the order of the superior court may sell or compound any bad or doubtful debts. If a purchaser for any bad or doubtful debts can not be obtained and it appears improbable that recovery thereon can be had and that the costs of actions to enforce collection of the same would probably be lost, the court may direct that suits thereon need not be brought. On like order he may sell any real or personal property of such bank on such terms as the court shall direct; and may, if necessary to pay the debts of such bank, enforce the constitutional individual liability of stockholders by action to be brought within three years after the date of his taking possession of the affairs of such bank. The superintendent of banks shall determine the necessity of such action and the amount necessary to recover from the stockholders to fully pay all liabilities of such bank. Such action may be in equity and against all stockholders upon whom service of process in the state of California can be had, and the court may therein determine and provide for any equities as between the stockholders including the proportions of each stockholder to any surplus of money or assets that may remain after the payment of all liabilities and the expenses of liquidation. The superintendent of banks may also maintain an action against any stockholder residing out of the state or upon whom service of process can not be had within the state, in any court of the United States or of any state or country. Any judgment so obtained by the superintendent of banks against such or any of such stockholders which is of doubtful value may be compromised and compounded by the superintendent of banks on such terms and conditions as the superior court may direct or authorize. The superintendent of banks shall file a notice of pendency of action in the county recorder's office of the county where such action is brought. At any time prior to the trial of any such action, any creditor may serve upon the superintendent of banks and file with the court wherein such action is pending, notice that he elects to maintain an action against the stockholders or any of them, in his individual capacity and thereupon the amount sued for in such action shall be reduced accordingly and such creditor shall not be entitled to share in the proceeds resulting from such action brought by the superintendent of banks. For the purpose of executing and performing any of the powers and duties hereby conferred upon him, the superintendent of banks may, in the name of the delinquent bank or in his own name, prosecute and defend any and all suits and other legal proceedings and may, in the name of the delinquent bank or in his own name as trustee execute, acknowledge and deliver any and all deeds, assignments, releases and other instruments necessary and proper to effectuate any sale of real or personal property or sale or compromise or compound authorized by order of the court as herein provided; and any deed or other instrument, executed pursuant to the authority hereby given, shall be valid and effectual for all purposes, as though the same had been executed by the officers of the delinquent bank by authority of its board of directors. In case any of the real property so sold is located in a county other than the county in which the application to the court for leave to sell the same is made, the superintendent of banks shall cause a certified copy of the order authorizing or ratifying such sale to be filed in the office of the recorder of the county in which the said real property is located. The superintendent of banks may, under his hand and official seal, appoint one or more special deputy superintendents of banks, as agent or agents, with the powers specified in the certificate of appointment hereinafter mentioned, to assist him in the duty of liquidation and distribution, the certificate of appointment to be filed in the office of the superintendent of banks, and a certified copy in the office of the clerk of the county in which the principal office of such bank is located.

The superintendent of banks may from time to time, by a certificate of appointment under his hand and official seal, specifying the powers conferred, authorize a special deputy superintendent to perform such duties connected with such liquidation and distribution as the superintendent of banks may deem proper. Such certificate of appointment shall be filed in the office of the superintendent of banks and a certified copy in the office of the clerk of the county in which the principal office of such bank is located. The superintendent of banks may employ such counsel and procure such expert assistance and advice as may be necessary in the liquidation and distribution of the assets of such bank, and for that purpose may retain such of the officers or employees of such bank as he may deem necessary. The superintendent of banks shall require from a special deputy superintendent and from such assistants such security for the faithful discharge of their duties as he may deem proper. The superintendent of banks shall cause notice to be given by advertisement, in such newspapers as he may direct, weekly for three consecutive months, calling on all persons who may have claims against such bank to present the same to the superintendent of banks, and make legal proof thereof at a place and within a time, not earlier than the last day of publication, to be therein specified. The superintendent of banks shall mail a similar notice to all persons whose names appear as creditors upon the books of the bank. If the superintendent of banks doubts the justice and validity of any claim, he may reject the same, and serve notice of such rejection upon the claimant, either by mail or personally. An affidavit of the service of such notice, which shall be prima facie evidence thereof shall be filed with the superintendent of banks. Any action upon a claim so rejected must be brought within six months after such service. Claims presented after the expiration of the time fixed in the notice to creditors shall be entitled to share in the distribution only to the extent of the assets in the hands of the superintendent of banks equitably applicable thereto. Upon taking possession of the property and assets of any bank, the superintendent of banks shall make an inventory of the assets of such bank in duplicate, one to be filed in the office of the superintendent of banks, and one with the papers in said proceeding in the office of the clerk of the county in which the principal office of such bank is located; upon the expiration of the time fixed for the presentation of claims the superintendent of banks shall make in duplicate a full and complete list of the claims presented, including and specifying such claims as have been rejected by him, one to be filed in the office of the superintendent of banks, and one with the papers in said proceeding in the office of the clerk of the county in which the principal office of such bank is located. Thereafter he shall make and file in said offices as above provided at least fifteen days before each application to the court for leave to declare a dividend a supplemental list of the claims presented since the last preceding list was filed, including and specifying such claims as have been rejected by him, and in any event he shall make and file as above provided such a list at least once every six months after the filing of the original list, as long as he shall remain in possession of the property and business of any such bank. Such inventory and list of claims shall be open at all reasonable times to inspection. The compensation of the special deputy superintendents, counsel and other employees and assistants, and all expenses of supervisions and liquidation, shall be fixed by the superintendent of banks and shall upon the certificate of the superintendent of banks be paid out of the funds of such bank in the hands of the superintendent of banks. All such expenses must be reported by the superintendent of banks to the superior court of the county where the principal place of business of such bank is located and settled by such court upon notice of such bank. The moneys collected by the superintendent of banks shall be from time to time deposited in one or more state banks of deposit, savings banks or trust companies, and, in case of the suspension or insolvency of the depository, such deposits shall be preferred before all other deposits. At any time after the expiration of the date fixed for the presentation of claims the superior court may by order authorize the superintendent of banks to declare out of the funds remaining in his hands after the payment of expenses one or more dividends, and after the expiration of one year from the first publication of notice to creditors he may declare a final dividend, such dividends to be paid to such persons, and in such amounts, and upon such notice, as may be directed by the superior court of the county in which the principal office of such bank is located. Objections to any claim not rejected by the superintendent of banks may be made by any party interested in filing a copy of such objections with the superintendent of banks, who shall present the same to the superior court at the time of the next application to declare a dividend. The court to which such application is made shall thereupon dispose of said objections or may order a reference for that purpose, and should the objections to any claim be sustained by the court or by the referee, such claim shall not be allowed by the superintendent of banks until the claimant shall have established his claim by the judgment of a court of competent jurisdiction. The court must make proper provision for unproved or unclaimed deposits.

Should any bank at the time the superintendent of banks takes possession of its property and business, have in its possession, as bailee for safekeeping and storage, any jewelry, plate, money, specie, bullion, stocks, bonds, securities, valuable papers or other valuable personal property or should it have rented any vaults, safes or safe deposit boxes or any portion thereof for the storage of property of any kind, the superintendent of banks may at any time thereafter cause to be mailed to the person claiming to be or appearing upon its books to be the owner of such property, or the person in whose name the safe, vault or box stands, a notice in writing in a securely closed, postpaid registered letter, directed to such person at his postoffice address as recorded upon its books, notifying such person to remove, within a period fixed by said notice and not less than sixty days from the date thereof, all such personal property and upon the date fixed by said notice, the contract, if any, between such person and bank for the storage of said property or for the use of the said safe, vault or box shall cease and determine, and the amount of the unearned rent or charges, if any, paid by such person shall become a debt of the bank to said person. If the property be not removed within the time fixed by the notice, the superintendent of banks may make such disposition of said property as the superior court, upon application thereto, shall direct. And the superintendent of banks may cause any safe, vault or box to be opened in his presence or in the presence of one of the special deputy superintendents of banks, and of a notary public not an officer or in the employ of the bank or of the superintendent of banks, and the contents thereof, if any, to be sealed up by such notary public in a package upon which such notary public shall distinctly mark the name and address of the person in whose name such safe, vault or box stands upon the books of the bank and shall attach thereto a list and description of the property therein; and the package so sealed and addressed, together with the list and description, may be kept by the superintendent of banks in one of the general safes or boxes of the bank until delivered to the person whose name it bears, or until otherwise disposed of as directed by the court. Whenever any such bank of whose property and business the superintendent of banks has taken possession as aforesaid, deems itself aggrieved thereby, it may, at any time within ten days after such taking possession, apply to the superior court in the county in which the principal office of such bank is located to enjoin further proceedings; and said court, after citing the superintendent of banks to show cause why further proceedings should not be enjoined, and hearing the allegations and proofs of the parties and determining the facts may, upon the merits, dismiss such application or enjoin the superintendent of banks from further proceedings, and direct him to surrender such business and property to such bank. An appeal as above provided shall operate as a stay of the judgment of the superior court, and no bond need be given if the appeal be taken by the superintendent of banks; but if the appeal be taken by such bank, a bond shall be given, as required by section nine hundred forty-three of the Code of Civil Procedure. Whenever the superintendent of banks shall have paid to each and every depositor and creditor of such bank whose claim or claims as such creditor or depositor shall have been duly proved and allowed, the full amount of such claims, and shall have made proper provision for unclaimed and unpaid deposits or dividends, and shall have paid all the expenses of the liquidation, the superintendent of banks shall call a meeting of the stockholders of such bank giving notice thereof for thirty days in one or more newspapers published in the county where the principal office of such bank is located. At such meeting the stockholders shall determine whether the superintendent of banks shall be continued as liquidator and shall wind up the affairs of such bank, or whether an agent or agents shall be elected for that purpose, and in so determining the said stockholders shall vote by ballot, in person or by proxy, each share of stock entitling the holder to one vote, and the majority of the stock shall be necessary to a determination. In case it is determined to continue the liquidation under the superintendent of banks, he shall complete the liquidation of the affairs of such bank, and after paying the expenses thereof, shall distribute the proceeds among the stockholders in proportion to the several holdings of stock in such manner and upon such notice as may be directed by the superior court. In case it is determined to appoint an agent or agents to liquidate, the stockholders shall thereupon select such agent or agents by ballot, a majority of the stock present and voting, in person or by proxy, being necessary to a choice. Such agent or agents shall execute and file with the superintendent of banks a bond to the people of the state in such amount, with such sureties and in such form as shall be approved by the superintendent of banks, conditioned for the faithful performance of all the duties of his or their trust, and thereupon the superintendent of banks shall transfer and deliver to such agent or agents all the undivided and uncollected or other assets of such bank then remaining in his hands; and upon such transfer and delivery, the said superintendent of banks shall be discharged from any and all further liability to such bank and its creditors. Such agent or agents shall convert the assets coming into his or their possession into cash, and shall account for and make distribution of the property of said bank as is herein provided in the case of distribution by the superintendent of banks, except that the expenses thereof shall be subject to the direction and control of a court of record of competent jurisdiction. In case of the death, removal or refusal to act of any such agent or agents, the stockholders, on the same notice, to be given by the superintendent of banks upon proof of such death, removal or refusal to act being filed with him, and by the same vote hereinbefore provided, may elect a successor, who shall have the same powers and be subject to the same liabilities and duties as the agent originally elected. Dividends and unclaimed deposits remaining unpaid in the hands of the superintendent of banks for six months after the order for final distribution shall be by him deposited with the state treasurer in the same manner and subject to the same disposition as provided for in section one thousand two hundred thirty-four of the Code of Civil Procedure. The superintendent of banks may pay over the moneys so held by him to the persons respectively entitled thereto upon being furnished satisfactory evidence of their right to the same. In cases of doubt or conflicting claims he may require an order of the superior court authorizing and directing the payment thereof. [Amendment approved May 6, 1913. Stats. 1913, c. 192.]

Bank ceasing to exist.

§ 136a. Any bank which has ceased to do a banking business whether through voluntary action on its part or through expiration of its corporate existence, shall immediately liquidate its affairs and any unclaimed deposits or dividends shall be paid into the state treasury in the manner and for the purposes provided in section one hundred thirty-six of this act within six months after the date such bank ceased to conduct a banking business, and in case the superintendent of banks shall have reason to conclude that the liquidation of such bank is not being safely or expeditiously conducted, he may take possession of the property of such bank and liquidate its affairs in the same manner as provided in section one hundred thirty-six of this act. Whenever any bank of whose property the superintendent of banks has taken possession as aforesaid, deems itself aggrieved thereby, it may within the time and in like manner and effect as provided in section one hundred thirty-six of this act apply to the superior court to enjoin further proceedings. [New section approved May 6, 1913. Stats. 1913, p. 198.]

Jurisdiction in superior court.

§ 136b. In any action or proceeding brought under any provision of this act, exclusive original jurisdiction shall be vested in the superior court of the county in which is located the principal place of business of the bank affected thereby, and all proceedings relating to the same matter, under any provision of this act, including proceedings for liquidation of the affairs of any such bank, shall be filed with and treated as a part of the record in such original proceedings, and all papers relating to any such action or proceeding, including the copy of certificate of appointment of any special deputy and the inventories required to be filed in the matter of any such liquidation, shall be filed with and made a part of the record of such original proceeding without the payment of any additional fees therefor, and in any such action no damage may be awarded, but the action otherwise shall be tried and determined according to the provisions of the Code of Civil Procedure. [New section approved May 6, 1913. Stats. 1913, p. 198.]

Right to dissolve. Discharge of receiver. Unclaimed moneys escheat. Invested.

§ 137. 1. Any bank shall have the right, on application of the stockholders or members, to apply to the superior court of the county wherein its principal place of business is situated, to dissolve said bank in the manner provided for in title six, part three of the Code of Civil Procedure.

2. At the expiration of four months after the settlement of the final account of the receiver of any bank appointed prior to July 1, 1909, any dividends due depositors, or other creditors, or stockholders of such bank and remaining unpaid or uncalled for and in the hands of such receiver may be paid by him into the treasury of the county in which such bank is situated which money shall be held in the treasury of said county, and at the same time it shall be the duty of such receiver to furnish to the county treasurer of said county a list of names of all depositors or other persons to whom such money belongs or who are entitled thereto and thereupon such receiver shall be entitled to his discharge.

3. The moneys referred to in subdivision two of this section shall be paid out on the order of the court appointing such receiver.

4. All moneys paid under subdivision two of this section, uncalled for within five years after being paid in, shall by operation of law, and without action had, escheat to the state. All moneys held by any county treasurer under subdivision two of this section, when such moneys have escheated to the state as hereinbefore provided, shall be paid by the county treasurer into the state treasury, and thereafter only be drawn out in such manner as may be provided for by law for the estates of deceased persons escheated to this state.

5. The state board of control must invest such moneys in the same manner that the state school land fund is invested as provided by law. But any claimant shall be entitled to recover as herein provided only the principal so paid into the state treasury. [Amendment approved May 6, 1913. Stats. 1913, p. 198.]

This section was also amended April 21, 1911, Stats. 1911, p. 958.

Penalty for failure to report.

§ 138. If any bank shall fail to make any report required by the provisions of section one hundred thirty or one hundred thirty a of this act, within ten days from the day designated for the making thereof by the superintendent of banks, or to include therein any matter required by the provisions of either of said sections, it shall forfeit to the people of the state the sum of one hundred dollars for each day that any such report shall be so delayed or withheld by the failure or neglect of such bank. In the event of the failure of any such bank to make any such report required from it, the superintendent of banks may, in his discretion, immediately cause the books, papers and affairs of such bank to be examined at the expense of such bank. [Amendment approved May 6, 1913. Stats. 1913, p. 199.]

Duty of board of directors. Report.

§ 139. It shall be the duty of the board of directors of every bank to examine fully, or to cause a committee of at least three of its members, none of whom shall be an officer of the bank, to examine fully into the books, papers and affairs of the bank of which they are directors, and particularly into the loans and discounts thereof, with a special view to ascertaining the value and security thereof, and of the collateral security, if any given, in connection therewith, and into such other matters as the superintendent of banks may require; such examination to be made at least once a year, but no such subsequent yearly examinations shall be made within three months of the next preceding examination. Such directors shall have power to employ such assistance making such examinations as they may deem necessary. Within thirty days after the completion of such examination, a report in writing thereof, sworn to by the directors making the same, shall be made by the board of directors of such bank and placed on file with the records of said bank, and shall be subject to examination by the superintendent of banks.

Contents of report.

Such report shall particularly contain a statement of the assets and liabilities of the bank examined, as shown by its books, together with any deductions from the assets, or additions to liabilities which such directors or committee, after such examination, may determine to make. It shall also contain a statement, in detail, of loans, if any, which in their opinion are worthless or doubtful, together with their reasons for so regarding them; also a statement of loans made on collateral security, which in their opinion are insufficiently secured, giving in each case the amount of the loan, the name and market value of the collateral, if it has any market value, and, if not, a statement of that fact, and its actual value as nearly as possible. Such report shall also contain a statement of overdrafts, of the names and amounts of such as they consider worthless or doubtful, and a full statement of such other matters as affect the solvency and soundness of the bank.

When no examination made.

If the directors of such bank shall fail to make such examination or fail to cause it to be made, or shall fail to file such report of such examination in the manner and within the time specified, the superintendent of banks shall have authority to make or cause to be made an extra examination of such bank, at the expense of such bank.

Special examination by superintendent of banks.

Whenever the board of directors of any bank may determine by resolution, duly entered in its minutes, that a special examination shall be made or caused to be made by the superintendent of banks in lieu of the examination herein required to be made by the board of directors of such bank, a certified copy of such resolution shall be transmitted to the superintendent of banks, whereupon it shall be the duty of the superintendent of banks to make or cause to be made a special examination of the affairs of such bank in lieu of the examination of such bank by the board of directors thereof. Such special examination shall be made at such time as the superintendent of banks may determine but in any event such examination shall be made within sixty days after the receipt by the superintendent of banks of the resolution hereinbefore referred to. The cost of making such examination shall be a charge against the bank for which such examination is made.

§ 145. The powers, privileges, duties and restrictions conferred and imposed upon any corporation or individual existing and doing business under the laws of this state are hereby abridged, enlarged or modified as each particular case may require to conform to the provisions of this act, notwithstanding anything to the contrary in their respective articles of incorporation or charters. All the provisions of this act shall apply with equal force and effect to all corporations which are now doing or which may hereafter do a banking business in this state, except where express exception or exemption may be made herein, and to such other persons, associations, copartnerships or corporations who shall, by violating any of its provisions, become subject to the penalties provided herein. The legality of investments heretofore made, or title to property heretofore acquired or conveyed through transactions heretofore had by any bank pursuant to any provision of law in force when such investments were made or transactions had, shall not be affected by the provisions of this act, except that any such investments made prior to July 1, 1909, when not complying with the provisions hereof, shall be changed to conform hereto; but such change shall be made gradually and in such manner as to prevent loss or embarrassment in the business of such bank, or unnecessary loss or injury to the borrowers on such security; provided, that the legality of any investments heretofore lawfully made, pursuant to the provisions of this act as it existed on and subsequent to July 1, 1909, shall not be affected by the provisions of this section. a. Constitutionality.

1. The title of the "bank commissioners act" sufficiently expresses the subject of the act and is sufficiently general in its scope. It need not embrace an abstract of the contents of the act.—People ex rel. Gerberding v. Superior Court, 100 Cal. 105, 34 Pac. 492.

2. Same.—Title of act is sufficient, within the requirements of section 24, article IV of the constitution.—People v. Bank of San Luis Obispo, 154 Cal. 194, 97 Pac. 306.

3. Act is constitutional.—The bank act of 1903 is constitutional.—People v. Bank of San Luis Obispo, 154 Cal. 194, 97 Pac. 306; Same v. Same, 159 Cal. 65, Ann. Cas. 1912B, 1148, 37 L. R. A. (N. S.) 934, 112 Pac. 866.

4. Due process—Equal protection.—The summary seizure and liquidation provided for in the banking act does not render that act invalid as in violation of the due process and equal protection clauses of the fourteenth amendment to the federal constitution.—State, etc., Bank v. Anderson, 165 Cal. 437, 440, L. R. A. 1915E, 675, 132 Pac. 755.

5. Same.—The initial taking authorized by the banking act is not intended as a permanent divestment of the title of the bank to its property.—State, etc., Co. v. Anderson, 165 Cal. 437, 447, L. R. A. 1915E, 675, 132 Pac. 755.

6. Police power.—The bank act deals solely with a matter pertaining to the public welfare, and within the police power of the state to regulate, and the regulations provided have a substantial relation to and are reasonably designed to protect and safeguard the state against insecure banking.—State, etc., Bank v. Anderson, 165 Cal. 437, 449, L. R. A. 1915E, 675, 132 Pac. 755.

7. Same—Business of banking.—The business of banking is a proper and legitimate subject of legislative regulation by the state in the exercise of its police power.—State, etc., Co. v. Anderson, 165 Cal. 437, 442, L. R. A. 1915E, 675, 132 Pac. 755.

8. Depriving superior court of jurisdiction in insolvency—Privileges and immunities—Special legislation.—The "bank commissioners act" is not unconstitutional as depriving the superior court of jurisdiction in insolvency matters, nor in granting special and exclusive rights, privileges or immunities to particular corporations, nor as special or local legislation.—People ex rel.

Gerberding v. Superior Court, 100 Cal. 105, 34 Cal. 492.

9. The limitation of ten days to bring action provided by the bank act is not unreasonable.—State, etc., Bank v. Anderson, 165 Cal. 437, 447, L. R. A. 1915E, 675, 132 Pac. 755.

10. Same.—The limitation of ten days within which to bring an action provided for in section 136 of the banking act is not violative of the due process and equal protection clauses of the federal constitution.—State, etc., Bank v. Anderson, 165 Cal. 437, 440, L. R. A. 1915E, 675, 132 Pac. 755.

11. Liability of stockholders under the act.—If section 136 of the banking act was intended by the legislature to include the constitutional liability of the stockholders within the phrase "individual liability of the stockholders," it would be obnoxious to section 24, article IV of the constitution.—Williams v. Carver, 171 Cal. 658, 663, 154 Pac. 472. Constitutionality of state banking statutes. See 32 L. R. A. (N. S.) 1065.

II. CONSTRUCTION AND EFFECT.

12. Act applies to all banks, whenever incorporated.—Bank commissioners act applies to all banks whenever incorporated.—People v. Bank of San Luis Obispo, 154 Cal. 194, 97 Pac. 306. See McGowan v. McDonald, 111 Cal. 57, 43 Pac. 418.

13. Insolvent act superseded by "bank commissioners act," as to banking corporations.—People v. Bank of San Luis Obispo, 154 Cal. 194, 97 Pac. 306.

14. Same.—The bank commissioners act held to supersede the insolvent act so far as banking corporations are concerned.—People ex rel. Gerberding v. Superior Court, 100 Cal. 105, 34 Pac. 492.

15. Act of 1876 not repealed by "bank commissioners act."—The act of April 1, 1876, requiring banking corporations to file in recorder's office sworn statements as to capital, assets and liabilities, was not repealed by the bank commissioners act.—Bank of British North America v. Cahn, 79 Cal. 463, 21 Pac. 863.

III. STATE BANKING DEPARTMENT.

a. Commissioners—Powers—Duties.

16. Power to supervise.—Power of commissioners to supervise the affairs of an insolvent bank during liquidation is the same as their power of supervision of banks in general, and the "bank commissioners act" confers no power to assume personal charge of such bank to the exclusion of its directors.—Long v. Superior Court, 102 Cal. 449, 36 Pac. 807.

17. Examination of banks.—Under the act of 1878, commercial banks are subject to examination by the bank commissioners.—Wells, Fargo & Co. v. Coleman, 53 Cal. 416.

18. Vacancy in office of commissioner.—In the absence of a provision to the contrary, when there is a vacancy the powers and duties of the commission may be performed by three commissioners constituting a majority of the board, and may make the unanimous decision that "it is unsafe" for a bank "to continue business."—People v. Bank of San Luis Obispo, 154 Cal. 194, 97 Pac. 306.

19. Commissioner not invested with sovereignty of state—Laches imputed.—The state bank commissioner is not invested with the sovereignty of the state, and can not invoke the rule against imputing laches to the state on a motion to dismiss an action brought by him under section 136 of the bank act, for unreasonable delay in serving the summons.—Anderson v. Nawa, 25 Cal. App. 151, 143 Pac. 555.

b. Regulations.

20. Loan in excess of statutory limit may be enforced against both maker and guarantor, and against mortgaged property given as security therefor, notwithstanding §§ 1607 and 1667, Civil Code.—Blochman, etc., Bank v. F. G. Investment Co., 177 Cal. 762, 171 Pac. 943.

21. Withdrawal of savings bank deposits by public administrator.—The provision as to withdrawal of funds of a decedent by the public administrator on the order of the judge of the superior court, creates a special right, with which the bank must comply, without regard to any conditions required by the contract of deposit between the bank and the depositor, provided compliance would not impose upon the bank a liability for which it is not provided that the bank shall be indemnified.—Bryson v. Security, etc., Bank, 29 Cal. App. 596, 156 Pac. 987.

22. Power to contract debt for borrowed money.—A bank incorporated under the act of April 11, 1862, has no power to contract debt for borrowed money, nor for money paid out at its request by a stockholder to discharge its obligation to a stockholder, and such a contract is ultra vires and void, regardless of the relation of the stockholder to the bank.—Laidlaw v. Pacific Bank, 137 Cal. 392, 70 Pac. 277.

23. Deposit of bonds as trustee—Withdrawal.—A corporation organized to act as trustee, guardian, etc., and do a general banking business, brought itself within the scope of the act of 1891 (490) and the subsequently enacted bank act; and having deposited bonds for the purpose of obtaining a certificate of authority, can not thereafter withdraw such bonds without divesting itself of its powers to do business, in the manner prescribed by section 19 of the act of 1891 and section 102 of the bank act.—Spalding Co. v. Roberts, 170 Cal. 175, 178, 149 Pac. 41.

23a. Escheat of bank deposit unclaimed for twenty years.—Until the attorney general brings an action for such deposit on behalf of the state, a claimant may bring suit as well after the expiration of the twenty-year period as before.—Mathews v. Savings, etc., Co., (Cal.) 184 Pac. 418.

23b. Non-demand of bank deposit for 20 years is jurisdictional fact.—Mathews v. Savings, etc., Co., (Cal.) 184 Pac. 418.

23c. Joint bank deposits—Inheritance tax.—Joint bank account not subject to inheritance tax.—Estate of Gurnsey, 177 Cal. 211, 170 Pac. 402.

23d. Same—Right of survivorship.—Under the provisions of section 16 of the bank act, joint deposits created under the conditions therein prescribed belong to the survivor.—Williams v. Savings Bank, 33 Cal. App. 655, 166 Pac. 366; McDougald v. Boyd, 172 Cal. 753, 159 Pac. 168.

IV. UNSAFE CONDITION OF BANK.

a. Superintendent of banks—Attorney general.

24. Statutory custodian.—The superintendent of banks takes and holds property, under the banking act, as a statutory custodian until either the bank brings an action to test the validity of his finding that it is in an unsafe or unsound condition, under which he justifies the taking, or, through a failure to do so within the ten day limit, the bank admits that he was warranted in making the seizure, and consents to liquidation, or until a suit to enjoin further proceedings and for the restitution of the property and business of the bank.—State, etc., Bank v. Anderson, 165 Cal. 437, 447, L. R. A. 1915E, 675, 132 Pac. 755.

25. Action by attorney general.—The right of the attorney general to bring the action authorized by section 10 of the bank commissioners act is not affected by the unconstitutionality of the provisions of that section authorizing the bank commissioners, on their own determination, and without notice, to take and hold possession of the assets of an insolvent bank, admitting such unconstitutionality.—People v. Bank of San Luis Obispo, 154 Cal. 194, 97 Pac. 306.

26. Same—Motion for a new trial by bank in an action by the attorney general under section 10 of the bank commissioners act may be made by the bank, there being nothing in the act denying that right, and procedure provided by the Code of Civil Procedure governing.—People v. Bank of San Luis Obispo, 152 Cal. 261, 92 Pac. 481.

27. Same—Procedure.—In the absence of provisions for a special method in the bank commissioners act the action provided for in section 10 is to be commenced and prosecuted according to the provisions of the Code.—People v. Bank of San Luis Obispo, 152 Cal. 261, 92 Pac. 481.

28. Same—Negligence, incompetence, mismanagement, fraud.—Attorney general has no power under the bank commissioners act to bring an action to enjoin a bank from further transaction of business on the ground of negligence, incompetence, mismanagement and fraud, on behalf of individual stockholders or creditors.—People, etc., Bank v. Superior Court, 103 Cal. 27, 36 Pac. 1015.

V. INSOLVENCY.

a. Proceedings, commencement of.

29. Action for debt against insolvent bank.—Action for debt against an insolvent bank in process of liquidation under the "bank commissioners act" can not be maintained.—Argues v. Union, etc., Bank, 133 Cal. 139, 65 Pac. 307.

30. Complaint—Allegation of insolvency.

—An allegation that the bank commissioners unanimously found and determined that the bank was insolvent and unable to pay its obligations, when and payable, out of its own funds, in the ordinary course of business, and that it was insolvent, is a sufficient allegation that "it is unsafe" for the bank "to continue business" within the meaning of the "bank commissioners act."—People v. Bank of San Luis Obispo, 154 Cal. 194, 97 Pac. 306.

b. Jurisdiction of superior court.31. Source and scope of jurisdiction.—

Jurisdiction of superior court in a proceeding under the "bank commissioners act" by the attorney general against an insolvent bank is derived from that act and is limited by that act.—Long v. Superior Court, 102 Cal. 449, 36 Pac. 807.

32. Possession of directors can not be ousted.—

The court has no power under the "bank commissioners act" of 1878, to oust the directors from possession of the assets of an insolvent bank, or deprive them of the management of its affairs during liquidation.—Long v. Superior Court, 102 Cal. 449, 36 Pac. 807.

33. Jurisdiction to fill vacancies on board of directors.—

The superior court has jurisdiction to fill vacancies on the board of directors of an insolvent bank pending liquidation under the "bank commissioners act."—Braslan v. Superior Court, 124 Cal. 123, 56 Pac. 792.

33a. Injunction from transacting further business.—

In an action by the attorney general against an insolvent bank, brought under the "bank commissioners act," the superior court has jurisdiction to enjoin the bank from further transacting new business.—Long v. Superior Court, 102 Cal. 449, 36 Pac. 807.

34. Same.—

The court has no jurisdiction to issue an injunction or other order in an action under the "bank commissioners act" of 1878, by the attorney general against an insolvent bank, until after a hearing and an opportunity to the bank to contest.—Peoples, etc., Bank v. Superior Court, 103 Cal. 27, 36 Pac. 1015.

35. Same—Until further order.—

The fact that the injunction not to transact further business is in terms until further order of the court can not affect its character as a part of the final judgment, and the injunction can not be dissolved prior to the final closing and settlement of the bank's affairs.—People v. Bank of Mendocino Co., 133 Cal. 107, 65 Pac. 124.

36. Until in liquidation, bank independent of court.—

Until a bank goes into liquidation under the provisions of section 11 of the "bank commissioners act" (amendment of 1887) it is independent of the courts, and, largely, of the bank commissioners, and it is no defense to an action by a depositor for the amount of his deposit that the bank is in course of liquidation, voluntary, but by the advice of the bank commissioners.—

Lanz v. Fresno, etc., Bank, 125 Cal. 456, 58 Pac. 63.

c. Directors as trustees.37. Failure to perform trust only cause of action against directors.—

Directors are trustees for creditors and no right of action can arise in favor of a creditor against the bank or the directors, except for failure to perform the duties of the trust.—Argues v. Union, etc., Bank, 133 Cal. 139, 65 Pac. 307.

37a. Action against directors in their own name, or under the corporate name, may be maintained by a creditor for the disallowance of a claim, as a breach of their duty, but not before such disallowance.—Argues v. Union, etc., Bank, 133 Cal. 139, 65 Pac. 307.

38. Directors are responsible for closing up affairs of bank.—

The responsibility of closing up the affairs of the bank rests upon the officers under the supervision of the bank commissioners.—Bank of Mendocino v. Brown, 8 Cal. App. 566, 97 Pac. 533.

39. Personal conduct by commissioners not contemplated by act.—

The "bank commissioners act" does not contemplate a personal conduct of the liquidation of an insolvent bank by the commissioners, but merely a supervision of the directors for the purpose of safeguarding the depositors and stockholders against an extravagant or fraudulent administration of the business.—Bank of Mendocino v. Brown, 8 Cal. App. 566, 97 Pac. 533.

d. Stockholders' liability.40. Suit to enforce.—

Section 136 of the banking act does not confer a right upon the superintendent of banks to bring a suit to enforce the constitutional liability of the stockholders of an insolvent bank.—Williams v. Carver, 171 Cal. 658, 661, 154 Pac. 472.

41. No part of assets of bank.—

The constitutional liability of the stockholders of a bank for its debts is no part of its assets, and the superintendent of banks has no power to act for its creditors in enforcing such liability.—Williams v. Carver, 171 Cal. 658, 662, 154 Pac. 472.

42. Meaning of bank act.—

The individual liability of the stockholders referred to in section 136 of the banking act is the amount due the bank and arising from assessments made or subscriptions to corporate stock.—Williams v. Carver, 171 Cal. 658, 662, 154 Pac. 472.

42a. Dismissal of action to enforce.—

Laches.—Dismissal of action by state bank commissioner against stockholders under the provisions of section 136 of the bank act, for unreasonable delay in service of summons.—Anderson v. Nawa, 25 Cal. App. 151, 143 Pac. 555.

e. Assessments on unpaid stock.43. Levy of assessment—Failure to pay.—

Assessment may be levied by board of directors of insolvent bank in liquidation under the "bank commissioners act" in a sum sufficient to pay creditors, in accordance with the provisions of the Civil Code, and if the assessment is not paid, they may bring action to enforce payment.—Union Savings Bank v. Leiter, 145 Cal. 696, 79 Pac. 441.

See, also, Union Savings Bank v. Dunlap, 135 Cal. 628, 67 Pac. 1034.

44. Power of directors to assess—Statute of limitations.—Power of directors of an insolvent bank to levy assessments on unpaid capital stock to pay creditors can not be impaired by lapse of time so long as the corporation is a going concern for purposes of liquidation under the "bank commissioners act," and the statute does not begin to run in favor of a stockholder until the levy is made.—Union Savings Bank v. Leiter, 145 Cal. 696, 79 Pac. 441.

45. Statutory provisions as to assessments—Not affected by by-laws.—A banking corporation can not yield up its statutory power to levy assessments on unpaid capital stock to pay creditors by contract with its stockholders, evidenced by law limiting the amount of such assessments, or otherwise.—Union Savings Bank v. Leiter, 145 Cal. 696, 79 Pac. 441.

46. Same—Same.—A by-law limiting the amount of an assessment of unpaid capital stock must be construed in connection with statutory provisions relating to such assessments, and so construed the statute and by-law enter together into the contract of subscription of the stockholders.—Union Savings Bank v. Leiter, 145 Cal. 696, 79 Pac. 441.

47. Same—Same.—A by-law limiting the amount that may be taken from stockholders of a banking corporation, by an assessment on unpaid capital stock, when properly attacked, has no force as against creditors, certainly not against creditors without notice.—Union Savings Bank v. Leiter, 145 Cal. 696, 79 Pac. 441.

48. Unpaid subscription to stock as assets.—The board of directors may, after adjudication in insolvency under the bank commissioners act, collect the corporate assets, including unpaid subscriptions to stock, and their authority to do so does not rest upon an order of the bank commissioners.—People's Home Savings Bank v. Rauer, 2 Cal. App. 445, 84 Pac. 329.

49. Same—Same—Directors may assess.—Unpaid balances due on capital stock are assets and where the money or other property of an insolvent bank are insufficient to meet the demands of the creditors, resort may be had to them; and after an adjudication under the "bank commissioners act," the directors of the bank may assess such unpaid subscriptions to pay debts, without first obtaining authority to do so from the court.—Union, etc., Bank v. Dunlap, 135 Cal. 628, 67 Pac. 1034.

50. Same—Constitute equitable fund to secure creditors.—Unpaid subscriptions to stock constitute an equitable fund for the security of creditors, and may be resorted to, in case of necessity, by the liquidators, during the liquidation of an insolvent bank.—Bank of National City v. Johnston, 133 Cal. 185, 65 Pac. 383.

51. Accrual of right of action—Statute of limitations.—Right of action on unpaid capital stock does not accrue until a call is made, and the amount is determined with time and conditions of payment, and does not arise in favor of an insolvent bank upon adjudication of insolvency, but only when its board of directors makes an authorized call.—Union Savings Bank v. Leiter, 145 Cal. 696, 79 Pac. 441.

52. Same—Notice to pay.—Where the resolution of the board of directors of an insolvent bank in process of liquidation requiring payment of unpaid balances due on stock did not provide when notice of call should be mailed, notice mailed on the day that, under the resolution, proceedings to enforce payment might be commenced, is sufficient, where it was published and served long before proceedings were commenced.—People's Home Savings Bank v. Rauer, 2 Cal. App. 445, 84 Pac. 329.

53. Recovery from transferee.—Unpaid subscriptions to stock may be collected from a transferee whose name stands on the books as such transferee without anything to indicate that he took the stock in pledge, though he in fact did so.—People's Home Savings Bank v. Rauer, 2 Cal. App. 445, 84 Pac. 329.

54. Set-off—Amounts paid on stockholder's liability.—In an action by an insolvent bank in liquidation under the "bank commissioners act" against a stockholder for an assessment on unpaid capital stock to pay creditors, the defendant can not set off amounts paid by him on judgments in stockholders' liability suits.—Union Savings Bank v. Leiter, 145 Cal. 696, 79 Pac. 441.

54a. Assessment to pay debts, levied pending proceedings under the "bank commissioners act," though approved by the bank commissioners can not be enforced as a call for the payment of unpaid subscriptions.—Bank of National City v. Johnston, 133 Cal. 185, 65 Pac. 383.

54b. Same—Injunction not to transact further business.—Assessment to pay debts levied pending proceedings under the "bank commissioners act," but not delinquent until an adjudication of insolvency and its directors enjoined from transacting further business except liquidation is, in effect, set aside by the judgment, and the power to enforce it ended.—Bank of National City v. Johnston, 133 Cal. 185, 65 Pac. 383.

f. Judgment.

55. When final.—Judgment in suit against an insolvent bank brought by the attorney general under the "bank commissioners act," declaring the bank insolvent and restraining it from transacting further business and requiring liquidation is a final judgment, and after the expiration of the time for appeal has expired, without appeal, the court has no jurisdiction to modify it.—People v. Bank of Mendocino County, 133 Cal. 107, 65 Pac. 124.

56. Same—Repeal of act.—A judgment under the act of 1903, that had become final on appeal, is not rendered ineffectual by the repeal of the act by the banking act of 1909, pending an appeal from the order denying a new trial, without continuing in force pending litigation under the repealed act.—Crittenden v. Superior Court, 166 Cal. 340, 345, 136 Pac. 287.

57. Same—Same—Pending new trial proceedings.—Repeal of act after judgment has been affirmed on appeal and thus become final does not destroy the judgment, notwithstanding pending appeal from order on motion for new trial, without supersedeas or stay bond.—People v. Bank of San Luis Obispo, 159 Cal. 65, Ann. Cas. 1912B, 1148, 37 L. R. A. (N. S.) 934, 112 Pac. 866.

58. Same—Same—Abatement of proceedings.—An action by the bank commissioners on behalf of an insolvent bank instituted under the act of 1903, did not abate on the repeal of that act, and the court has jurisdiction to substitute the receiver in liquidation, as plaintiff, and allow the action to be continued in his name.—Crittenden v. Superior Court, 166 Cal. 340, 346, 136 Pac. 287.

59. Same—Same—New trial—Stay of proceedings.—A judgment under the act of 1903, declaring a bank insolvent, and ordering it into liquidation, and appointing a receiver for that purpose, affirmed on appeal, was in no way stayed in law by virtue of pending proceedings under a motion for a new trial.—Crittenden v. Superior Court, 166 Cal. 340, 344, 136 Pac. 287.

60. Same—Same—Power of directors to levy assessment.—The repeal of the bank commissioners act of 1903, without a saving clause, could not affect a prior judgment under its provisions decreeing the insolvency of a banking corporation and its liquidation; nor could the repeal affect the power of the directors to levy an assessment on unpaid capital stock.—Union Savings Bank v. Leiter, 145 Cal. 696, 79 Pac. 441.

g. Appeal and error.

61. Superintendent of banks, appeal by.—The superintendent of banks, in custody of the assets of an insolvent bank and engaged in liquidating its business, is a proper party, where the bank is a holder of a portion of a bond issue, and had contested the legality of the remaining bonds, to an action to foreclose the mortgage given to secure such bonds, and entitled to appeal in his official capacity from a judgment in such action adverse to the interests of such bank.—Mercantile Trust Co. v. Miller, 166 Cal. 563, 569, 137 Pac. 913.

62. Same—Stay bond by.—Under section 120 of the banking act, the state superintendent of banks is a state officer, when performing the duties of his office under the provisions of said act, within the meaning of section 1058, Code of Civil Procedure, and is exempt from the necessity of giving a stay bond on appeal.—Mercantile Trust Co. v. Miller, 166 Cal. 563, 566, 137 Pac. 913.

63. Same—Same.—The superintendent of banks when acting in his official capacity as the custodian of the assets of an insolvent bank, is a "trustee" and also a person acting in "another's right," within the meaning of section 946, Code of Civil Procedure, and the court is authorized, in its discretion, to limit or dispense with a stay bond on appeal by such officer.—Mercantile Trust Co. v. Miller, 166 Cal. 563, 567, 137 Pac. 913.

64. Bank, appeal by.—Action by attorney general authorized by section 10 of the bank commissioners act is a special proceeding of a civil nature, and, there being no provision in the act denying the right of the bank to appeal from the judgment therein, that right exists under section 939, Code of Civil Procedure.—People v. Bank of San Luis Obispo, 152 Cal. 261, 92 Pac. 481.

h. Sale of bank property.

65. Judicial sale—Caveat emptor.—A sale by the superintendent of banks, of property of an insolvent bank, by the order of the superior court, under the "bank act," is a judicial sale, and the rule of caveat emptor applies.—National Bank v. Williams, 31 Cal. App. 705, 161 Pac. 504.

66. Conveyance of bank property by superintendent of banks—Taxes.—Where neither the order of court authorizing the conveyance nor the deed conveying the right, title and interest of the insolvent bank made any mention of taxes, the grantee can not maintain an action for taxes paid him to protect the property from sale for delinquent taxes, against the superintendent of banks, although such taxes were a lien on the property, but not due, at the date of the conveyance.—National Bank of Bakersfield v. Williams, 31 Cal. App. 705, 161 Pac. 504.

VI. MISCELLANEOUS.

a. Attachment.

67. Right of against insolvent bank does not exist.—Right of attachment against insolvent bank does not exist, the effect of the repealing clause of the bank commissioners act being to repeal the inconsistent provisions of the Code of Civil Procedure relating to attachment.—Crane v. Pacific Bank, 106 Cal. 64, 27 L. R. A. 562, 39 Pac. 215.

68. Same—Code provisions inconsistent.—The provisions of the Code of Civil Procedure relating to attachment, in so far as they have effect to give the attaching creditor of an insolvent bank an advantage over other creditors in the collection of their debts, is inconsistent with the provisions of the bank commissioners act.—Crane v. Pacific Bank, 106 Cal. 64, 27 L. R. A. 562, 39 Pac. 215.

b. Receiver.

69. Act itself notice of appointment.—The bank commissioners act itself is full notice that a receiver will be appointed in the event of a determination of insolvency, and no other is required.—People v. Bank of San Luis Obispo, 154 Cal. 194, 97 Pac. 306.

c. Finding of insolvency.

70. Sustained by evidence.—Evidence held to sustain finding of insolvency.—People v. Bank of San Luis Obispo, 159 Cal. 65, Ann. Cas. 1912B, 1148, 37 L. R. A. (N. S.) 934, 112 Pac. 866.

d. Number of employees.

71. Maximum number—Minimum salaries.—When the commissioners have fixed the maximum number of employees and the maximum limit of their salaries, the directors may fix the number and the amount of their salaries within these limits.—Bank of Mendocino v. Brown, 8 Cal. App. 566. 97 Pac. 533.

e. Non-stockholding depositor.

72. Preference—Act of 1862.—Under the act a non-stockholding depositor of an insolvent bank must be paid out of its assets before a general creditor, whether stockholder or not.—Laidlaw v. Pacific Bank, 137 Cal. 392, 394, 70 Pac. 277.

§ 7. This act shall not affect any action or proceeding instituted by the superintendent of banks prior to its enactment.

Constitutionality.

§ 8. If any section, subsection, sentence, clause or phrase of this act is for any reason held to be unconstitutional, such decision shall not affect the validity of the remaining portion of this act. The legislature hereby declares that it would have passed this act, and each section, subsection, sentence, clause or phrase thereof, irrespective of the fact that any one or more other sections, subsections, sentences, clauses or phrases be declared unconstitutional or its operation or application is or may be limited or controlled by any constitutional provision.

History: Approved April 6, 1917. In effect July 27, 1917. Stats. 1917, p. 70.

Swimming pools under supervision of state board of health.

§ 1. The state board of health shall have supervision over the sanitation, healthfulness and cleanliness and safety of swimming pools, bathhouses, public swimming and bathing places and all related appurtenances and is hereby empowered to make and enforce such rules and regulations pertaining thereto as it shall deem proper.

Permit to construct or operate swimming pool.

§ 2. It shall be unlawful for any person, persons, firm, corporation, institution or municipality in any district, town, city, county, or city and county to construct or to add to or modify, or to operate or to continue to operate any swimming pool, public bathhouse, bathing or swimming place, or any structure intended to be used for swimming or bathing purposes without an unrevoked permit so to do from the state board of health. This permit shall be obtained in the following manner: any person, persons, firm, corporation, institution or municipality desiring to construct, add to or modify, or to operate and maintain any swimming pool, public bathhouse, bathing or swimming places or structures intended to be used for swimming or bathing purposes within the state of California shall file application for permission so to do with the state board of health, which application shall be accompanied by detailed maps, drawings, specifications and description of the structure, its appurtenances and operation, description of the source or sources of water supply, amount and quality of water available and intended to be used, method and manner of water purification, treatment, disinfection, heating, regulating and cleaning; life-saving apparatus, and measures to insure safety of bathers; measures to insure personal cleanliness of bathers; method and manner of washing, disinfecting, drying and storing bathing apparel and towels, and all other information and statistics that may be required by the state board of health; whereupon, the state board of health shall cause an investigation to be made of the proposed or existing pool or public bathing places and if it shall determine as a fact that the same is or may reasonably be expected to become unclean or insanitary or may constitute a menace to public health, it shall deny the application for permit; if it shall determine as a fact that the same is or may reasonably be expected to be conducted continuously in a clean and sanitary manner, and will not constitute a menace to public health, it shall grant the application for permit under such restrictions as it shall deem proper.

§ 3. For the purpose of this act the state board of health or its inspectors shall at any and all reasonable times have full power and authority to, and shall be permitted to enter upon any and all parts of the premises of such bathing and swimming places to make examination and investigation to determine the sanitary condition of such places and whether the provisions of this act or the rules and regulations of the state board of health pertaining thereto are being violated. Revocation of permit.

§ 4. Any permit granted by the state board of health as provided in this act shall be revocable or subject to suspension at any time by formal action of the state board of health if it shall determine as a fact that the swimming or bathing place or places are being conducted in a manner insanitary, unclean or dangerous to public health.

FRATERNAL INSURANCE ACT.

ACT 440—An act for the regulation and control of fraternal benefit societies.

History: Approved May 1, 1911, Stats. 1911, p. 1320. Amended June 7, 1915. In effect August 8, 1915. Stats. 1915, p. 1273; April 24, 1917. In effect July 27, 1917. Stats. 1917, p. 164; May 21, 1917. In effect July 27, 1917. Stats. 1917, p. 785; June 1, 1917. In effect July 31, 1917. Stats. 1917, p. 1651.

Fraternal benefit society defined.

§ 1. Any corporation, society, order, or voluntary association, without capital stock, organized and carried on solely for the mutual benefit of its members and their beneficiaries, and not for profit, and having a lodge system with ritualistic form of work and representative form of government, and which shall make provision for the payment of benefits in accordance with section five hereof, and any mutual life association whose membership is limited to a secret fraternity, profession or guild, and which elects its officers and directors by direct vote of its members, either in person or by proxy, is hereby declared to be a fraternal benefit society. [Amendment of June 7, 1915. In effect August 8, 1915. Stats. 1915, p. 1273.]

Lodge system.

§ 2. Any society having a supreme governing or legislative body and subordinate lodges or branches by whatever name known, into which members shall be elected, initiated and admitted in accordance with its constitution, laws, rules, regulations, and prescribed ritualistic ceremonies, which subordinate lodges or branches shall be required by the laws of such society to hold regular or stated meetings at least once in each month, shall be deemed to be operating on the lodge system.

Representative form of government.

§ 3. Any such society shall be deemed to have a representative form of government when it shall provide in its constitution and laws for a supreme legislative or governing body, composed of representatives elected either by the members or by delegates elected directly or indirectly by the members, together with such other members as may be prescribed by its constitution and laws; provided, that the elective members shall constitute a majority in number and have not less than two-thirds of the votes, nor less than the votes required to amend its constitution and laws; and provided, further, that the meetings of the supreme or governing body, and the election of officers, representatives or delegates shall be held as often as once in four years. The members, officers, representatives or delegates of a fraternal benefit society shall not vote by proxy.

Societies exempt.

§ 4. Except as herein provided, such societies shall be governed by this act and shall be exempt from all provisions of the insurance laws of this state, not only in governmental relations with the state, but for every other purpose, and no law hereafter enacted shall apply to them, unless they be expressly designated therein.

Benefits.

§ 5. Subsection 1. Every society transacting business under this act shall provide for the payment of death benefits, and may provide for the payment of benefits in case of temporary or permanent physical disability, either as the result of disease, accident or old age; provided, the period of life at which the payment of benefits for disability on account of old age shall commence, shall not be under seventy years, and may provide for monuments or tombstones to the memory of its deceased members and for the payment of funeral benefits. Such society shall have the power to give a member, when permanently disabled or on attaining the age of seventy, all or such portion of the face value of his certificate as the laws of the society may provide; provided, that nothing in this act contained shall be so construed as to prevent the issuing of benefit certificates for a term of years less than the whole of life which are payable upon the death or disability of the member occurring within the term for which the benefit certificate may be issued. Such society shall, upon written application of the member, have the power to accept a part of the periodical contributions in cash, and charge the remainder, not exceeding one-half of the periodical contribution, against the certificate with interest payable or compounded annually at a rate not lower than four per cent per annum; provided, that this privilege shall not be granted except to societies which have readjusted or may hereafter readjust their rates of contributions and to contracts affected by such readjustment.

Society to maintain reserve.

Subsection 2. Any society which shall show by the annual valuation hereinafter provided for that it is accumulating and maintaining the reserve necessary to enable it to do so, under a table of mortality not lower than the American experience table and four per cent interest, may grant to its members, extended and paid-up protection or such withdrawal equities as its constitution and laws may provide; provided, that such grants shall in no case exceed in value the portion of the reserve to the credit of such members to whom they are made.

Beneficiaries of fraternal benefit societies.

§ 6. The payment of death benefits shall be confined to wife, husband, relative by blood to the fourth degree, father-in-law, mother-in-law, son-in-law, daughter-in-law, stepfather, stepmother, stepchildren, children by legal adoption, or to a person or persons dependent upon the member; provided, that if there is not living any person above designated, the member may designate any friend as his beneficiary or may direct that said benefit be paid to his estate; provided, further, that if after the issuance of the original certificate the member shall become dependent upon an incorporated charitable institution, he shall have the privilege, with the consent of the society, to make such institution his beneficiary. Within the above restrictions each member shall have the right to designate his beneficiary, and, from time to time, have the same changed in accordance with the laws, rules or regulations of the society, and no beneficiary shall have or obtain any vested interest in the said benefit until the same has become due and payable upon the death of said member; provided, that any society may, by its laws, limit the scope of beneficiaries within the above classes. [Amendment of May 21, 1917. In effect July 27, 1917. Stats. 1917, p. 785.]

Membership.

§ 7. Any society may admit to beneficial membership any person not less than sixteen and not more than sixty years of age, who has been examined by a legally qualified physician and whose examination has been supervised and approved in accordance with the laws of the society; provided, that any beneficiary member of such society who shall apply for a certificate providing for disability benefits, need not be required to pass an additional medical examination therefor. Nothing herein contained shall prevent such society from accepting general or social members.

Certificate to specify amount of benefit.

§ 8. Every certificate issued by any such society shall specify the amount of benefit provided thereby, and shall provide that the certificate, the charter or articles of incorporation, or, if a voluntary association, the articles of association, the constitution and laws of the society and the application for membership and medical examination, signed by the applicant, and all amendments to each thereof, shall constitute the agreement between the society and the member, and copies of the same certified by the secretary of the society, or corresponding officer, shall be received in evidence of the terms and conditions thereof and any changes, additions or amendments to said charter or articles of incorporation, or articles of association, if a voluntary association, constitution or laws duly made or enacted subsequent to the issuance of the benefit certificate shall bind the member and his beneficiaries, and shall govern and control the agreement in all respects the same as though such changes, additions or amendments had been made prior to and were in force at the time of the application for membership.

Funds.

§ 9. Subsection 1. Any society may create, maintain, invest, disburse and apply an emergency, surplus or other similar fund in accordance with its laws. Unless otherwise provided in the contract, such funds shall be held, invested, and disbursed for the use and benefit of the society, and no member or beneficiary shall have or acquire individual rights therein or become entitled to any apportionment or the surrender of any part thereof, except as provided in subsection 2 of section 5 of this act. The funds from which benefits shall be paid and the funds from which the expenses of the society shall be defrayed, shall be derived from periodical or other payments by the members of the society and accretions of said funds; provided, that no society, domestic or foreign, shall hereafter be incorporated or admitted to transact business in this state, which does not provide for stated periodical contributions sufficient to provide for meeting the mortuary obligations contracted, when valued upon the basis of the national fraternal congress table of mortality as adopted by the national fraternal congress, August 23, 1899, or any higher standard with interest assumption not more than four per cent per annum, nor write or accept members for temporary or permanent disability benefits except upon tables based upon reliable experience, with an interest assumption not higher than four per cent per annum.

Deferred payments considered fixed liabilities.

Subsection 2. Deferred payments or installments of claims shall be considered as fixed liabilities on the happening of the contingency upon which such payments or installments are thereafter to be paid. Such liability shall be the present value of such future payments or installments upon the rate of interest and mortality assumed by the society for valuation, and every society shall maintain a fund sufficient to meet such liability regardless of proposed future collections to meet any such liabilities.

Investment of funds.

§ 10. Every society shall invest its funds only in securities permitted by the laws of this state for the investment of the assets of life insurance companies; provided, that any foreign society permitted or seeking to do business in this state, which invests its funds in accordance with the laws of the state in which it is incorporated, shall be held to meet the requirements of this act for the investment of funds.

Distribution of funds.

§ 11. Every provision of the laws of the society for payment by members of such society, in whatever form made, shall distinctly state the purpose of the same and the proportion thereof which may be used for expenses, and no part of the money collected for mortuary or disability purposes or the net accretions of either or any of said funds shall be used for expenses.

Organization of society.

§ 12. Seven or more persons, citizens of the United States, and a majority of whom are citizens of this state, who desire to form a fraternal benefit society, as defined by this act, may make and sign (giving their addresses) and acknowledge before some officer competent to take acknowledgment of deeds, articles of incorporation, in which shall be stated:

First—The proposed corporate name of the society, which shall not so closely resemble the name of any society or insurance company already transacting business in this state as to mislead the public or to lead to confusion.

Second—The purpose for which it is formed—which shall not include more liberal powers than are granted by this act, provided, that any lawful social, intellectual, educational, charitable, benevolent, moral or religious advantages may be set forth among the purposes of the society—and the mode in which its corporate powers are to be exercised.

Third—The names, residences and official titles of all the officers, trustees, directors or other persons who are to have and exercise the general control and management of the affairs and funds of the society for the first year, or until the ensuing election at which all such officers shall be elected by the supreme legislative or governing body which election shall be held not later than one year from the date of the issuance of the permanent certificate.

Papers to be filed with insurance commissioner. Must secure at least five hundred applications to complete organization. Advance payments. Insurance commissioner may examine. Preliminary certificate. Constitution.

Such articles of incorporation and duly certified copies of the constitution and laws, rules and regulations, and copies of all proposed forms of benefit certificates, applications therefor and circulars to be issued by such society, and a bond in the sum of five thousand dollars, with sureties approved by the insurance commissioner conditioned upon the return of the advanced payments, as provided in this section, to applicants, if the organization is not completed within one year, shall be filed with the insurance commissioner, who may require such further information as he deems necessary, and if the purposes of the society conform to the requirements of this act, and all provisions of law have been complied with, the insurance commissioner, shall so certify and retain and file the articles of incorporation, and furnish the incorporators a preliminary certificate authorizing said society to solicit members as hereinafter provided. Upon receipt of said certificate from the insurance commissioner said society may solicit members for the purpose of completing its organization and shall collect from each applicant the amount of not less than one regular monthly payment, in accordance with its table of rates as provided by its constitution and laws, and shall issue to each such applicant a receipt for the amount so collected. But no such society shall incur any liability other than for such advanced payments, nor issue any benefit certificate nor pay or allow, or offer or promise to pay or allow, to any person any death or disability benefit until actual bona fide applications for death benefit certificates have been secured upon at least five hundred lives for at least one thousand dollars each, and all such applicants for death benefits shall have been regularly examined by legally qualified practicing physicians, and certificates of such examinations have been duly filed and approved by the chief medical examiner of such society, nor until there shall be established ten subordinate lodges or branches into which said five hundred applicants have been initiated, nor until there has been submitted to the insurance commissioner, under oath of the president and secretary, or corresponding officers of such society, a list of such applicants, giving their names, addresses, date examined, date approved, date initiated, name and number of the subordinate branch of which each applicant is a member, amount of benefits to be granted, rate of stated periodical contributions which shall be sufficient to provide for meeting the mortuary obligation contracted, when valued for death benefits upon the basis of the national fraternal congress table of mortality, as adopted by the national fraternal congress August 23, 1899, or any higher standard at the option of the society, and for disability benefits by tables based upon reliable experience and for combined death and permanent total disability benefits by tables based upon reliable experience, with an interest assumption not higher than four per cent per annum, nor until it shall be shown to the insurance commissioner by the sworn statement of the treasurer, or corresponding officer of such society, that at least five hundred applicants have each paid in cash at least one regular monthly payment as herein provided per one thousand dollars of indemnity to be effected, which payments in the aggregate shall amount to at least twenty-five hundred dollars, all of which shall be credited to the mortuary or disability fund on account of such applicants, and no part of which may be used for expenses. Said advanced payments shall, during the period of organization, be held in trust, and, if the organization is not completed within one year as hereinafter provided, returned to said applicants. The insurance commissioner may make such examination and require such further information as he deems advisable, and upon presentation of satisfactory evidence that the society has complied with all the provisions of law he shall issue to such society a certificate to that effect. Such certificate shall be prima facie evidence of the existence of such society at the date of such certificate. The insurance commissioner shall cause a record of such certificate to be made and a certified copy of such record may be given in evidence with like effect as the original certificate. No preliminary certificate granted under the provisions of this section shall be valid after one year from its date, or after such further period, not exceeding one year, as may be authorized by the insurance commissioner upon cause shown, unless the five hundred applicants herein required have been secured and the organization has been completed as herein provided, and the articles of incorporation and all proceedings thereunder shall become null and void in one year from the date of said preliminary certificate, or at the expiration of said extended period, unless such society shall have completed its organization and commenced business as herein provided. When any domestic society shall have discontinued business for the period of one year, or has less than four hundred members, its charter shall become null and void. Every such society shall have the power to make a constitution and by-laws for the government of the society, the admission of its members, the management of its affairs and the fixing and readjusting of the rates of contribution of its members from time to time; and it shall have the power to change, alter, add to or amend such constitution and by-laws and shall have such other powers as are necessary and incidental to carry into effect the objects and purposes of the society.

Powers retained.

§ 13. Any society now engaged in transacting business in this state may exercise, after the passage of this act, all of the rights conferred thereby, and all of the rights, powers and privileges now exercised or possessed by it under its charter or articles of incorporation not inconsistent with this act, if incorporated; or, if it be a voluntary association, it may incorporate hereunder. But no society already organized shall be required to reincorporate hereunder, and any such society may amend its articles of incorporation from time to time in the manner provided therein or in its constitution and laws and all such amendments shall be filed with the insurance commissioner, and shall become operative upon such filing, unless a later time be provided in such amendments or in its articles of incorporation, constitution or laws.

Mergers and transfers.

§ 14. No domestic society shall merge with or accept the transfer of the membership or funds of any other society unless such merger or transfer is evidenced by a contract in writing, setting out in full the terms and conditions of such merger or transfer, and filed with the insurance commissioner of this state, together with a sworn statement of the financial condition of each of said societies, by its president and secretary, or corresponding officers, and a certificate of such officers, duly verified under oath of said officers of each of the contracting societies, that such merger or transfer has been approved by a vote of two-thirds of the members of the supreme legislative or governing body of each of said societies. Upon the submission of said contract, financial statements and certificates, the insurance commissioner shall examine the same, and, if he shall find such financial statements to be correct and the said contract to be in conformity with the provisions of this section, and that such merger or transfer is just and equitable to the members of each of said societies, he shall approve said merger or transfer, issue his certificate to that effect, and thereupon the said contract of merger or transfer shall be of full force and effect. In case such contract is not approved, the fact of its submission and its contents shall not be disclosed by the insurance commissioner.

Annual license.

§ 15. Societies which are now authorized to transact business in this state may continue such business until the first day of July next succeeding the passage of this act, and the authority of such societies may thereafter be renewed annually, but in all cases to terminate on the first day of the succeeding July; provided, however, the certificate of authority shall continue in full force and effect until the new certificate of authority be issued or specifically refused. For each such certificate of authority or renewal the society shall pay the insurance commissioner ten dollars. A duly certified copy or duplicate of such certificate of authority shall be prima facie evidence that the licensee is a fraternal benefit society within the meaning of this act.

Foreign societies must secure certificates. Same qualifications required of foreign as of domestic societies.

§ 16. No foreign society now transacting business organized prior to the passage of this act, which is not now authorized to transact business in this state, shall transact any business herein without a certificate of authority from the insurance commissioner. Any such society shall be entitled to a certificate of authority to transact business within this state upon filing with the insurance commissioner a duly certified copy of its charter or articles of association; a copy of its constitution and laws, certified by its secretary or corresponding officer, a power of attorney to the insurance commissioner as hereinafter provided; a statement of its business under oath of its president and secretary, or corresponding officers, in the form required by the insurance commissioner, duly verified by an examination made by the supervising insurance official of its home state or other state satisfactory to the insurance commissioner of this state; a certificate from the proper official in its home state, province or country that the society is legally organized; a copy of its contract, which must show that benefits are provided for by periodical, or other payments, by persons holding similar contracts, and upon furnishing the insurance commissioner such other information as he may deem necessary to a proper exhibit of its business and plan of working and upon showing that its assets are invested in accordance with the laws of the state, territory, district, province or country where it is organized, he shall issue a certificate of authority to such society to do business in this state until the first day of the succeeding July and such certificate of authority shall, upon compliance with the provisions of this act, be renewed annually, but in all cases to terminate on the first day of the succeeding July; provided, however, that certificate of authority shall continue in full force and effect until the new certificate of authority be issued or specifically refused. Any foreign society desiring admission to this state shall have the qualifications required of domestic societies organized under this act and have its assets invested as required by the laws of the state, territory, district, country, or province where it is organized. For each such certificate or renewal the society shall pay the insurance commissioner twenty dollars. When the insurance commissioner refuses to issue a certificate of authority to any society, or revokes its certificate of authority to do business in this state, he shall reduce his ruling, order or decision to writing and file the same in his office, and shall furnish a copy thereof, together with a statement of his reasons, to the officers of the society, upon request, and the action of the insurance commissioner shall be reviewable by proper proceedings in any court of competent jurisdiction within the state; provided, however, that nothing contained in this or the preceding section shall be taken or construed as preventing any such society from continuing in good faith all contracts made in this state during the time such society was legally authorized to transact business herein.

Power of attorney and service of process.

§ 17. Every society, whether domestic or foreign, now transacting business in this state shall, within thirty days after the passage of this act, and every such society hereafter applying for admission; shall, before being licensed, appoint in writing the insurance commissioner and his successors in office to be its true and lawful attorney, upon whom all legal process in any action or proceeding against it shall be served, and in such writing shall agree that any lawful process against it which is served upon such attorney shall be of the same legal force and validity as if served upon the society and that the authority shall continue in force so long as any liability remains outstanding in this state. Copies of such appointment, certified by said insurance commissioner, shall be deemed sufficient evidence thereof and shall be admitted in evidence with the same force and effect as the original thereof might be admitted. Service shall only be made upon such attorney, must be made in duplicate upon the insurance commissioner or in his absence upon the person in charge of his office and shall be deemed sufficient service upon such society; provided, however, that no such service shall be valid or binding against any such society when it is required thereunder to file its answer, pleading or defense in less than thirty days from the date of mailing the copy of such service to such society. When legal process against any such society is served upon said insurance commissioner he shall forthwith forward by registered mail one of the duplicate copies prepaid and directed to its secretary or corresponding officer. Legal process shall not be served upon any such society except in the manner provided herein.

Meetings.

§ 18. Any domestic society may provide that the meetings of its legislative or governing body may be held in any state, district, province or territory wherein such society has subordinate branches and all business transacted at such meetings shall be as valid in all respects as if such meetings were held in this state. But its principal office shall be located in this state.

No personal liability.

§ 19. Officers and members of the supreme, grand or any subordinate body of any such incorporated society shall not be individually liable for the payment of any disability or death benefit provided for in the laws and agreements of such society, but the same shall be payable only out of the funds of such society and in the manner provided by its laws.

Subordinate body must not waive constitution.

§ 20. The constitution and laws of the society may provide that no subordinate body, nor any of its subordinate officers or members shall have the power or authority to waive any of the provisions of laws and constitution of the society, and the same shall be binding on the society and each and every member thereof and on all beneficiaries of members.

Benefits may not be attached.

§ 21. No money or other benefit, charity or relief or aid to be paid, provided or rendered by any such society shall be liable to attachment, garnishment or other process, or be seized, taken, appropriated or applied by any legal or equitable process or operation of law to pay any debt or liability of a member or beneficiary, or any person who may have a right thereunder, either before or after payment.

Amendments to constitution filed with insurance commissioner.

§ 22. Every society transacting business under this act shall file with the insurance commissioner a duly certified copy of all amendments of or additions to its constitution and laws within ninety days after the enactment of the same. Printed copies of the constitution and laws as amended, changed or added to, certified by the secretary or corresponding officer of the society shall be prima facie evidence of the legal adoption thereof.

Annual reports. Report on valuation of certificates. Valuation certified by actuary.When society is considered solvent. Report mailed to members.

§ 23. Every society transacting business in this state shall annually, on or before the first day of March, file with the insurance commissioner in such form as he may require, a statement under oath of its president and secretary, or corresponding officers, of its condition and standing on the thirty-first day of December next preceding, and of its transactions for the year ending on that date and also shall furnish such other information as the insurance commissioner may deem necessary to a proper exhibit of its business and plan of working. The insurance commissioner may at other times require any further statement he may deem necessary to be made relating to such society. In addition to the annual report herein required, each society shall annually report to the insurance commissioner a valuation of its certificates in force on December 31st, last preceding, excluding those issued within the year for which the report is filed, in cases where the contributions for the first year in whole or in part are used for current mortality and expenses, provided the first report of valuation shall be made as of December 31, 1912. Such report of valuation shall show, as contingent liabilities, the present mid-year value of the promised benefits provided in the constitution and laws of such society under certificates then subject to valuation; and, as contingent asset, the present mid-year value of the future net contributions provided in the constitution and laws as the same are in practice actually collected. At the option of any society, in lieu of the above, the valuation may show the net value of the certificates subject to valuation hereinbefore provided and said net value, when computed in case of monthly contributions, may be the mean of the terminal values for the end of the preceding and of the current insurance years. Such valuation shall be certified by a competent accountant or actuary, or at the request and expense of the society, verified by the actuary of the department of insurance of the home state of the society, and shall be filed with the insurance commissioner within ninety days after the submission of the last preceding annual report. The legal minimum standard of valuation for all certificates, except for disability benefits, shall be the national fraternal congress table of mortality as adopted by the national fraternal congress August 23, 1899, at the option of the society, any higher table, or, at its option, it may use a table based upon the society's own experience of at least twenty years and covering not less than one hundred thousand lives with interest assumption not more than four per centum per annum. Each such valuation report shall set forth clearly and fully the mortality and interest basis and the method of valuation. Any society providing for disability benefits shall keep the net contributions for such benefits in a fund separate and apart from all other benefit and expense funds and the valuation of all other business of the society; provided, that where a combined contribution table is used by a society for both death and permanent total disability benefits, the valuation shall be according to tables of reliable experience and in such case a separation of the funds shall not be required. The valuation herein provided for shall not be considered or regarded as a test of the financial solvency of the society, but each society shall be held to be legally solvent so long as the funds in its possession are equal to or in excess of its matured liabilities. Beginning with the year 1914 a report of such valuation and an explanation of the facts concerning the condition of the society thereby disclosed shall be printed and mailed to each beneficiary member of the society not later than June 1st of each year, or, in lieu thereof, such report of valuation and showing of the society's condition as thereby disclosed may be published in the society's official paper and the issue containing the same mailed to each beneficiary member of the society. The laws of such society shall provide that if the stated periodical contributions of the members are insufficient to pay all matured death and disability claims in full and to provide for the creation and maintenance of the funds required by its laws, additional increased or extra rates of contribution shall be collected from the members to meet such deficiency; and such laws may provide that, upon the written application or consent of the member, his certificate may be charged with its proportion of any deficiency disclosed by valuation, with interest not exceeding five per centum per annum.

Provisions to insure future security.

§23a. If the valuation of the certificates, as hereinbefore provided, on December 31, 1917, shall show that the present value of future net contributions, together with the admitted assets, is less than the present value of the promised benefits and accrued liabilities, such society shall thereafter at least maintain said financial condition at each succeeding triennial valuation in respect of the degree of deficiency as shown in the valuation as of December 31, 1917. If at any succeeding triennial valuation such society does not show at least the same condition, the insurance commissioner shall direct that it thereafter comply with the requirements herein specified. If the next succeeding triennial valuation after the receipt of such notice shall show that the society has failed to maintain the condition required herein, the insurance commissioner may, in the absence of good cause shown for such failure, institute proceedings for the dissolution of such society, in accordance with the provision of section 24 of this act, or in the case of a foreign society, its license may be canceled in the manner provided in this act.

Any such society shown by any triennial valuation, subsequent to December 31, 1917, not to have maintained the condition herein required, shall, within two years thereafter, make such improvement as to show a percentage of deficiency not greater than as of December 31, 1917, or thereafter, as to all new members admitted, be subject, so far as stated rates of contributions are concerned, to the provisions of section 12 of this act, applicable in the organization of new societies; provided, that the net mortuary or beneficiary contributions and funds of such new members shall be kept separate and apart from the other funds of the society. If such required improvement is not shown by the succeeding triennial valuation, then the said new members may be placed in a separate class and their certificates valued as an independent society in respect of contributions and funds. [Amendment of April 24, 1917. In effect July 27, 1917. Stats. 1917, p. 164.]

Valuation of certificates on "accumulation basis."

§ 23b. In lieu of the requirements of sections twenty-three and twenty-three a, any society accepting in its laws the provisions of this section may value its certificates on a basis, herein designated "accumulation basis," by crediting each member with the net amount contributed for each year and with interest at approximately the net rate earned and by charging him with his share of the losses for each year, herein designated "cost of insurance" and carrying the balance, if any, to his credit. The charge for the cost of insurance may be according to the actual experience of the society applied to a table of mortality recognized by the law of this state, and shall take into consideration the amount at risk during each year, which shall be the amount payable at death less the credit to the member. Except as specifically provided in its articles or laws or contracts no charge shall be carried forward from the first valuation hereunder against any member for any past share of losses exceeding the contributions and credit. If, after the first valuation, any member's share of losses for any year exceeds his credit including the contribution for the year, the contribution shall be increased to cover his share of the losses, and if the credit at the time any benefit becomes payable during the lifetime of the member, including any available funds does not equal such benefit, the contributions to be made by him or on his behalf shall be increased by the difference. Any such excess share of losses chargeable to any member may be paid out of a fund or contributions especially created or required for such purpose.

Any member may transfer to any plan adopted by the society with net rates on which tabular reserves are maintained and on such transfer shall be entitled to make such application of his credit as provided in the laws of the society.

Value of certificate on "tabular basis."

Certificates issued, rerated or readjusted on a basis providing for adequate rates with adequate reserves to mature such certificates upon assumptions for mortality and interest recognized by the law of this state shall be valued on such basis, herein designated the "tabular basis"; provided, that if on the first valuation under this section a deficiency in reserve shall be shown for any such certificate, the same shall be valued on the accumulation basis.

Whenever in any society having members upon the tabular basis and upon the accumulation basis, the total of all costs of insurance provided for any year shall be insufficient to meet the actual death and disability losses for the year, the deficiency shall be met for the year from the available funds after setting aside all credits in the reserve; or from increased contributions or by an increase in the number of assessments applied to the society as a whole or to classes of members as may be specified in its laws. Savings from a lower amount of death losses may be returned in like manner as may be specified in its laws.

If the laws of the society so provide, the assets representing the reserves of any separate class of members may be carried separately for such class as if in an independent society, and the required reserve accumulation of such class so set apart shall not thereafter be mingled with the assets of other classes of the society.

Table of rates and credits.

A table showing the rates being paid by and the credits to individual members at each age and year of entry, and showing opposite each credit the tabular rates and the tabular reserve required, or at the option of the society the required reserve on a level rate equivalent to that being paid, according to assumptions for mortality and interest recognized by the laws of this state and adopted by the society, and, in either case, including any benefit payable at a specified age or on account of old age disability shall be filed by the society with each annual report and also be furnished to each member before July first of each year.

In lieu of the aforesaid statement there may be furnished to each member within the same time a statement giving the data aforesaid for such member. No table or statement need be made or furnished when the reserves are maintained on the tabular basis.

For this purpose, individual bookkeeping accounts for each member shall not be required and all calculations may be made by actuarial methods.

Nothing herein contained shall prevent the maintenance of such surplus over and above the credits on the accumulation basis and the reserves on the tabular basis as the society may provide by or pursuant to its laws; nor be construed as giving to the individual member any right or claim to any such reserve or credit other than in manner as expressed in the contract and its laws; nor as making any such reserve or credits a liability in determining the legal solvency of the society. [New section added April 24, 1917. In effect July 27, 1917. Stats. 1917, p. 165.]

Examination of domestic societies by insurance commissioner. Expense of examination.

Action when societies fail to reach required standard. Proceedings only after notice.

§ 24. The insurance commissioner, or any person he may appoint, shall have the power of visitation and examination into the affairs of any domestic society. He may employ assistants for the purpose of such examination, and he, or any person he may appoint, shall have free access to all the books, papers and documents that relate to the business of the society and may summon and qualify as witness under oath and examine its officers, agents and employees or other persons in relation to the affairs, transactions and condition of the society. The expense of such examination shall be paid by the society examined, upon statement furnished by the insurance commissioner, and the examination shall be made at least once in three years. Whenever after examination the insurance commissioner is satisfied that any domestic society has failed to comply with any provisions of this act, or is exceeding its powers, or is not carrying out its contracts in good faith, or is transacting business fraudulently, or whenever any domestic society, after the existence of one year or more, shall have a membership of less than four hundred (or shall determine to discontinue business), the insurance commissioner may present the facts relating thereto to the attorney general, who shall, if he deem the circumstances warrant, commence an action in quo warranto in a court of competent jurisdiction, and such court shall thereupon notify the officers of such society of a hearing, and it shall then appear that such society should be closed, said society shall be enjoined from carrying on any further business and some person shall be appointed receiver of such society, and shall proceed at once to take possession of the books, papers, moneys and other assets of the society and shall forthwith, under the direction of the court, proceed to close the affairs of the society and to distribute its funds to those entitled thereto. No such proceedings shall be commenced by the attorney general against any such society until after notice has been duly served on the chief executive officers of the society and a reasonable opportunity given to it, on a date to be named in said notice, to show cause why such proceedings should not be commenced.

Application for receiver.

§ 25. No application for injunction against or proceedings for the dissolution of, or the appointment of a receiver for, any such domestic society or branch thereof shall be entertained by any court in this state unless the same is made by the attorney general.

Examination of foreign societies.

§ 26. The insurance commissioner, or any person whom he may appoint, may examine any foreign society transacting or applying for admission to transact business in this state. The said insurance commissioner may employ assistants, and he, or any person he may appoint, shall have free access to all the books, papers and documents that relate to the business of the society, and may summon and qualify as witness under oath and examine its officers, agents and employees and other persons in relation to the affairs, transactions and condition of the society. He may, in his discretion, accept in lieu of such examination the examination of the insurance department of the state, territory, district, province or county where such society is organized. The actual expenses of examiners making any such examination shall be paid by the society upon statement furnished by the insurance commissioner. If any such society or its officers refuse to submit to such examination or to comply with the provisions of the section relative thereto, the authority of such society to write new business in this state shall be suspended or license refused until satisfactory evidence is furnished the insurance commissioner relating to the condition and affairs of the society, and during such suspension the society shall not write new business in this state.

Insurance commissioner not to publish statement pending investigation.

§ 27. Pending, during or after an examination or investigation of any such society, either domestic or foreign, the insurance commissioner shall make public no financial statement, report or finding, nor shall he permit to become public any financial statement, report or finding affecting the status, standing or rights of any such society, until a copy thereof shall have been served upon such society, at its home office, nor until such society shall have been afforded a reasonable opportunity to answer any such financial statement, report or finding and to make such showing in connection therewith as it may desire.

Revocation of license.

§ 28. When the insurance commissioner on investigation is satisfied that any foreign society transacting business under this act has exceeded its powers, or has failed to comply with any provisions of this act, or is conducting business fraudulently, or is not carrying out its contracts in good faith, he shall notify the society of his findings, and state in writing the grounds of his dissatisfaction, and after reasonable notice require said society, on a date named, to show cause why its license should not be revoked. If on the date named in said notice such objections have not been removed to the satisfaction of the said insurance commissioner, or the society does not present good and sufficient reasons why its authority to transact business in this state should not at that time be revoked, he may revoke the authority of the society to continue business in this state. All decisions and findings of the insurance commissioner made under the provisions of this section may be reviewed by proper proceedings in any court of competent jurisdiction, as provided in section 16 of this act.

Certain societies exempt.

§ 29. Nothing contained in this act shall be construed to affect or apply to grand or subordinate lodges of Masons, Odd Fellows or Knights of Pythias (exclusive of the insurance department of the supreme lodge Knights of Pythias), and the Junior Order of United American Mechanics (exclusive of the beneficiary degree or insurance branch of the national council Junior Order United American Mechanics) or societies which limit their membership to any one hazardous occupation, nor to similar societies which do not issue insurance certificates, nor to an association of local lodges of a society now doing business in this state which provides death benefits not exceeding three hundred dollars to any one person, or disability benefits not exceeding three hundred dollars in any one year to any one person, or both, nor to any contracts of reinsurance business on such plan in this state, nor to domestic societies which limit their membership to the employees of a particular city or town, designated firm, business house or corporation, nor to domestic lodges, orders or associations of a purely religious, charitable and benevolent description, which do not provide for a death benefit of more than one hundred dollars, or for disability benefits of more than one hundred and fifty dollars to any one person in any one year; provided, always, that any such domestic order or society which has more than five hundred members, and provides for death or disability benefits, and any such domestic lodge, order or society which issues to any person a certificate providing for the payment of benefits, shall not be exempt by the provisions of this section, but shall comply with all the requirements of this act. The insurance commissioner may require from any society such information as will enable him to determine whether such society is exempt from the provisions of this act. No society which is exempt by the provisions of this section from the requirement of this act shall give or allow, or promise to give or allow, to any person any compensation for procuring new members. Any fraternal benefit society, heretofore organized and incorporated and operating within the definition set forth in sections 1, 2 and 3 of this act, providing for benefits in case of death or disability resulting solely from accidents, but which does not obligate itself to pay death or sick benefits, may be licensed under the provisions of this act, and shall have all the privileges and shall be subject to all the provisions and regulations of this act, except that the provisions of this act requiring medical examination, valuations of benefit certificates, and that the certificate shall specify the amount of benefits, shall not apply to such society.

Taxation.

§ 30. Every fraternal benefit society organized or licensed under this act is hereby declared to be a charitable and benevolent institution, and all of its funds shall be exempt from all and every state, county, district, municipal and school tax, other than taxes on real estate and office equipment.

Penalties. Soliciting membership for societies not licensed.

§ 31. Any person, officer, member or examining physician of any society authorized to do business under this act who shall knowingly or willfully make any false or fraudulent statement or representation in or with reference to any application for membership, or for the purpose of obtaining money from or benefit in any society transacting business under this act, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof shall be punished by a fine of not less than one hundred dollars nor more than five hundred dollars, or imprisonment in the county jail for not less than thirty days nor more than one year, or both, in the discretion of the court; and any person who shall willfully make a false statement of any material fact or thing in a sworn statement as to the death or disability of a certificate holder in any such society for the purpose of procuring payment of a benefit named in the certificate of such holder, and any person who shall willfully make any false statement in any verified report or declaration under oath required or authorized by this act, shall be guilty of perjury, and shall be proceeded against and punished as provided by the statutes of this state in relation to the crime of perjury. Any person who shall solicit membership for, or in any manner assist in procuring membership in, any fraternal benefit society not licensed to do business in this state, or who shall solicit membership for, or in any manner assist in procuring membership in any such society not authorized as herein provided, to do business as herein defined in this state shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction thereof shall be punished by a fine of not less than fifty nor more than two hundred dollars. Any society, or any officer, agent or employee thereof neglecting or refusing to comply with or violating any of the provisions of this act, the penalty for which neglect, refusal or violation is not specified in this section, shall be fined not exceeding two hundred dollars upon conviction thereof.

Penalty for officer, etc., borrowing funds.

§ 31a. Any officer, director, agent or employee of any fraternal benefit society who shall directly or indirectly for himself or as partner or agent of others borrow any of the funds of such society or become endorser or surety for loans to others or in any manner be obligor for moneys borrowed or loaned by such society shall be guilty of a felony. [New section added June 1, 1917. In effect July 31, 1917. Stats. 1917, p. 1651.]

Penalty for officer, etc., receiving reward for aiding loan.

§ 31b. Any officer, trustee, agent or employee of a fraternal benefit society who asks or receives or consents or agrees to receive any commission, emolument, gratuity or reward or any money, property or thing of value for his own personal benefit, or of personal advantage, for procuring or endeavoring to procure for any person, firm or corporation any loans from the trust funds of, or funds belonging to, a fraternal benefit society shall be guilty of a felony. [New section added June 1, 1917. In effect July 31, 1917. Stats. 1917, p. 1651.]

§ 32. All acts and parts of acts inconsistent with this act are hereby repealed.

1. Constitutionality.—The act is not unconstitutional as in violation of the federal and state constitutions against impairment of the obligations of contracts.—Machado v. Ellison, 35 Cal. App. 337, 169 Pac. 917.

2. By-laws of fraternal insurance society must conform to the constitution and statutes of the state, and when the statute changes the by-laws must change with them.—Machado v. Ellison, 35 Cal. App. 337, 169 Pac. 917.

3. Contract of insurance.—A fraternal insurance contract is made up of the benefit certificate, the by-laws of the society, and the laws of the state, and a statute limiting the beneficiaries that may be named to a specified class binds the insured in a selection made after the statute became effective, although his contract of insurance was executed prior thereto.—Machado v. Ellison, 35 Cal. App. 337, 169 Pac. 917.

4. Cancellation of new certificate.—Mental incompetency of insured.—Where the evidence shows the insured to have been permanently insane at the time he delivered up a prior policy and obtained the issue of a new policy on behalf of a new beneficiary, such new policy was cancelled at the suit of the beneficiary of the old policy, and the latter reinstated.—Waters v. Conselho Supremo, etc., 38 Cal. App. 360, 176 Pac. 368.

Benevolent societies may hold real estate necessary for business.

§ 1. All unincorporated benevolent or fraternal societies or associations are and every lodge or branch of such society or association is hereby authorized and empowered, without incorporation, to purchase, receive, own, hold, mortgage, manage and sell all such real estate and other property as may be necessary for the business purposes and objects of the said society or association or lodge or branch, subject to the laws and regulations of said society or association or lodge or branch and of the grand lodge thereof; and also to take and receive by will or deed all property not so necessary, and to hold the same until disposed of within a period of ten years from the acquisition thereof; provided, that all conveyances transferring or in any manner affecting the title to real estate owned or held by said society or association shall be executed by its presiding officer and recording secretary under its seal after resolution duly adopted by said society or association authorizing such conveyance.

ACT 442—An act to regulate the organization of fraternal insurance associations.

History: Approved June 3, 1913. In effect August 10, 1913. Stats. 1913, p. 372.

Fraternal fire insurance associations.

§ 1. Secret, fraternal societies, having lodges, councils or granges in this state, and conducting their business and securing their membership on the lodge, council or grange system exclusively and having ritualistic work and ceremonies in their societies, lodges, councils or granges, may form an association of the members of their order or society, binding themselves to contribute to each other's loss by fire.

Formation.

§ 2. Such association shall be formed by filing a verified certificate in the office of the secretary of state and by filing a like certificate in the office of the clerk of each county in which a member has property insured in said association; such certificate shall state generally the objects of the association, and shall state its principal place of business, the names of its officers, who shall be members of said association having property insured therein; such certificates shall be signed by said officers and verified by at least three of them.

Limit on insurance. For members only. Seventy-five per cent cash value.

§ 3. An association formed as prescribed in sections one and two of this act may insure the property of its members against loss or damage by fire for an amount not exceeding forty-five hundred dollars on any one risk, and no risk of more than thirty-five hundred dollars shall be binding until risks to the amount of two hundred thousand dollars have been written and all premiums paid thereon, and no risk of more than fifteen hundred dollars shall be binding until risks to the amount of one hundred thousand dollars have been written and all premiums paid thereon, and no risk of any amount shall be binding until risks to the amount of seventy-five thousand dollars have been written and all premiums paid thereon. And no risk shall be written by such association except for members in good standing on the books of the order or society forming the association and a suspension or withdrawal from membership in such order or society will suspend the insurance risk until the member is restored to good standing in said order or society and in said association, provided, that a restoration to membership after suspension therefrom shall in no case be construed as extending the term of the risk. No risk written by such association shall be for an amount in excess of seventy-five per centum of the cash value of the property insured, and no concurrent or additional insurance shall be allowed.

Powers.

§ 4. Such association by and in its own name may sue and be sued, may loan such funds as it may have on hand in such manner as its articles of association and its by-laws have provided for; may own sufficient real estate for its business purposes, and such other real estate as may be necessary to purchase on foreclosure of its mortgages; provided, such real estate so obtained by foreclosure shall be sold and conveyed within five years from the time title vests in said association.

By-laws.

§ 5. Such association may make such by-laws, not inconsistent with the laws of this state, as may be necessary for its government and for the transaction of its business, and such association merely creating a mutual bond and agreement of its members to participate in each other's loss by fire does not come under the insurance laws of California. Outside of the requirements of this act, their own regulations and those of the order to which they belong are sufficient.

Obligation to pay pro rata.

§ 6. All persons insured shall give their obligation to the association, binding themselves, their heirs and assigns, to pay their pro rata share, proportioned to the amount of insurance in the association held by them, at the time of the loss to the association, of the necessary expenses and of loss by fire which may be sustained by any member thereof during the time for which their respective policies are written, and said policies may be cancelled by either party thereto, in which case settlement or adjustment shall be made in accordance with the terms of the by-laws of the association, and they shall also at the time of effecting the insurance pay such a percentage in cash, and such other charges, as may be required by the rules or by-laws of the association.

Classification of property. Not to insure property in cities.

§ 7. All such associations must classify the property insured therein at the time of issuing policies thereon under different rates, corresponding as nearly as may be to the greater or less risk from fire loss which may be attached to the several kinds of property insured. No such association shall issue policies of insurance on any property within the limits of cities of the first, first and a half, second, third, fourth, fifth and sixth classes; provided, that no dwelling shall be insured within the corporate limits of any city or town exposed by any other building within one hundred feet or by any risk other than a dwelling or private barn within two hundred feet of the risk assured.

Ascertainment of loss.

§ 8. Such association shall provide in its by-laws for the ascertainment of loss or damage by fire, and for the payment thereof.

Fire insurance.—The act deals with protection from fire, although the title does not so indicate.

FAMILY PROTECTION.

ACT 443—An act to provide whole family protection for members of fraternal benefit societies.

History: Approved April 20, 1917. In effect July 27, 1917. Stats. 1917, p. 144.

Fraternal benefit society may insure children. Total benefits payable.

§ 1. Any fraternal benefit society authorized to do business in this state and operating on the lodge plan, may provide in its constitution and by-laws, in addition to other benefits provided for therein, for the payment of death or annuity benefits upon the lives of children between the ages of two and eighteen years at next birthday, for whose support and maintenance a member of such society is responsible. Any such society may at its option, organize and operate branches for such children and membership in local lodges and initiation therein shall not be required of such children, nor shall they have any voice in the management of the society. The total benefits payable as above provided shall in no case exceed the following amounts at ages at next birthday at time of death, respectively, as follows: two, thirty-four dollars; three, forty dollars; four, forty-eight dollars; five, fifty-eight dollars; six, one hundred forty dollars; seven, one hundred sixty-eight dollars; eight, two hundred dollars; nine, two hundred forty dollars; ten, three hundred dollars; eleven, three hundred eighty dollars; twelve, four hundred sixty dollars; thirteen to fifteen, five hundred twenty dollars; and sixteen to eighteen years, where not otherwise authorized by law, six hundred dollars.

Conditions of benefit certificate.

§ 2. No benefit certificate as to any child shall take effect until after medical examination or inspection by a licensed medical practitioner, in accordance with the laws of the society, nor shall any such benefit certificate be issued unless the society shall simultaneously put in force at least five hundred such certificates, on each of which at least one assessment has been paid, nor where the number of lives represented by such certificate falls below five hundred. The death benefit contributions to be made upon such certificate shall be based upon the "standard industrial mortality table" or the "English life table number six" and a rate of interest not greater than four per cent per annum, or upon a higher standard; provided, that contributions may be waived or returns may be made from any surplus held in excess of reserve and other liabilities, as provided in the by-laws; and, provided further, that extra contributions shall be made if the reserves hereafter provided for become impaired.

Reserve required.

§ 3. Any society entering into such insurance agreements shall maintain on all such contracts the reserve required by the standard of mortality and interest adopted by the society for computing contributions as provided in section two, and the funds representing the benefit contributions and all accretions thereon shall be kept as separate and distinct funds, independent of the other funds of the society, and shall not be liable for nor used for the payment of the debts and obligations of the society other than the benefits herein authorized; provided, that a society may provide that when a child reaches the minimum age for initiation into membership in such society, any benefit certificate issued hereunder may be surrendered for cancellation and exchanged for any other form of certificate issued by the society, provided that such surrender will not reduce the number of lives insured in the branch below five hundred, and upon the issuance of such new certificate any reserve upon the original certificate herein provided for shall be transferred to the credit of the new certificate. Neither the person who originally made application for benefits on account of such child nor the beneficiary named in such original certificate, nor the person who paid the contributions, shall have any vested right in such new certificate, the free nomination of a beneficiary under the new certificate being left to the child so admitted to benefit membership.

Separate financial statement.

§ 4. An entirely separate financial statement of the business transactions and of assets and liabilities arising therefrom shall be made in its annual report to the insurance commissioner by any society availing itself of the provisions hereof. The separation of assets, funds and liabilities required hereby shall not be terminated, rescinded or modified, nor shall the funds be diverted for any use other than as specified in section three, as long as any certificates issued hereunder remain in force, and this requirement shall be recognized and enforced in any liquidation, reinsurance, merger or other change in the condition of the status of the society.

Specified payments.

§ 5. Any society shall have the right to provide in its laws and the certificate issued hereunder for specified payments on account of the expense or general fund, which payments shall or shall not be mingled with the general fund of the society as its constitution and by-laws may provide.

Continuation of certificate.

§ 6. In the event of the termination of membership in the society by the person responsible for the support of any child, on whose account a certificate may have been issued, as provided herein, the certificate may be continued for the benefit of the estate of the child, provided the contributions are continued, or for the benefit of any other person responsible for the support and maintenance of such child, who shall assume the payment of the required contributions.

CHANGE TO REGULAR LIFE PLAN.

ACT 444—An act providing that any domestic society, organization or company, providing life insurance for its members or their beneficiaries upon the assessment plan, including any domestic fraternal benefit society organized or operating under the act entitled "An act for the regulation and control of fraternal benefit societies," approved May 1, 1911, as amended, may change into a corporation to transact a life insurance business as a legal reserve or level premium company, not affecting existing suits, rights or contracts, for the protection of which business may be transacted of the kind transacted before reorganization, and for the protection of which a fund is to be created under conditions set forth herein.

History: Approved May 21, 1919. In effect July 22, 1919. Stats. 1919, p. 759.

Company transformed into legal reserve or level premium company.

§ 1. Any domestic society, organization or company providing life insurance for its members or their beneficiaries upon the assessment plan, including any domestic fraternal benefit society organized or operating under that certain statute entitled "An act for the regulation and control of fraternal benefit societies," approved May 1, 1911, as amended, may upon a majority vote of its trustees or directors, or in any lawful manner, amend its articles of incorporation and by-laws, if already incorporated, or if not incorporated, may incorporate, in such manner as to transform itself into a legal reserve or legal premium company, with the name by which it is already known or another name as its directors or trustees shall determine; and upon so doing and upon procuring from the commissioner of insurance a certificate of authority as prescribed by law to transact business in this state as a legal reserve or level premium life insurance company it shall incur the obligation and enjoy the benefits thereof the same as though originally thus incorporated; and such corporation under its articles and by-laws as so framed or amended shall be a continuation of the original organization, society or corporation and the officers thereof shall serve through their respective terms as provided in the original articles and by-laws, but their successors shall be elected and serve as the law and its articles and by-laws provide; but such incorporation, amendment or reincorporation shall not affect existing suits, rights or contracts.

The said society, organization or company so organized shall have the power after reorganization to transact business of the same nature transacted by it before reorganization, as well as the powers conferred hereby and contemplated by its articles of incorporation, in order to protect and perform rights and contracts existing before reorganization.

Capital stock of reorganized company. Fund when contributions not equal to benefits.

§ 2. Any society, organization or company so reorganized shall have a capital stock of which at least two hundred thousand dollars must be paid up previous to the issuance of any policies by it as a legal reserve or level premium company. All assets belong to any such society, organization or company so reorganized, prior to reorganization, or arising or accruing from policies, certificates or benefit certificates issued upon the assessment plan, shall be used only for the benefit of the holders of such policies, certificates or benefit certificates and no portion thereof shall be used or considered as any part of the capital stock provided for by this act. If at the time or reorganization, or at any time thereafter, it shall appear from the last preceding annual report of any such society, organization or company filed with the commissioner of insurance, or as the result of any investigation made by said commissioner, that the present value of the contributions to be received from the holders of policies or benefit certificates on the assessment plan, together with all assets owned by the company that have been accumulated from assessments paid by members on that plan, are not equal to the present value of the benefits to be derived by members under the assessment plan, including all matured liabilities; then the society, organization or company so reorganized shall set aside and maintain a fund which with said present value of contributions and assets will equal the present value of said benefits together with all matured liabilities. Said fund shall be used for the payment of matured liabilities arising under the assessment plan when other assets applicable thereto are exhausted. Said fund may be derived from the capital stock of said reorganized company; provided, however, that the paid-up capital stock other than said fund shall not be less than two hundred thousand dollars. Said fund need not be maintained when the same is not required by conditions as herein expressed. Members in good standing of any such company prior to reorganization shall have the right after reorganization to transfer their insurance in said company to the legal reserve or level premium plan for the same amount without further medical examination, and at the legal reserve or level premium rates. The interest and the assets of the company of any person so transferring shall be transferred to and be a part of the assets of such company on the legal reserve or level premium plan.

Powers of reorganized company.

§ 3. The society, organization or company so reorganized and its officials shall exercise all the rights and powers and perform all the duties conferred or imposed by law upon organizations writing the kinds of insurance written by said society, organization or company so reorganized. Such organization and its officials shall exercise all the rights and powers and perform all the duties necessary to protect rights and contracts existing prior to reorganization. The commissioner of insurance shall exercise the powers and discharge the duties concerning any such society, organization or company so reorganized that are applicable to companies writing insurance or issuing policies of the same class organized or operating in the state of California. The commissioner of insurance must issue a certificate of authority to any such society, organization or company so reorganized which is in a solvent condition and has fully complied with the laws of this state to transact insurance business in this state.

Valuation of policies.

§ 4. Any assessment company or fraternal benefit society incorporated or reincorporated to transact a life insurance business as above provided shall value its assessment policies or certificates or benefit certificates according to the standard of valuation of assessment insurance used in this state, and its legal reserve or level premium policies according to the standard of valuation thereof in this state. The various kinds of insurance written shall be governed by the law applicable thereto.

ACT 445—An act to provide how fraternal benefit societies organized under the laws of this state may consolidate, merge or reinsure to their insurance risks, with any other fraternal benefit society, or assume or reinsure the risks of any other fraternal benefit society, and to provide penalties for the violation of the provisions hereof.

History: Approved May 27, 1919. In effect July 27, 1919. Stats. 1919, p. 1199.

Merging, etc., of fraternal benefit societies.

§ 1. No fraternal benefit society organized under the laws of this state to do the business of life, accident or health insurance, shall consolidate or merge with any other fraternal benefit society, or reinsure its insurance risks, or any part thereof, with any other fraternal benefit society, or assume or reinsure the whole or any portion of the risks of any other fraternal benefit society, except as herein provided. No fraternal benefit society or subordinate body thereof shall merge, consolidate with or be reinsured by any company or association not licensed to transact business as a fraternal beneficiary society.

Approval of contract by insurance commissioner.

§ 2. When any such fraternal benefit society shall propose to consolidate or merge its business or to enter into any contract of reinsurance, or to assume or reinsure the whole or any portion of the risks of any other fraternal benefit society the proposed contract in writing setting forth the terms and conditions of such proposed consolidation, merger or reinsurance shall be submitted to the legislative or governing bodies of each of said parties to said contract after due notice, and if approved, such contract as so approved, shall be submitted to the commissioner of insurance of this state for his approval and the parties to said contract shall at the same time submit a sworn statement showing the financial condition of each of such fraternal benefit societies as of the thirty-first day of December preceding the date of such contract; provided, that such insurance commissioner may, within his discretion, require such financial statement to be submitted as of the last day of the month preceding the date of such contract. The commissioner of insurance shall thereupon consider such contract of consolidation, merger or reinsurance, and if satisfied that the interests of the certificate holders of such fraternal benefit societies, are properly protected, and that such contract is just and equitable to the members of each of such societies, and that no reasonable objection exists thereto, shall approve said contract as submitted. In case the parties corporate to such contract shall have been incorporated in separate states, or territories, such contract shall be submitted as herein provided to the commissioner of insurance of each of such incorporating states, or territories, to be considered and approved separately by each of such commissioners of insurance. When said contract of consolidation, merger or reinsurance shall have been approved as hereinabove provided, such commissioner or commissioners of insurance shall issue a certificate to that effect, and thereupon the said contract of consolidation, merger or reinsurance shall be in full force and effect. In case such contract is not approved the fact of its submission and its contents shall not be disclosed by the commissioner of insurance.

Expenses of proceedings.

§ 3. All necessary and actual expenses and compensation incident to the proceedings provided hereby shall be paid as provided by such contract of consolidation, merger or reinsurance; provided, however, that no brokerage or commission shall be included in such expenses and compensation or shall be paid to any person by either of the parties to any such contract in connection with the negotiation therefor or execution thereof, nor shall any compensation be paid to any officer or employee of either of the parties to such contract for directly or indirectly aiding in effecting such contract of consolidation, merger or reinsurance. An itemized statement of all such expenses shall be filed with the insurance commissioner, or commissioners, as the case may be, subject to approval, and when approved the same shall be binding on the parties thereto. Except as fully expressed in the contract of consolidation, merger or reinsurance, or itemized statement of expenses, as approved by the commissioner, or commissioners of insurance, as the case may be, no compensation shall be paid to any person or persons, and no officer or employee of the state shall receive any compensation, directly or indirectly, for in any manner aiding, promoting or assisting any such consolidation, merger or reinsurance.

Penalty.

§ 4. Any person violating the provisions of this act shall be guilty of a felony, and upon conviction shall be liable to a fine of not more than five thousand dollars, or to imprisonment for not more than five years, or to both fine and imprisonment.

BERKELEY.

CONTENTS OF CHAPTER.

ACT 456. FREEHOLDERS' CHARTER.

457. CREATING JUSTICE COURT.

458. GRANTING SALT MARSH AND TIDE LANDS.

FREEHOLDERS' CHARTER.

ACT 456—Freeholders' Charter of the city of Berkeley.

History: Adopted March 4, 1909, Stats. 1909, p. 1208. Amended January 29, 1913, Stats. 1913, p. 1502; January 27, 1917, Stats. 1917, p. 1814. Superseded the charter approved at the election of February 26, 1895. Adopted March 5, 1895, Stats. 1895, p. 406. Amended January 25, 1905, Stats. 1905, p. 829; which, in turn, superseded the act of incorporation of April 1, 1878, Stats. 1877-78, p. 888.

1. Conflict with general law.—The charter of 1895, having been adopted prior to the amendment of 1896 relieving provisions of freeholder charters in "municipal affairs" from the control of general laws, was subject to general laws, and a provision in that charter empowering the trustees to pass an ordinance fixing a penalty for the sale of liquor without a license, in conflict with the Penal Code, was ineffective and invalid, and its invalidity was not cured by the amendment.—Ex parte Sweetman, 5 Cal. App. 577, 90 Pac. 1069.

1a. Constitutionality — Special law.—Section 19, article V, of the Berkeley charter, is not a special law within the meaning of subdivision 28, section 25, article IV of the constitution.—Stern v. City Council of Berkeley, 25 Cal. App. 685, 145 Pac. 167.

2. Inferior courts.—In view of sections 1 and 13, article VI, and sections 15 and 16, article IV, of the constitution, inferior courts can not be established by a freeholders charter, approved by mere resolution, but requires an act of legislation, and an attempt to establish such courts and fix their jurisdiction without such formal act of legislation is unconstitutional.—People v. Toal, 85 Cal. 333, 24 Pac. 603, followed in Miner v. Justice's Court of Berkeley, 121 Cal. 264, 53 Pac. 795.

See, also, Ex parte Fedderurtz, 6 Cal. Unrep. 562, 62 Pac. 935.

3. Justices of the peace.—Provisions as to justices of the peace in cities of less than 10,000 inhabitants, in special charters granted prior to the adoption of the present constitution were not repealed by that instrument, nor by subsequent general legislation after its adoption.—Ex parte Armstrong, 84 Cal. 655, 24 Pac. 598.

4. Reorganization.—An attempt was made to reorganize under the general law of 1883, but the attempt failed, although the city exercised the franchise of a city of the fifth class under the abortive reorganization for some months.—See People v. Berkeley, 102 Cal. 298, 23 L. R. A. 838, 36 Pac. 591.

5. School director of the city of Berkeley is a municipal officer, whether the duties of his office are prescribed by the charter of general law, and the payment of his compensation is a "municipal affair."—Stern v. City Council of Berkeley, 25 Cal. App. 685, 145 Pac. 167.

6. Same — Compensation — Conflict with general law.—There is no general law with respect to compensating school directors, and no general law, limiting or restricting the right of a freeholder charter city to make provision for such compensation, and section 19, article V of the Berkeley charter, is valid, as in furtherance of the school system.—Stern v. City Council of Berkeley, 25 Cal. App. 685, 145 Pac. 167.

7. Same — Compensation.—Section 19, article V, of the Berkeley charter, providing for compensation of school directors, is not invalid under subdivision 2, section 8½, article XI, of the constitution, as it existed prior to the 1911 amendment, although that section of the constitution prior to such amendment contained no express provision for such compensation.—Stern v. City Council of Berkeley, 25 Cal. App. 685, 145 Pac. 167.

CREATING JUSTICE COURT.

ACT 457—An act to create a court in and for the town of Berkeley, state of California. (Approved March 27, 1895. Stats. 1895, p. 204.)

History: Approved March 27, 1895, Stats. 1895, p. 204.

Justice court in Berkeley—Unconstitutional.—This act created a justice court in Berkeley. It was declared unconstitutional in Miner v. Justice's Court, 121 Cal. 264, 53 Pac. 795.

GRANT OF SALT MARSH AND TIDE LANDS.

ACT 458—An act granting to the city of Berkeley the salt marsh, tide and submerged lands of the state of California, including the right to wharf out therefrom to the city of Berkeley, and regulating the management, use and control thereof.

History: Approved June 11, 1913. In effect August 10, 1913. Stats. 1913, p. 705. Amended May 27, 1915. In effect August 8, 1915, Stats. 1915, p. 901; May 24, 1917. In effect July 27, 1917. Stats. 1917, p. 915; May 25, 1919. In effect July 25, 1919. Stats. 1919, p. 1089.

Rates, tolls, etc.

(c) That in the management, conduct or operation of said harbor, or any of the utilities, structures or appliances mentioned in paragraph (a), no discrimination in rates, tolls, or charges or in facilities for any use or service in connection therewith shall ever be made, authorized or permitted by said city or its successors.

COST OF OFFICIAL BONDS.

ACT 487—An act to provide for the payment by the state, or counties, or cities, or cities and counties, of the premium or charge on official bonds when given by surety companies.

History: Approved March 20, 1903, Stats. 1903, p. 476.

Premium on official bonds a public charge.

§ 1. The premium or charge for bonds given by surety companies for state officials, county officials, city officials, or city and county officials, shall be paid by the state, county, city, or city and county respectively; provided, however, that no premium or charge shall exceed one-half of one per centum per annum on the amount of such bond; and provided, further, that this act shall not apply to notaries public.

§ 2. This act shall take effect from and after its passage.

1. Scope of act—"Surety companies."—The phrase "surety companies" as used in the act was intended to include any corporation organized for the purpose of carrying on the business of becoming surety on bonds and undertakings, which is authorized by sections 1056 and 1057, Code of Civil Procedure, and subdivision 4 of section 955, Political Code, to become surety on bonds and undertakings required by law.—County of San Luis Obispo v. Murphy, 162 Cal. 588, 590, Ann. Cas. 1913D, 712, 123 Pac. 808.

2. Constitutionality — Corporations as sureties on bonds.—Act authorizing held constitutional.—Cramer v. Tittle, 72 Cal. 12, 12 Pac. 869.

3. Same.—Presumption in support of constitutionality.—It will not be assumed for the purpose of nullifying the act that it was intended to discriminate against personal sureties or in favor of certain officers; and if a reasonable ground can be conceived for confining the operation of the act to bonds given by surety companies, the courts must assume in support of the constitutionality of the act, that the classification was made on that ground.—County of San Luis Obispo v. Murphy, 162 Cal. 588, 591, Ann. Cas. 1913D, 712, 123 Pac. 808.

4. Same.—The act is not violative of section 11, article I, or of section 21, article II, or subdivision 9, section 25 of article IV, of the constitution.—County of San Luis Obispo v. Murphy, 162 Cal. 588, 590, Ann. Cas. 1913D, 712, 123 Pac. 808.

ACT 493—An act to provide for the payment of interest on the outstanding bonds of the state held in trust for the university fund and the state school fund.

History: Approved March 3, 1893, Stats. 1893, p. 75. Amended March 11, 1899, Stats. 1899, p. 93. The amending act also amended the title.

The public debt.—Acts relating to the public debt, the issue of bonds to liquidate the same, and the issue of refunding bonds, when required or appropriate, are for the most part obsolete, having accomplished their purposes, and the debts and bonds having for the most part, or entirely, paid or taken up by the state for university or school endowment purposes. The first act was passed January 5, 1850, and was followed by two more acts by the legislature of that year. Practically every legislature from the first to the eighteenth session passed one or more acts bearing upon the subject. The legislature of 1871-72, which adopted the codes expressly continued all these acts in force. They dealt with many expenditures, expenses of the state government, civil war loan bonds, Indian war loan bonds, state capitol bonds, university construction bonds, railroad aid bonds, etc.

The most important of these acts were the refunding acts of April 28, 1857 (Stats. 1857, p. 300), April 30, 1860 (Stats. 1860, p. 352), and April 2, 1870 (Stats. 1869-70). The first authorized an issue of $3,900,000, seven per cent, twenty-year bonds, for the purpose of liquidating, funding and paying outstanding claims against the state. The second authorized the issue of $200,000, seven per cent, twenty-year bonds to take up outstanding bonds of the issues of 1852, 1853, 1855 and 1856, and certain outstanding warrants and unpaid claims. The third authorized the issuance of twenty-year bonds, not exceeding three million and seven hundred thousand dollars. The proceeds from this bond issue were used for paying the prior outstanding bonds issued under acts of 1857 and 1860 respectively, and also outstanding soldiers' relief and soldiers' bounty bonds.—See Bickerdike v. State, 144 Cal. 681, 695, 78 Pac. 270.

Same—By the act of December 22, 1873, Stats. 1873-4, 6, ch. IX, the state treasurer and governor were authorized to dispose of sixty-five thousand dollars of United States five-twenty bonds then being held for the benefit of the University of California, and to purchase therewith state-funded-debt bonds; and by Stats. 1873-4, 235, ch. CLXXI, the loan commissioners created by the before-mentioned act of 1869-70, were empowered to dispose of such bonds as were authorized to be issued under that act, and not exchanged for other bonds, or purchased for the university and school funds, in any manner they might deem best. It is understood that these are the bonds authorized to be purchased (and that they were purchased) under the above cited act of 1873-4, 6, with funds arising from the sale of United States five-twenty bonds. These are the bonds referred to in the act which precedes this note.

The other outstanding bonds of the state of the issue of 1873-4, specifically referred to by number, were taken up under the act of 1893. See, post, Act 497.

As to state capitol bonds, see, post, Act 712.

History: Approved March 31, 1891, Stats. 1891, p. 210.

Loan commissioners.—This act created a board of commissioners for the purpose indicated, and provided for the sale and redemption of the bonds.

Public debt.—See note to ante, Act 493.

COUNTY BONDS.

ACT 501—An act to authorize the several counties of this state to create a bonded indebtedness for certain purposes.

History: Approved March 19, 1889, Stats. 1889, p. 348.

Issuance of bonds to pay county indebtedness, not created by law, to be submitted to a vote.

§ 1. Whenever it shall appear to the satisfaction of the board of supervisors of any county of this state that said county is justly indebted to any person or persons for money received into the treasury of said county, and used by said county, and which said indebtedness at the time of its creation was not authorized by law, they shall, by ordinance, declare that said county is justly indebted to the person or persons named in said ordinance, in a sum named therein, and that the question of issuing bonds in the sum therein named, for the purpose of paying said debt, shall be submitted to a vote of the legal voters of said county.

Notice of election.

§ 2. The supervisors of said county shall thereupon publish a notice calling an election to be held in said county, submitting to the voters of said county the question whether said bonds shall be issued or not. The notice shall state the amount of bonds to be issued, the purpose for which they are issued; said notice shall be published, and the election held as provided by section thirty-seven of an act of the legislature of the state of California, entitled "an act to establish a uniform system of county and township governments," approved March fourteen, eighteen hundred and eighty-three.

Return.

§ 3. If upon return of the election it shall appear that two-thirds of all the voters voting at such election have voted in favor of issuing said bonds, the supervisors are required to issue bonds in the sum named in the notice of election, payable to the creditors named in said ordinance; said bonds shall bear interest at the rate of five per cent per annum, and shall be payable at such time as the board of supervisors shall order, not exceeding twenty years from date. They shall be signed by the chairman of the board of supervisors and county clerk.

Tax levy to pay interest.

§ 4. It shall be the duty of the board of supervisors each year to levy a tax sufficient to pay the annual interest on said bonds, and to pay the principal as the same shall become due.

This act is to take effect from and after its passage.

County government act of 1897.—Compare this act with subdivision 13, § 25, county government act of 1897, and the superseding provision in the code, Kerr's Cyc. Political Code, §§ 4088, 4088a.

Title of act.

§ 20. This act shall be known as the building and loan commission act.

§ 21. This act shall take effect immediately.

1. Compensation of custodian.—Under section 9 of the building and loan commission act the custodian appointed by the commissioner has no right of action to recover his compensation so long as an appeal is pending to test the propriety of the order under which he is acting.—Brandon v. Anglo-California Trust Co., 177 Cal. 699, 701, 171 Pac. 956.

2. Constitutionality.—Section 19 of the building and loan commission act held unconstitutional on the ground that its provisions are not embraced in the title.—Provident, etc., Ass'n v. Davis, 143 Cal. 253, 76 Pac. 1034.

3. Attachment.—The property of a building and loan association remains subject to attachment or execution until the commencement of the action by the attorney general, without regard to the date of the report to the attorney general by the commissioners as to the unsafe conditions covered by the act.—Bories v. Union B. & L. Association, 141 Cal. 74, 74 Pac. 552.

4. Attachment, lien of.—The lien of an attachment attaching prior to the bringing of the suit by the attorney general against the association under the act is not affected by possession of the receiver appointed in such suit.—Bories v. Union B. & L. Ass'n, 141 Cal. 74, 74 Pac. 552.

5. Bankruptcy under federal act.—A state building and loan association, not claiming to be either bankrupt or insolvent, can not have a writ of prohibition to restrain proceedings against it under the building and loan commission act on the ground of the exclusive jurisdiction of the federal courts under the federal act.—Continental, etc., Association v. Superior Court, 163 Cal. 579, 586, 126 Pac. 476.

6. Bankruptcy—Jurisdiction of federal court.—Under section 9, if investigation of the affairs of a building and loan association discloses the fact that the corporation is bankrupt or insolvent the proceedings are suspended by force of the federal act, and under subdivision 4, section 3, further proceedings are taken under the latter act.—Continental, etc., Association v. Superior Court, 163 Cal. 579, 584, 126 Pac. 476.

7. Jurisdiction of state court.—The act known as "the building and loan commission act," while in certain features a bankruptcy act, contains provisions entirely foreign to the national bankruptcy act or to the legal concept of bankruptcy, and the power of the state court to proceed in conformity with the state law, where the corporation is neither bankrupt nor insolvent under the federal act, is not to be questioned.—Continental, etc., Association v. Superior Court, 163 Cal. 579, 586, 126 Pac. 476.

8. Same—Similarity to proceedings in bankruptcy.—If a state takes charge of the affairs of a corporation, for good reasons of its own, for acts, not within the contemplation of the bankruptcy law, it is futile to argue that because the procedure it adopts for the payment of creditors is similar to or identical with the procedure adopted in case of bankruptcy, therefore the proceedings are in bankruptcy.—Continental, etc., Association v. Superior Court, 163 Cal. 579, 583, 126 Pac. 476.

9. Power of state.—The state may prevent a person or corporation from conducting business, and in so preventing it take control of its affairs, terminate its business and pay its creditors for acts entirely foreign to and absolutely without the contemplation of bankruptcy.—Continental, etc., Association v. Superior Court, 163 Cal. 579, 583, 126 Pac. 476.

10. Receiver.—The act does not imperatively require the appointment of a receiver, regardless of the general principles of equity, but only permits it, in the discretion of the court.—People v. Union B. & L. Ass'n, 127 Cal. 400, 58 Pac. 822, 59 Pac. 692.

ACT 570. BUILDING ZONE ACT.

571. BUILDING LINE ACT.

BUILDING ZONE ACT.

ACT 570—An act to provide for the establishment within municipalities of districts or zones within which the use of property, height of improvements and required open spaces for light and ventilation of such buildings, may be regulated by ordinance.

History: Approved May 31, 1917. In effect July 30, 1917. Stats. 1917, p. 1419.

Cities may create districts within which buildings and trades regulated.

§ 1. For the public interest, health, comfort, convenience, preservation of the public peace, safety, morals, order and the public welfare, the city council, board of trustees or other legislative body of any incorporated city and town of California, hereinafter referred to as the council, may by ordinance create or divide the city into districts within some of which it shall be lawful and within others of which it shall be unlawful to erect, construct, alter or maintain certain buildings, or to carry on certain trades or callings or within which the height and bulk of future buildings shall be limited.

Restriction on location of industries, etc.

§ 2. The council may by ordinance regulate, restrict and segregate the location of industries, the several classes of business, trades or callings, the location of apartment or tenement houses, club houses, group residences, two-family dwellings, single family dwellings and the several classes of public and semipublic buildings, and the location of buildings or property designed for specified uses, and may divide the city into districts of such number, shape and area as the council may deem best suited to carry out the purposes of this act, subject to the provisions of section four hereof. For each such district regulations may be imposed designating the class of use that shall be excluded or subjected to special regulations and designating the uses for which buildings may not be erected or altered, or designating the class of use which only shall be permitted. Such regulations shall be designed to promote the public health, safety and general welfare. The council shall give reasonable consideration, among other things, to the character of the district, its peculiar suitability for particular uses, the conservation of property values and the direction of building development in accord with a well considered plan.

Regulations of height of buildings. Area of courts, etc. Uniform throughout district.

§ 3. The council may place reasonable regulations and limitations upon the height and bulk of buildings hereafter erected and regulate and determine the area of yards, courts and other open spaces, having due regard to the nature of the use and occupancy in such case. The council may divide the city into districts of such number, shape and area as the council may deem best suited to carry out the purpose of this act, subject to the provisions of section four hereof. The regulations as to the height and bulk of buildings and the area of yards, courts and other open spaces shall be uniform for each class of building throughout each district. The regulations in one or more districts may differ from those in other districts. Such regulations shall be designed to secure safety from fire and other dangers and to promote the public health and welfare, and to secure provision for adequate light, air and reasonable access. The council shall pay reasonable regard to the character of buildings now erected in each district, the value of the land, and the use to which it may be put to the end that such regulations may promote public health, safety and welfare.

Cities with planning commission. Hearing.

§ 4. In municipalities having a city planning commission the council shall require such commission to recommend the boundaries of such districts and appropriate regulations and restrictions to be enforced therein. Such commission shall make a tentative report and hold public hearings thereon at such times and places as said council shall require before submitting its final report. Said council shall not hereafter determine the boundaries of any district or impose any regulations until after the final report of the city planning commission is filed with the city clerk. Upon receiving such final report said council shall afford persons particularly interested, and the general public, an opportunity to be heard, at a time and place to be specified in a notice of hearing to be published in a newspaper to be designated for that purpose. Said newspaper to be a local newspaper, if there be one, otherwise a newspaper of general circulation within the municipality, and to be published not less than three times in any daily, or not less than once in any other newspaper of general circulation within the municipality, and within the week within which said meeting is to be held.

Cities without planning commission.

§ 5. In municipalities where there is no city planning commission the council may proceed in the manner prescribed in section four hereof and shall make the tentative report, arrange for and hold such public hearings, make such final report and afford all persons particularly interested and the general public, and opportunity to be heard at the time and place and in the manner prescribed in section four hereof.

Penalties.

§ 6. The council may establish penalties for violations of such an ordinance once established and in effect.

BUILDING LINES.

ACT 571—An act authorizing and empowering municipalities to provide a procedure for the fixing and establishing of setback lines on private property bordering on the whole or part of any street, avenue or highway, to prohibit the erection of buildings, fences or other structures between such setback lines and the lines of any such street, avenue or highway, and to condemn any and all property necessary or convenient for that purpose.

History: Approved May 31, 1917. In effect July 30, 1917. Stats. 1917, p. 1421.

City council may establish setback lines.

§ 1. Whenever public interest or convenience may require, the city council of any municipality shall have full power and authority to provide a procedure for the fixing and establishing of setback lines on private property bordering on the whole or part of any street, avenue or other highway, to prohibit the erection of buildings, fences or other structures between such setback lines and the lines of any such street, avenue or other highway, and to condemn any and all property necessary or convenient for that purpose.

Procedure.

§ 2. The ordinance prescribing such procedure shall provide, among other things, for the passage of a resolution of intention describing the land deemed necessary to be taken or damaged therefor, also the exterior boundaries of the district of lands to be benefited by said work or improvement and to be assessed to pay the damages, costs and expenses thereof, and shall require that a written protest signed by the owners of a majority of the frontage upon the streets and parts of streets within the district to be assessed, and filed with such city council, shall be a bar to such proceeding for a period of six months from the date of the filing of such protest. The procedure shall provide for due notice and hearing to property owners liable to be assessed, also a method for the assessment and collection of benefits and the payment of damages, together with such other matters as may be necessary or convenient to promote the objects hereof.

Tide lands granted to Burlingame. Conditions of grant. Franchises for wharves, etc. Persons in possession to have first right.

§ 1. There is hereby granted to the city of Burlingame, a municipal corporation of the state of California, and to its successors, all the right, title and interest of the state of California, held by said state by virtue of its sovereignty, in and to all the salt marsh, tide and submerged lands, whether filled or unfilled, within the present boundaries of said city, and situated below the line of mean high tide of the Pacific ocean, or of any harbor, estuary, bay or inlet within said boundaries, to be forever held by said city, and by its successors, in trust for the uses and purposes, and upon the express conditions following, to wit: That said lands shall be used by said city and its successors, solely for the establishment, improvement and conduct of a harbor, and for the construction, maintenance and operation thereon of wharves, docks, piers, slips, quays, and other utilities, structures and appliances necessary or convenient for the promotion and accommodation of commerce and navigation, and said city, or its successors, shall not, at any time, grant, convey, give or alien said lands, or any part thereof, to any individual, firm or corporation for any purpose whatever; provided, that said city, or its successors, may grant franchises thereon, for limited periods, for wharves and other public uses and purposes, and may lease said lands, or any part thereof, for limited periods, for purposes consistent with the trusts upon which said lands are held by the state of California and with the requirements of commerce or navigation at said harbor, for a term not exceeding twenty-five years, and on such other terms and conditions as said city may determine, including a right to renew such lease or leases for a further term not exceeding twenty-five years or to terminate the same on such terms, reservations and conditions as may be stipulated in such lease or leases, and said lease or leases may be for any and all purposes which shall not interfere with navigation or commerce, with reversion to the said city on the termination of such lease or leases of any and all improvements thereon, and on such other terms and conditions as the said city may determine, but for no purpose which will interfere with navigation or commerce; subject also to a reservation in all such leases or such wharfing out privileges of a street, or of such other reservation as the said city may determine for sewer outlets, and for gas and oil mains, and for hydrants, and for electric cables and wires, and for such other conduits for municipal purposes, and for such public and municipal purposes and uses as may be deemed necessary by the said city; provided, however, that each person, firm or corporation or their heirs, successors or assigns now in possession of land or lands abutting on said lands, within the boundaries of the city of Burlingame, shall have a right to obtain a lease for a term of twenty-five years from said city of said land and wharfing out privileges therefrom with a right of renewal for a further term of twenty-five years pursuant to the provisions of this act and on such terms and conditions as said city may determine and specify, subject to the right of said city to terminate said lease at the end of the first twenty-five years or refuse to renew the same, or to terminate the lease so renewed during the term of such renewed lease on such just and reasonable terms for compensation for improvements at the then value of said improvements as said city may determine and specify. Upon obtaining such lease and wharfing out privileges such person, firm or corporation, their heirs or assigns, shall quitclaim to said city any right they or any of them may claim or have to the said lands hereby granted. "BURNT RECORD ACT."

ACT 580—An act relating to the restoration of court records which have been lost, injured or destroyed by conflagration or other public calamity.

History: Approved June 16, 1906, Stats. 1906 (ex. sess.), p. 73.

Court records, restoration of those lost or destroyed by conflagration.

§ 1. Whenever in any action or special proceedings, civil or criminal, in any court of this state, any judgment, decree, order, document, record, paper, process, or file, or any part thereof, shall have been or shall hereafter be lost, injured or destroyed by reason of conflagration or other public calamity, any party or person interested therein may, on application by a duly verified petition in writing to such court, and on showing to the satisfaction of such court that the same has been lost, injured or destroyed by conflagration or other public calamity, without fault or négllect of the party or person making such application, obtain an order from such court upon notice given as provided in section ten hundred and ten to ten hundred and seventeen inclusive of the Code of Civil Procedure, authorizing such defect to be supplied by a duly certified copy of such original, where the same can be obtained, which certified copy shall thereafter have the same effect in all respects as such original would have had.

Same.

§ 2. Whenever in any action or special proceeding, civil or criminal, in any court of this state any judgment, decree, order, document, record, paper, process or file, or any part thereof, shall have been or shall hereafter be lost, injured or destroyed by reason of conflagration or other public calamity, and such defect can not be supplied as provided in the last section, any party or person interested therein may make written application to the court in which the same belongs, verified by affidavit or affidavits, showing such loss, injury or destruction, and that certified copies thereof can not be obtained by the party or persons making such application, and that such loss, injury or destruction occurred by conflagration, or other calamity, without the fault or neglect of the party making such application, and that such loss, injury or destruction, unless supplied or remedied will or may result in damage to the party or person making such application, and thereupon such court shall cause notice of such application to be given, as provided in section ten hundred and ten to ten hundred and seventeen inclusive of the Code of Civil Procedure. If, upon such hearing the court shall be satisfied that the statements contained in such written application are true, the court shall make an order reciting what was the substance and effect of such lost, injured or destroyed judgment, decree, order, document, record, paper, process or file, which order shall have the same effect that such original would have had if the same had not been lost, injured or destroyed, so far as concerns the party or persons making such application, and the persons who shall have been notified, as provided for in this section. The judgment, decree, order, document, record, paper, process, or file in all cases where the proceeding is in rem, including probate, guardianship and insolvency proceedings, may be supplied in like manner upon like notice to all persons who have appeared therein, and notice by publication or postings to all persons who have not appeared for not less than ten days, as the court may order, and the same when restored shall have the same effect upon all persons who have been personally served with notice of such application as the original, and as to all other persons the same shall be prima facie evidence of the contents of such original.

Appeal.

§ 3. If an appeal shall have been taken in any action or special proceeding in any superior court in which the record shall have been subsequently lost or destroyed by conflagration or other public calamity, to a district court of appeal or to the supreme court, and a transcript of such record has been filed in such district court of appeal or in the supreme court, any party or person interested in the action or special proceeding may obtain a certified copy of such transcript, or of any portion thereof, from the clerk of the district court of appeal, attested by the presiding judge thereof, or from the clerk of the supreme court, attested by the chief justice, and may file such certified and attested copy of such transcript or of any part or portion thereof in the office of the clerk of the superior court from which such appeal was taken. Thereupon such certified and attested copy of such transcript or of any part or portion thereof may be made the basis of any further proceedings or processes in such superior court in such action or special proceeding to all intents and purposes as if the original record so copied, certified and attested, or the part or portion thereof so copied, certified and attested, were on file.

§ 4. This act shall take effect immediately.

1. Constitutionality.—"Burnt record act" not special legislation.—People v. Fallon, 154 Cal. 743, 99 Pac. 202.

2. Deficiency judgment—Restoration of judgment roll unnecessary.—In an action on a deficiency judgment, where the judgment roll in the foreclosure suit was destroyed in the conflagration of 1906, and the jurisdiction of the court in that suit is admitted, it is unnecessary to restore the entire judgment roll, but it is sufficient to prove the contents of the judgment of foreclosure and of the deficiency judgment.—Hibernia, etc., Soc. v. Boyd, 155 Cal. 193, 100 Pac. 239.

3. Dismissal of action—Discretion of court.—The trial court has jurisdiction to dismiss an action the records in which have been burnt or destroyed, and it is not an abuse of discretion so to do, where there has been a delay of two years in having such records restored.—Bell v. Solomons, 162 Cal. 105, 121 Pac. 377.

4. Dismissal of action for unreasonable delay in restoring records.—Discretion of court.—Held that there was no abuse of discretion in dismissing the action for the unreasonable delay shown under the circumstances of the present case.—Gray v. Times-Mirror, 11 Cal. App. 155, 104 Pac. 481.

5. Dismissal of appeal.—Inexcusable delay in restoring record.—An appeal will be dismissed where appellant's attorneys were guilty of inexcusable lack of diligence in initiating and prosecuting proceedings to restore records, resulting upwards of two years delay in filing transcript.—Estate of Heywood, 154 Cal. 312, 97 Pac. 825.

6. Duty of restoration.—It was the duty of appellant to initiate proceedings under the restoration act to restore the record of the orders appealed from, and not the respondent.—Estate of Heywood, 154 Cal. 312, 97 Pac. 825.

7. Impossibility of restoration.—Bill of exceptions.—Under the restoration act of 1906 a judgment creditor may maintain an action to restore the judgment roll where the entire record was destroyed in the conflagration of April, 1906, notwithstanding that at the time of such destruction a motion for a new trial and the settlement of a bill of exceptions were pending, and it is impossible to restore the contents of such bill of exceptions.—Foerst v. Kelso, 163 Cal. 436, 439, 125 Pac. 1054.

8. Judgment roll, effect of, not involved.—On an application for the restoration of the judgment roll, no question as to the effect of such judgment roll when restored, are involved in the application for such restoration, or on an appeal from an order therefor.—Foerst v. Kelso, 163 Cal. 436, 439, 125 Pac. 1054.

9. Jurisdiction of court.—Abuse of discretion.—Under the circumstances of this case, and in view of the fact that the court had the power of its own motion to restore its own records, upon no reasonable theory can it be said that the court abused its discretion in restoring the record.—In re Jones, 17 Cal. App. 327, 119 Pac. 670.

10. Jurisdiction to order restoration of record of criminal appeal.—After transfer by the supreme court to the district court of appeals, the latter has complete jurisdiction of a criminal appeal to make orders under the restoration act relating to the restoration of court records therein.—People v. Garnett, 9 Cal. App. 194, 98 Pac. 247.

11. Oral proof of destruction.—Rule of evidence.—The restoration does not provide an exclusive remedy, or forbid all other proof of lost judicial records, or abrogate the rule of evidence admitting oral proof of their contents.—Hibernia, etc., Soc. v. Boyd, 155 Cal. 193, 100 Pac. 239.

12. Purpose of act is to provide conclusive evidence of the contents of the record, and dispense with the necessity of secondary evidence.—In re Jones, 17 Cal. App. 327, 119 Pac. 670.

13. Same.—Other issues.—The ends of justice would not be promoted by complicating the restoration contemplated by the act with other issues.—In re Jones, 17 Cal. App. 327, 119 Pac. 670.

14. Printed copy for original transcript.—Jurisdiction to order substitution.—The district court of is empowered to order the substitution of a printed copy for the original transcript on appeal in a criminal case.—People v. Garnett, 9 Cal. App. 194, 98 Pac. 247.

15. Right to remedy.—Apparent interest.—A divorced wife who has an apparent interest under the will of her deceased former husband is entitled to have a restoration of the decree of distribution under such will, without regard to the question as to whether, by remarriage or otherwise, prior to the death of the deceased she forfeited such interest.—In re Jones, 17 Cal. NEW TRIAL ACT.

ACT 581—An act providing for the disposition of actions and proceedings in which bills of exceptions and statements on motion for a new trial have been lost or destroyed by conflagration or other public calamity.

New trial may be had if bill of exceptions lost.

§ 1. When any proposed bill of exceptions, or statement of the case on motion for a new trial, in action or proceedings, is lost or destroyed by reason of conflagration or other public calamity, and no other record of the proceedings upon the trial thereof can be obtained, and such action or proceeding is subject to review by motion for new trial, pending at the time of such loss or destruction, and it is by the court in which such action or proceeding is pending deemed impossible or impracticable to restore such proceedings (and to settle a bill of exceptions or statement of the case containing such proceedings) so as to enable the court to review the judgment or order therein by motion for new trial, the court may grant a new trial of such action or proceeding if at the time of such loss or destruction a motion for new trial be pending therein, and such action or proceeding shall thereupon be tried anew. In order to grant such new trial, it shall be unnecessary to have any bill of exceptions or statement of the case settled, but upon the facts above recited being shown to the satisfaction of the court by affidavit or otherwise, the court shall have power in its discretion to grant such new trial.

Extension of time pending hearing of motion.

§ 2. Pending the hearing of a motion under the preceding section to grant such new trial, the time within which a bill of exceptions might be prepared, served or presented for settlement, shall be extended, and shall not commence to run until the decision upon such motion. (The motion provided for by this act must be made within thirty days after the loss or destruction of such records; provided, that in any case now pending such motion may be made at any time within sixty days after the passage of this act.)

§ 3. This act shall take effect immediately.

1. Constitutionality—Subject matter expressed in title—More than one subject.—The statute is not unconstitutional as in violation of section 24, article IV of the constitution, on the ground that the subject is not expressed in the title and that more than one subject is embraced in the title.—Bassford & Earl, 172 Cal. 653, 659, 158 Pac. 124.

2. Same—Not special legislation.—The statute does not contravene section 25, article IV, of the constitution, prohibiting special legislation.—Bassford v. Earl, 172 Cal. 653, 660, 158 Pac. 124.

3. Same—Impairment of obligation of contracts.—The statute merely changes a remedy applicable to a special proceeding, and does not impair the obligation of a contract.—Bassford v. Earl, 172 Cal. 653, 661, 158 Pac. 124.

4. Application of act—Appellate court.—The act applies to the trial court in which the action is pending, and not to the appellate court where an appeal from a new trial order is pending.—People v. Napoli, 7 Cal. App. 79, 93 Pac. 500.

5. Construction of act—Remedial.—Act is remedial, and was intended to have a retro-active operation, and not to be limited to conditions arising after its passage.—Bassford v. Earl, 172 Cal. 653, 656, 158 Pac. 124.

6. Same—No bill of exceptions required—Affidavits.—The act does not require a bill of exceptions, but the court may hear the motion on "affidavits or otherwise."—Fisher v. Western Fuse, etc., Co., 12 Cal. App. 299, 107 Pac. 332.

7. Condition of relief—Restoration impossible or impractical.—The condition which must exist to authorize the relief provided by the act exists when the court, at the time the application is made, deems it impossible or impractical to restore the proceedings.—Bassford v. Earl, 172 Cal. 653, 657, 158 Pac. 124.

8. Negligent delay—Failure to obtain record.—The statute contemplates diligence and if, by the moving party's neglect a means of obtaining another transcript is lost, by death or otherwise, when, by due diligence he might have caused the restoration of the record, he should not be permitted to contend, at the hearing for the new trial provided in proper cases by the statute that no other record can be obtained, for in such case his inability to obtain a bill of exceptions would be the result of his neglect and not of the conflagration and the destruction of the original.—Bassford v. Earl, 172 Cal. 653, 657, 158 Pac. 124.

9. Power of court discretionary.—Where the official reporter furnished the moving party with a full copy of the proceedings required to prepare a new bill of exceptions, in place of a destroyed proposed bill of exceptions, the granting of a new trial under the act would not have been in plain violation of the statute, and it was not an abuse of discretion to continue the motion for the preparation of a new bill.—Fisher v. Western Fuse, etc., Co., 12 Cal. App. 299, 107 Pac. 332.

It shall determine the number, title and duties of all other officers and employees, and fix the salaries thereof. It shall see that discipline is maintained and that proper education is provided, to the end that those committed to its charge shall be prepared to become honorable, self-supporting members of society. It is authorized and required to make all contracts for the operation and maintenance of said school that may be necessary, subject to the limitations prescribed by law.

Not to be interested in contract.

§ 5. No trustee or employee of such school shall be interested personally, directly or indirectly, in any contract, purchase or sale made, or any business carried on in behalf of, or for such institution, and any money so paid on such contracts or sales may be recovered by civil suit, and it shall be the duty of the governor or the board of trustees, as the case may be, upon proof of the fact of such interest, to remove immediately such trustee or employee.

Superintendent's bond, duties, etc.

§ 6. The superintendent shall, before entering upon the discharge of her duties, make and file with the board of trustees an oath that she will faithfully and impar-

She shall thereupon, subject to the regulations prescribed by the board, be invested with the custody of the lands, buildings and all other property belonging to and under the control of said school, subject to the direction of said board, and shall account to it in such manner as it may require for all property entrusted to her and all moneys received by her as such superintendent, for said school or any of its inmates. She shall appoint, except as hereinbefore provided, all officers and employees of said school, who shall hold office at her pleasure.

Bond of officers.

§ 7. The board of trustees shall require such officers as may be entrusted with money belonging to the school or its inmates, or as may be placed in a position of trust and responsibility in the custody of property, or in the handling of supplies belonging to the school, to give bond with sureties to be approved by the board, in such sum as it may determine, conditioned upon the faithful performance of the duties required, and the faithful accounting for all money and property coming into their hands or under their control, by virtue of such office.

Conduct of school.

§ 8. The board of trustees shall cause said school to be conducted as may seem best calculated to carry out the intentions of this act. There shall be organized a course of study corresponding as far as practicable with the course of study in the public schools of the state. There shall also be provided in said school the proper facilities and equipment for vocational training such as domestic science, dressmaking, horticulture, agriculture and such business instruction as may be practicable for women, and such instruction and training given to each and every inmate committed to said school to the end that every inmate may, upon discharge, be qualified for honorable and profitable employment.

Superintendent to reside at school.

§ 9. The superintendent shall reside at the school and shall be furnished suitable quarters, furniture, food supplies, and laundry for herself and family. The board may make similar provision for such other officers and employees as the interests of the school may require to reside on the premises.

Commitments.

§ 10. The said school shall receive into its custody all girls who may be committed to it in accordance with law.

Merit system. Parole.

§ 11. There shall be established in said school a system of marking based upon merit or attainments and general conduct, by which any girl committed hereto may work out her way to parole and honorable discharge. When, in the opinion of the superintendent, a girl, according to the regulations, has earned the right to a parole, a reputable home or place of employment shall be provided for her, where she may be employed and earn an honorable living, and said superintendent shall then recommend her to the board for parole, which shall grant it if deemed for her welfare, under such conditions as the board may deem best. This parole shall continue until she has proved her ability for honorable self-support, whereupon she shall be discharged. Any girl, who, while on parole, violates the conditions thereof, may be returned to the school.

Girls incapable of reformation.

§ 12. Any girl committed to said school who after due trial, is in the opinion of the superintendent, incapable of reformation, or so morally deficient as to render her detention detrimental to the interests of said school, or who has misrepresented her age to the court which committed her, or has been previously convicted of a felony may be returned to the committing court, and said court may thereupon revoke the previous judgment committing her to said institution and resume proceedings where the same were suspended when such commitment was made.

Aiding inmate to escape.

§ 13. Any person who knowingly permits or aids any inmate to escape from said school, or conceals her with the intent of enabling her to elude pursuit, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor. Any fugitive from said school, or from the parties with whom she has been placed on parole, may be arrested and returned to said school by any person, upon written order of said superintendent.

Commission on location. Appropriation.

§ 14. A commission consisting of the state engineer and four members to be appointed by the governor, is hereby created, and it shall, as soon as practicable, with the approval of the board of control, establish a location for said school, purchase a site therefor to consist of not less than one hundred acres of good agricultural land, and the state department of engineering shall, in conformity to law, erect, construct and equip the necessary buildings therefor. For the purposes of paying the expenses of the provisions incurred by this act there is hereby appropriated out of the state treasury the sum of two hundred thousand dollars, one-half of which shall be available immediately after this act becomes effective, and one-half available January 1st, 1914.

Trustees to have control of girls' department at Whittier.

§ 15. Immediately after this act becomes effective, or as soon thereafter as a majority of the persons appointed as trustees shall have qualified and organized the said board, it shall take possession of and assume the control and management of the girls' department of the Whittier State School, and the board of trustees of the Whittier State School shall turn over to the board of trustees of the California school for girls hereby created, the custody and management of said girls' department, including the buildings now occupied by, and all property, records and papers now used by or belonging to, said girls' department or any of its inmates. When the said school for girls is located and the buildings constructed ready for occupancy, the board of trustees of said school for girls shall remove all girls from the said girls' department of the Whittier State School, whereupon all buildings and property, except such personal property as has been purchased for the express use of the girls, shall revert to the Whittier State School.

Controller's warrant.

§ 16. The controller of the state is hereby directed on requisition of said board, duly audited by the state board of control, to draw his warrant on the state treasurer in favor of said board for any moneys duly appropriated to pay for the necessary expenditures in the establishment and maintenance of said school, and the said treasurer is directed to pay the same from the appropriations provided therefor.

Construction of act. Pay to inmates authorized.

§ 17. This act shall be construed in conformity with the intent as well as the express provisions thereof, and shall confer upon the board authority to do all those lawful acts which it deems necessary to promote the prosperity of the school and the well being and education of its inmates, including the organization of trade schools, purchase of materials for use therein, the doing of all other things, not prohibited, which are required to carry out the purposes of this act. The board is further authorized to pay those committed to said school small weekly or monthly sums in lieu of clothing and other necessary articles, if in its judgment, such a course would better promote discipline and training. Nothing herein contained, however, shall permit said board to incur any indebtedness in excess of the appropriations allowed by law for the establishment of said school.

Girls' department at Whittier superseded.

§ 18. It is the purpose of this act that the school hereby established shall supersede and supplant the girls' department of the Whittier State School and that all commitments of girls authorized by law shall be made to the California School for Girls, but girls so committed shall be kept under the control of the said California School for Girls at the present girls' department of the Whittier State School until the school provided for by this act is ready for the reception of girls.

The amending act of May 14, 1917, contained the following:

683. CONTROL AND MANAGEMENT OF NAPA LAND.

"CALIFORNIA STATE REFORMATORY."

ACT 681—An act to establish the California State Reformatory; to provide for purchase of land therefor; and the construction of buildings and other improvements in connection therewith; to provide for the commitment and transfer of prisoners thereto and therefrom; to provide for the equipment, conduct and management thereof; and to make an appropriation therefor.

History: Approved April 24, 1911, Stats. 1911, p. 1088.

California State Reformatory.

§ 1. There is hereby established a reformatory for the confinement, discipline and instruction of prisoners committed thereto as hereinafter provided, to be known as the California State Reformatory.

Who may be sent to reformatory. Penal Code, section 1588, not applicable.

§ 2. Any male person not less than sixteen and not more than thirty years of age at the time of sentence, convicted of felony for the first time may be sentenced to confinement in said reformatory, when in the judgment of the court said person is capable of reformation and said sentence is compatible with the general welfare, and the sentence shall designate the minimum and maximum term prescribed by law for the particular offense, but shall fix no other term; provided, however, that if no minimum is fixed by law the court shall fix a minimum of one year. The provisions of section 1588 of the Penal Code relating to credits for good conduct shall not apply to prisoners in the state reformatory.

Prison directors to manage. Superintendent.

§ 3. The state board of prison directors shall manage and maintain said reformatory when ready for occupancy as hereinafter provided. Said board shall employ a superintendent, who shall be the executive head of said reformatory, and shall establish such other positions as the needs of the service may from time to time require. Such positions shall be filled by the superintendent in the manner provided by law. The board may consolidate or abolish such positions and may fix and change the salaries to be paid.

Rules. Prisoners examined.

§ 4. The board of prison directors shall establish the rules under which the reformatory shall be conducted for the purpose of reformation of those committed to it; and shall adopt such methods as the board may deem expedient to restore them to freedom as self-supporting and self-respecting members of the state. Such rules shall include provision for keeping records of the facts known of each prisoner on entrance and of his conduct and progress at such intervals as the board may fix. Each prisoner on entrance shall be thoroughly examined by a competent physician for physical or mental defects or abnormalities, and shall be provided such physical and surgical treatment as may be necessary to overcome such defects, so far as practicable.

Grades for prisoners.

§ 5. The board of prison directors shall, by rule, establish not less than three grades for the prisoners committed to the reformatory, one of which shall be the entering grade. The board shall so far as practicable establish rules by which each prisoner shall be promoted to a higher grade or reduced to a lower grade in accordance with his conduct.

Parole.

§ 6. The board of prison directors shall make and enforce rules governing the release of prisoners on parole and their conduct while on parole and their final discharge, and it is hereby declared the policy of the law that prisoners in said reformatory shall be given their liberty whenever in the judgment of the said board such release is compatible with the public welfare, and said prisoner will conform to its rules concerning prisoners on parole and support himself by honest industry; provided, that no prisoner shall be released before the expiration of the minimum term fixed by law for the offense of which he was convicted, but nothing herein contained shall be construed to restrict the power of the governor to pardon any prisoner.

Return of paroled prisoner whose conduct is not satisfactory.

§ 7. Whenever the governor of the state, the superintendent of said reformatory, or any member of the state board of prison directors is dissatisfied with the conduct of a paroled prisoner he may issue a written order, reciting the commitment and parole of said prisoner and his dissatisfaction with the conduct of said paroled prisoner, and directing his arrest and return to said institution, and said order shall be a sufficient warrant for any parole, probation or peace officer named therein to arrest and deliver said prisoner to any officer of said reformatory for return thereto, and it is hereby made the duty of all such officers to execute any such order in like manner as a warrant of arrest for felony. At the next meeting of said board it shall determine whether or not the order by which such prisoner was placed on parole shall be revoked. If any prisoner on parole shall leave the state without permission from said board he shall be held to be an escaped prisoner and shall be arrested as such.

Final release of prisoner.

§ 8. The board of prison directors may give a final release to any prisoner who has fulfilled the conditions required of him in the reformatory and upon parole, when in the judgment of the board he is fitted to take his place as a free citizen of the state, and shall have power, by so providing in the order of release, to restore said prisoner to all the rights of citizenship. When any prisoner shall have served the maximum term provided by law for the offense of which he was convicted he shall thereupon be discharged. No petition or other form of application for the parole or release of a prisoner shall be entertained by the board, except the application made by the prisoner himself.

Incorrigible prisoner may be removed to prison.

§ 9. The board of prison directors may establish rules by which any prisoner appearing to be incorrigible may be removed to any one of the state prisons. Such prisoner shall serve the maximum term established by law for the offense of which he was convicted, including the time served in the reformatory, with such deductions for good conduct during his incarceration in such prison as the law and the rules of the prison may allow.

Prisoner may be transferred from prison to reformatory.

§ 10. The board of prison directors may transfer from the state prisons to said reformatory any prisoner serving his first term for felony who in their judgment can be reformed and restored to a life of honest industry. Provided, the consent of the prisoner to be bound by the terms of this act, and for the maximum period fixed by law for the offense of which he was convicted unless sooner discharged, shall be first procured in writing. Said prisoner shall thereafter be treated in all respects as though originally committed to said reformatory.

Prison laws applicable to reformatory.

§ 11. The laws governing the state prisons of this state in relation to expenses of transportation of prisoners to and from the same, escapes, prevention of escapes, suppression of riots, revolts, mutinies, or insurrections, and the punishment of crimes committed therein, are hereby made applicable to the reformatory.

Instruction in reformatory.

§ 12. The discipline of the reformatory shall include instruction in the elementary school courses and in pursuits by which the prisoners may support themselves when released. Said instruction shall chiefly be given in agriculture and horticulture by the best methods as developed by the University of California and the department of agriculture of the United States. Instruction in other forms of labor may be established in the discretion of the board of prison directors; provided, that the prisoners shall be distributed among the various trades and employments so that no excessive number be directed to any trade or employment.

Disposition of products.

§ 13. Products of said reformatory shall so far as possible be supplied for state, county, municipal, school or other public use, and the reformatory shall collect or be credited with the fair market price therefor. No manufactured product shall be supplied, sold, exchanged or given away for private use or profit.

Probation officers to co-operate in getting employment for paroled prisoners.

§ 14. The probation officers of the state shall co-operate with the state board of prison directors and the state parole officer, in procuring employment for and supervising paroled prisoners and the probation officers of each county shall act as parole officer for all prisoners on parole living within the limits of their county, under such general rules as may be established by the state board of prison directors and under the supervision of the state parole officer.

Earnings of prisoners.

§ 15. The board of prison directors may allow to prisoners such proportion of their earnings above the cost of the maintenance as the board may deem proper.

Commission to locate reformatory. Purchase of land. Buildings.

§ 16. A commission consisting of the governor of the state of California, the lieutenant-governor of the state and three other persons, to be selected by the governor of the state, is hereby constituted a commission for the location and construction of said reformatory as hereinafter more particularly provided. Said commission, as soon after the passage of this act as possible, shall select a suitable site for said reformatory of not less than six hundred acres. The said commission is directed to secure land susceptible of irrigation if necessary and suitable for the agricultural and horticultural work to be carried on by the prisoners. When a suitable site is selected by said commission they are hereby authorized and empowered to purchase the land so selected, together with water and water rights appertaining thereto, and if necessary shall purchase additional water rights or make provision for the development of water for use on said land. The purchase price of said land may be made payable in installments out of the appropriations hereinafter provided, as may be agreed between said commission and the owner or owners of said land. Title to the land shall be taken in the name of the state of California and first payment therefor shall be made at the time of the delivery of deed or deeds by the owner or owners to the governor of the state of California for and on behalf of the state. The said commission shall adopt plans for the buildings to be erected upon said land for said reformatory to accommodate not less than one thousand prisoners, and may employ architects or engineers or both in the preparation of said plans, and in the construction of said buildings. The said commission is authorized to employ and fix the compensation of such free labor and skilled assistants as may be needed in the erection of such buildings and shall so far as possible utilize the labor of prisoners in said construction as hereinafter provided.

Prisoners to aid in constructing reformatory. Temporary buildings. Supervision of prisoners at work. Compensation of prisoners. Prison directors to provide food, etc. Appropriation.

§ 17. The state board of prison directors shall on the request of the said commission furnish a list of not less than one hundred (100) nor more than three hundred (300) prisoners in San Quentin and Folsom state prisons, who would be available for use in the construction of said reformatory. In the selection of such men for said list the board of prison directors shall name those men who are skilled in building and who have shown themselves active and energetic, and so far as possible shall name those who under the rules of the said board of prison directors would be entitled to parole on or before the completion of the buildings of said reformatory, as estimated, and who would be suitable for transfer to said reformatory upon its completion. From this list so submitted as aforesaid, the state board of prison directors shall designate those to be employed in constructing the buildings of said reformatory, and upon such designation said board of prison directors shall cause to be transported to the location selected for said reformatory said prisoners in such numbers and at such times as may be required by said commission. Temporary buildings may be erected for housing said prisoners while engaged in said work of construction. The state board of prison directors is authorized and directed to employ a superintendent and necessary guards while engaged in said construction and particularly to have charge of them during the hours they are not actually engaged upon the buildings of the said reformatory.

During the hours that said prisoners are actually engaged in work of construction of said building they shall be under the supervision and direction of those officers and foremen employed by said commission to erect said buildings. At any time during the progress of said work, prisoners engaged therein who have shown themselves unfit to work under the conditions herein provided, shall be returned to the state penitentiary on orders of the board of prison directors, and any prisoner who makes his escape from such employment shall be returned to the state prison from which he was originally transferred. The state board of prison directors shall have the same jurisdiction to parole prisoners engaged in this work as any other prisoners in any other state prison, and shall make such rules concerning their custody and discipline while engaged in said work as may be necessary.

The state board of prison directors may fix the compensation to be paid to said prisoners for their work while constructing said buildings, not to exceed twenty-five cents per day, such money to be paid to said prisoners upon their parole or final discharge, from the money hereinafter appropriated, unless the board declares said amount forfeited by bad conduct.

The state board of prison directors shall provide the necessary food, clothing and transportation for said prisoners while engaged in said work, to be paid upon their order by the state board of examiners from the moneys herein appropriated for the construction of said reformatory buildings.

There is hereby appropriated for the purpose of carrying into effect the provisions of this law the sum of one hundred and fifty thousand dollars; five thousand dollars to be available July 1, 1911, and one hundred and forty-five thousand dollars to be available July 1, 1912.

Governor to publish proclamation when reformatory is ready to receive prisoners.

Termination of commission.

§ 18. Whenever the buildings are so far completed as in the judgment of said commission to be available to receive prisoners committed by the court, a proclamation to that effect shall be published by the governor and thereafter the courts may commit prisoners to the said reformatory in the manner hereinafter provided, and during the progress of said work shall be treated in the same manner as the prisoners transferred by [from] the state prisons as herein provided;

Provided, further, that on January 1, 1915, the commission hereinbefore provided shall terminate. Thereupon the state board of prison directors shall take charge of said reformatory and be vested with the powers hereinbefore conferred upon the said commission, and thereafter all further construction and expenditure shall be under their direction and control.

Owner may convey when bodies are removed.

§ 13. Whenever all the bodies buried in any lot or plot, in this act referred to, shall have been removed therefrom, with the consent of a majority of the board of directors of the corporation owning said cemetery, it shall be lawful for the owners of said lot or plot, with the consent of a majority of said directors, to transfer the same by deed. [New section added March 31, 1891. Stats. 1891, p. 264.]

1. Constitutionality—City ordinance.—An ordinance under the police power, prohibiting the purchase or sale of cemetery lots for burial purposes within the city, and of interment except upon lots already purchased for the purpose, is held to be discriminative in its operation between persons similarly situated, and is unreasonable and void.—Ex parte Bohen, 115 Cal. 372, 36 L. R. A. 618, 47 Pac. 55.

2. Same—City ordinance of San Francisco prohibiting interments within the city limits, exclusive of places belonging to the United States, is an exercise of the police power, is authorized under the charter, is not in conflict with any provision of the present act or any other general law, and is valid.—Odd Fellows, etc., Ass'n v. San Francisco, 140 Cal. 226, 73 Pac. 987.

3. Same—Police power.—Interment in city limits, is likely to prove dangerous to the public health, where located in a thickly populated community, and may be prohibited in the exercise of the police power; but where the place is remote from human habitations, or close to but few dwellings, the absolute prohibition of such interments is an unreasonable restriction to lawful business, not fairly justified as a health measure, and will not be sustained.—Laurel Hill Cemetery v. San Francisco, 152 Cal. 464, 14 Ann. Cas. 1080, 27 L. R. A. (N. S.) 260, 93 Pac. 70.

Editor's note: The code commissioners' opinion as to the repeal of this act by § 288, Civil Code, is not without reason, as a comparison of the provisions of the act with those of the code will show; but that the legislature did not think so is manifest from the fact that they have, even as late as 1911, amended the original act, and in 1899, supplemented it.—See Kerr's Cyc. Civil Code, §§ 288, and 608, et seq.

It may be further noted that this act relates to an "association," and the provisions of the Civil Code deal exclusively with cemetery "corporations," and an "association" is not necessarily a "corporation." Because of the use of certain terms in this act, or for some other reason, the courts might hold that "associations" under this act are "corporations," within the meaning of the Civil Code; but, if so, the code provisions relate to corporations in general, and the corporations to which this act relates are a particular kind of corporations, to wit, rural cemetery corporations, and it is not unreasonable to assume that the legislation intended a particular classification to cover them, and that such classification is a reasonable one.

RURAL CEMETERY ASSOCIATIONS.

ACT 727—An act supplemental to an act entitled "An act to authorize the incorporation of rural cemetery association," approved April twenty-eight, eighteen hundred and fifty-nine, authorizing such association to erect, purchase, or lease buildings and furnaces and other works for cremation of human bodies; also to erect or lease buildings in which shall be entombed only the ashes of cremated dead, to make provision for the care of the burial places and ashes of the dead; also to provide for the cremation of the unclaimed dead and bodies liable, if interred, to spread disease.

Cremation associations, rights, privileges, etc.

§ 2. Such associations shall invest their funds and use the proceeds thereof, after current expenses are paid, for the perpetual care of the grounds, lots, buildings, and niches, according to contracts made and to be made with patrons, and in conducting its business such associations shall have the same powers granted by law to corporations in general; provided, they shall have no authority to contract any pecuniary obligation whatever, nor shall they have power to levy or collect assessments.

Municipal authorities may order cremation of unknown or pauper dead.

§ 3. In case of epidemics or the prevalence of contagious diseases, or otherwise, the proper authorities of any county, city and county, city, or town, may order the unclaimed or unknown dead, and the dead who die in public institutions under the control of any county, city and county, city, or town, and the dead commonly buried at public expense, cremated, and their ashes immured or otherwise preserved in receptacles in columbariums, or interred in burial places; and human bodies, and parts of bodies, used in medical or other schools (except specimens to be preserved) shall not be cast into the waters of the state, nor on the ground, nor in receptacles for refuse matter, nor in vaults, nor in sewers, but shall either be buried as deep in the ground as is by law required for dead bodies, or cremated, as in this act provided. But the remains of a person shall not be cremated by compulsion, under the provisions of this section, if he or his family, or any member thereof, or his church or spiritual advisor objects.

CREATION OF STATE BOARD.

ACT 803—An act to create a state board of charities and corrections, prescribing its duties and powers, and appropriating money therefor.

History: Approved March 25, 1903, Stats. 1903, p. 482. Amended May 1, 1911, Stats. 1911, p. 1334; May 26, 1915. In effect August 8, 1915. Stats. 1915, p. 847.

State board of charities created. Women eligible. Vacancies.

§ 1. A state board of charities and corrections is hereby created of six members, to be appointed by the governor, with the advice and consent of the senate, not more than three of whom shall be of the same political party. Such members shall hold office for a period of four years and until their successors are appointed and qualified; provided, that the terms of the three members who were appointed February 17, 1908, shall expire February 17, 1912, and the other three terms shall expire February 17, 1914, and thereafter the terms of three members of said board shall expire on February 17th of each even-numbered year. Women may be appointed members of said board or hold any position in the appointment of said board. Appointments to fill vacancies before the expiration of such terms shall be for the residue of terms in the same manner as original appointments. The governor shall be ex officio a member of said board. [Amendment approved May 1, 1911. Stats. 1911, p. 1334.]

Expenses allowed. Bond of secretary. Office. Meetings. Non-attendance deemed resignation.

§ 2. The members of said board shall act without compensation, but shall be allowed their actual necessary expenses. The said board may appoint a secretary and such other employees as it may deem necessary to carry out the provisions of this act, and shall determine their salaries. The secretary of said board shall execute a bond in the sum of five thousand ($5,000.00) dollars, and take the oath of office prescribed by the Political Code for the executive officers of this state. The board shall provide itself with an office in the city and county of San Francisco. Meetings of the board may be held at such times and in such places in the state of California as said board may deem fit. It may make such rules and orders for the regulation of its own proceedings, as it may deem necessary, and may fix the number of members necessary to constitute a quorum. The failure of a member to attend three consecutive meetings of said board during any calendar year, unless excused by formal vote of the board, may be construed by the governor as a resignation of said non-attending member. [Amendment of May 26, 1915. In effect August 8, 1915. Stats. 1915, p. 847.]

This section was also amended May 1, 1911, Stats. 1911, p. 1336.

§ 3. The board is hereby empowered and authorized, and it shall be its duty as a whole, or by committee, or by its secretary, or other agent whom it may authorize, to investigate, examine, and make reports upon the charitable, correctional, and penal institutions of the state, including the state hospitals for the insane, of the counties, cities and counties, cities, and towns of the state, and such public officers as are in any way responsible for the administration of public funds used for the relief or maintenance of the poor. All the persons or officers in charge of or connected with such public institutions, or with the administration of said funds, are hereby required to furnish to the board or its committee or secretary such information and statistics as they may request or require, and allow said board, committee, or secretary free access to all departments of such institutions and to all of their records. In order to secure accuracy, uniformity, and completeness in such statistics and information, the board may prescribe such forms of report and records by the state commission in lunacy regarding the state hospitals for the insane and by such other officers, boards, or institutions as it may deem necessary, and also such forms of registration at all public institutions referred to in this section as it may require. The state commission in lunacy, on behalf of the institutions under its charge, and the officers of all other institutions, and all officers in any way responsible for public funds used for the relief of the poor or the maintenance of any inmates of said public institutions, are hereby required to follow such forms, records, and registration so prescribed; provided, that the intent of this law is that, so far as possible, the board shall make use of the forms of report, record, and registration now obtaining in the state commission of lunacy and other state boards and institutions. All plans of new buildings, or parts of buildings for any of the public institutions coming under provisions of this section, or any additions or alterations in such buildings, shall, before their adoption by the proper officials, be submitted to the board for suggestions and criticisms. ACT 846—An act to provide for a general system, based upon investigation as to merit, efficiency and fitness, for appointment to and holding during good behavior of office and employment under state authority and, in that behalf, to create a state civil service commission, to prescribe its powers and duties, to make the wilful violation of the provisions of this act a misdemeanor, to repeal all acts and parts of acts inconsistent herewith in so far as they may be inconsistent with the provisions of this act, and to make an appropriation therefor.

History: Approved June 16, 1913. In effect August 10, 1913. Stats. 1913, p. 1035. Amended May 27, 1919. In effect immediately. Stats. 1919, p. 1337.

Definitions of terms.

§ 1. First—The term “commission” as used in this act means the “state civil service commission” herein created, and the term “commissioner” as used in this act means one of the three members of that commission, all unless such terms are plainly used with some other meaning.

Second—That terms “position” and “positions” as used in this act include all offices and employments under state authority, whether there be any salary or other compensation or emolument connected therewith, except offices held by elective officers as such and also except the militia and all offices and employments as now or hereafter provided by virtue of or under article eight of the constitution of the state, and except county and township offices and employments.

Third—The term “appointing power” as used in this act includes all persons whether acting singly or in conjunction with others in any way whatsoever, either by nomination or confirmation or as a board or commission or otherwise, in selecting any one to hold any position as that term is so used in this act.

Fourth—The term “appointment” as used in this act includes all means of selecting and employing any one to hold any position as that term is so used in this act. [Amendment of May 27, 1919. In effect immediately. Stats. 1919, p. 1338.]

Civil service commission created. Salary.

§ 2. There is hereby created a commission known as the “state civil service commission” which shall consist of three commissioners but which may continue to act after being fully constituted if there is not more than one vacancy in such commission. The commission shall be first constituted by three commissioners appointed for terms ending July 1, 1914, July 1, 1916, and July 1, 1917, respectively, and the succeeding terms shall each be for a period of four years. The governor shall appoint all commissioners including those who fill unexpired terms. Any commissioner may be removed by concurrent resolution of both houses of the legislature adopted by a two-thirds vote of each house. The commissioners shall each receive a salary of three thousand dollars per annum, which shall be paid at the same time and in the same manner as the salaries of state officers are paid, and the commissioners shall also be paid necessary traveling expenses incurred in the performance of their duties. The total and items of all expenditures and obligations made, authorized and incurred by the commission shall not exceed the sums appropriated therefor by law.

Employees.

§ 3. The commission shall employ a chief examiner and secretary, which offices may be combined, and such other employees as it may deem necessary or proper to carry out the purposes of this act. Their compensation shall be fixed by the commissioner, and they may be paid necessary traveling expenses incurred in the discharge of the duties. The duties of the chief examiner, secretary and other employees shall be prescribed by the commission, subject to the provisions of this act. It shall be the duty of the secretary to keep the minutes of the meetings of the commission and perform such other services as may be assigned him by the commission. The commission may select suitable persons to assist in examinations under its directions. The compensation of such assistants shall not exceed five dollars per day, except in the case of special and expert examiners employed in the preparation of questions and rating of candidates; and when the persons so selected are in the official service of the state it shall be deemed a part of their official duty to serve as such assistants without additional compensation. [Amendment of May 27, 1919. In effect immediately. Stats. 1919, p. 1339.]

Office accommodations.

§ 4. The commission is authorized to secure in the city of Sacramento suitable and convenient rooms and accommodations and cause the same to be furnished, heated and lighted, for carrying on the work of the commission and the commission may order the necessary stationery, postage stamps, and official seal and other articles to be supplied, and the necessary printing to be done for its official use. [Amendment of May 27, 1919. In effect immediately. Stats. 1919, p. 1339.]

Classify and grade positions.

§ 5. The commission shall:

First—Classify positions to be held under state authority in accordance with the provisions of this act and in accordance with the duties attached to such positions. The commission shall grade all positions within each class with respect to salaries, to the end that like salaries shall be paid for like duties. Such classes and grades may from time to time be amended, added to, consolidated or abolished by the commission, but persons holding positions under the original classification or grade shall not be affected thereby; provided, that no person otherwise competent shall be excluded from any class on account of any physical defect or affliction unless such defect or affliction tends directly to incapacitate such person from performing the services required of that class, and that when any person with any such physical defect or affliction which does not tend directly to incapacitate such person from performing the duties required of persons in that class, has been appointed to a position, such person shall not be placed in a different grade as to salaries from other persons in the same class.

Hold examinations.

Second—Hold examinations to determine the merit, efficiency and fitness of applicants, for positions, and prepare properly classified eligible lists from applicants so examined.

All questions for examination shall be prepared under the supervision of the commission or chief examiner and delivered to the examining board or to the candidates by one of the commissioners or chief examiner or by an examiner specially designated to perform such service.

Enforce act.

Third—Enforce the provisions of this act and prescribe and enforce suitable rules and regulations for carrying the same into effect and from time to time amend and repeal the same.

Fourth—Keep minutes of its own proceedings, and records of its examinations and other official actions.

Efficiency records.

Fifth—Records of individual efficiency of holders of positions in performing their duties must be established and posted monthly in all offices and places of employment affected by this act. Such records shall be made by the appointing power, unless otherwise directed by the commission, and under and in accordance with such rules and regulations as the commission may prescribe, and a copy of such records shall be filed with the commission. The commission shall investigate all such efficiency records and may make its own records, and shall rate upon such records the item of "ascertained merit" in examinations for promotion. The commission shall establish and enforce rules and regulations under which records of unsatisfactory service may lead to reduction in grade and compensation of the person holding the position concerned, and shall further provide for the manner in which persons falling below the standards of efficiency fixed by its rules and regulations may be removed from their positions by the commission proceeding substantially as provided in this act and with the same effect as in case of removals by the appointing power.

Make investigations.

Sixth—Make investigations concerning and report upon all matters touching the enforcement and effect of the provisions of this act and the rules and regulations prescribed thereunder; inspect all state institutions, offices, places of employment and services affected by this act, and ascertain whether this act and all such rules and regulations are obeyed. Such investigation may be made by any commissioner, or chief examiner, or by any other authorized agent of the commission. In the course of such investigation any commissioner, or chief examiner or such other authorized agent of the commission, or the secretary of the commission, shall have power to administer oaths, subpoena and require the attendance in this state of witnesses and the production thereby of books, papers, documents and accounts appertaining to the investigation but not requiring the attendance of witnesses either with or without books, papers, documents or accounts unless residing within the same county or within thirty miles of the place of attendance.

Rules governing hearing. Superior court may compel witnesses to attend. Order directing witness to appear.

Seventh—All hearings and investigations before the commission, or any commissioner, or the chief examiner or such other authorized agent of the commission shall be governed by this act and by rules of practice and procedure to be adopted by the commission and in the conduct thereof neither the commission nor any commissioner nor the chief examiner nor such other authorized agent of the commission shall be bound by the technical rules of evidence. No informality in any proceeding or in the manner of taking testimony before the commission or any commissioner, or the chief examiner or such other authorized agent of the commission shall invalidate any order, decision, rule or regulations made, approved or confirmed by the commission. The superior court in and for the county, or city and county, in which any inquiry, investigation, hearing or proceeding may be held by the commission, or any commissioner, or the chief examiner or such other authorized agent of the commission shall have the power to compel the attendance of witnesses, the giving of testimony and the production of books, papers, documents and accounts, as required by any subpoena issued by the commission, or any commissioner, or such other authorized agent of the commission or the secretary. The commission, or the commissioner, or the chief examiner or such other authorized agent of the commission before whom the testimony is to be given or produced, in case of the refusal of any witness to attend or testify or produce any papers required by such subpoena, may report to the superior court in and for the county, or city and county, in which the proceeding is pending, by petition, setting forth that due notice has been given of the time and place of attendance of said witness, or the production of such books, papers, documents, or accounts, and that the witness has been summoned in the manner prescribed in this act, and that the witness has failed and refused to attend or produce such books or papers or documents or accounts required by the subpoena, before the commission, or the commissioner, or the chief examiner, or such other authorized agent of the commission, in the matter named in the notice and subpoena, or has refused to answer questions propounded to him in the course of such proceedings, and ask an order of said court compelling the witness to attend and testify or produce such books or papers or documents or accounts before the commission, or any commissioner, or the chief examiner or such other authorized agent of the commission. The court, upon the petition of the commission, or any commissioner, or the chief examiner or such other authorized agent of the commission, shall enter an order directing the witness to appear before the court at a time and place to be fixed by the court in such order, the time to be not more than ten days from the date of the order, and then and there show cause why he has not attended and testified or produced said papers before the commission, or such commissioner, or the chief examiner or such other authorized agent of the commission. A copy of said order shall be served upon said witness. If it shall appear to the court that said subpoena was regularly issued by the commission, or any commissioner, or the chief examiner or other authorized agent of the commission, or the secretary, the court shall thereupon enter an order that said witness appear before the commission, or such commissioner, or the chief examiner or any other authorized agent of the commission at the time and place fixed in said order, and testify or produce the required books, papers, documents and accounts, and upon failure to obey said order, said witness shall be dealt with as for contempt of court. The remedy provided in this section is cumulative, and shall not be construed to impair or interfere with the power of the commission, or a commissioner, or the chief examiner or any such other authorized agent of the commission to enforce the attendance of witnesses and the production of books, papers, documents and accounts.

Depositions.

The commission, or any commissioner, or the chief examiner or such other authorized agent of the commission may, in any investigation or hearing before the commission, or any commissioner, or the chief examiner or such other authorized agent of the commission, cause the deposition of witnesses residing within or without the state to be taken in the manner prescribed by law for like depositions in civil actions in the superior courts of this state and to that end may compel the attendance of witnesses and the production of books, papers, documents and accounts.

Witness not excused from testifying.

No person shall be excused from testifying or from producing any book, paper, document or account in any investigation or inquiry by or hearing before the commission, or any commissioner, or the chief examiner or such other authorized agent of the commission, when ordered to do so, upon the ground that the testimony or evidence, book, paper, document or account required of him may tend to incriminate him or subject him to penalty or forfeiture, but no person shall be prosecuted, punished or subjected to any penalty or forfeiture for or on account of any act, transaction, matter or thing concerning which he shall, under oath, have testified or produced documentary evidence; provided, that no person so testifying shall be exempt from prosecution or punishment for any perjury committed by him in his testimony. Nothing herein contained shall be construed as in any manner giving to any person immunity of any kind otherwise than is herein expressly provided.

Biennial report.

Eighth—Make a biennial report to the governor for transmission to the legislature, showing the action of the commission, including all the rules and regulations adopted by it during such period and those that are in force at the time of making such report, information as to exempted positions as required by this act and the effects of this act and of all proceedings under it and any suggestions the commission or any commissioner may deem practical for the more effectual accomplishment of the purposes of this act.

Meetings.

Ninth—Meet at Sacramento as often as the needs of the public service may require, and at such other places as the commission may designate. A majority of the members of the commission shall constitute a quorum. [Amendment of May 27, 1919. In effect immediately. Stats. 1919, p. 1339.]

Duty of state officers.

§ 6. It shall be the duty of all persons subject to the authority of the state in that behalf (including all state officers and employees of all state institutions of every kind and character) to aid in all proper ways in carrying into effect the provisions of this act and the rules and regulations prescribed from time to time thereunder and especially, at the request of the commission, to allow the commission the reasonable use of public buildings and to heat and light the same for the purpose of making examinations of applicants and investigations as provided by this act. Every one subject to the authority of the state in that behalf shall afford to the commission and its members and employees all reasonable facilities and give inspection of all books, papers, documents and accounts applying or in any way appertaining to any and all offices subject to the authority of the state in that behalf, and shall also produce said books, papers, documents and accounts, and shall attend and testify when required to do so by the commission or any commissioner, or the chief examiner, or the secretary or any other authorized agent of the commission. The attorney general shall advise and assist the commission, and the district attorneys of the counties shall prosecute violations of this act. The commission may employ special counsel. [Amendment of May 27, 1919. In effect immediately. Stats. 1919, p. 1343.]

Appointments to be under act.

§ 7. The appointing power in all cases not excepted or exempted under the provisions of this act, or by virtue of the provisions of the constitution of the state, shall fill positions by appointment, including cases of transfers, reinstatements, promotions and reductions, in strict accordance with the provisions of this act and the rules and regulations prescribed from time to time hereunder, and not otherwise. Except only and to the extent that the appointing power otherwise requests as hereinafter provided, the positions held in the following specified classes are excepted from such method of appointment:

Position may be declared exempt.

All provided that at any time any vacancy in any position in any of the above specified fourteen excepted classes may be filled by the appointing power in the manner provided by this act, in which case the person appointed shall hold, during the tenure of office of said appointing power, such position under the tenure of good behavior and subject to the provisions of this act as if that position had not been so excepted, but upon such appointee ceasing to hold such position that position shall be open as in such excepted class. Upon such appointee ceasing to hold such office by reason of the termination of the tenure of office of said appointing power, said appointee shall be restored to place upon the eligible lists in accordance with such rules and regulations as the commission may prescribe in that behalf. Any position subject to the provisions of this act may be declared exempted by resolution passed by concurrence of the three commissioners. Such resolution shall state separately the reasons for each exemption. Not more than one appointment shall be made to or under any position covered by such resolution unless permission to appoint a different number is given therein. Any exception thus made may be terminated at any time by resolution of the commission. Appointments to exempted positions shall be reported immediately to the commission. The names of each exempted position and the names of the incumbent and the reason for each exemption shall be stated in the biennial reports of the commission. [Amendment of May 27, 1919. In effect immediately. Stats. 1919, p. 1343.]

§ 8. Within three months after the commission is constituted, it shall make rules for the classification of positions to be held under state authority to be provided by this act, and subject to the provisions of this act; such rules shall govern appointments, transfers, reinstatements, promotions, reductions and removals, and examination of applicants, and the commission may amend such rules from time to time. Such rules shall be printed for public distribution. [Amendment of May 27, 1919. In effect immediately. Stats. 1919, p. 1344.]

§ 9. Subject to the special provisions in this as to laborers, appointments shall be made to all positions that are not filled by promotion, reinstatement, transfer or reduction, under the provisions of this act and the rules in pursuance thereof, by the appointing power: Said appointing power shall notify the commission of any vacancy to be filled, stating the duties of the position. The commission shall then certify to the appointing power the names and addresses of the three persons standing highest on the eligible list for the class or grade to which the position belongs; but in case there be less than three on such eligible list, the commission shall certify the number thereon; and the appointing power shall fill the position by the appointment of one of the persons certified by the commission therefor. The term of eligibility shall be fixed for each eligible list at not less than one year. Appointments shall be made from the eligible list most nearly appropriate for the position to be filled, and a new list shall be created for a stated position or a group of positions only when there is no appropriate list existing from which appointment may be made. No person shall be appointed under any title not appropriate to the duties to be performed, and no person shall be assigned to perform the duties of any other position than that which he legally holds, except by consent of the commission. All appointments shall be for a probationary period to be fixed by the commission but not to exceed six months. Unless such appointee shall have been dismissed within such probationary period by the appointing power, for reasons stated in writing and filed with the commission, his appointment shall become permanent subject to the provisions of this act as to removals, suspensions and changes. Discharged probationers may by unanimous vote of the commission be restored to the list of eligibles for certification to any position within their class other than the one from which they were rejected.

Character of examinations. Preliminary requirements. Application blanks. May refuse to examine. Appointing power may require bond.

§ 10. The examinations shall be practical in their character, and shall relate to those matters which will fairly test the relative capacity and fitness of the persons examined to discharge the duties of the positions they seek. Applicants for positions in the mechanical trades and occupations may, in the discretion of the commission, be rated solely on experience and physical qualifications which may be determined by such evidence and in such manner as the commission may direct; and such applicants may be submitted to such further tests as the commission may require. The commission shall prepare lists of preliminary requirements and subjects of examinations for the several positions, and shall publish its rules and regulations and such information and advertise such examinations in such manner as the nature of the examination may require. The commission, except as may be otherwise provided in the case of laborers, shall require an applicant to file in its office, in accordance with its rules and regulations, a reasonable length of time before the date of examination, a formal application filled out in his own handwriting. Blank forms of such application shall be furnished by said commission without charge to all persons requesting the same. The commission may require in connection with applications, including laborers, such certificates of citizens, physicians, public officers or others having knowledge of the applicant, as the good of the service may require. The commission may refuse to examine or after examination to certify as eligible, any one who is found to lack any of the established preliminary requirements for the examination or position for which he applies; or who is physically so disabled as to be rendered unfit to perform the duties of the position to which he seeks appointment, or who is addicted to the habitual use of intoxicating beverages to excess; or who has been guilty of a crime or of infamous or notoriously disgraceful conduct; or who has been dismissed from the public service for delinquency or misconduct; or who has intentionally made a false statement of any material facts, or practiced, or attempted to practice any deception or fraud in his application, in his examination, or in securing his eligibility. Any person appointed to a position under the provisions of this act who has secured his place on the eligible list through fraud shall be removed by the commission from his position and shall not thereafter be eligible for examination for any position under the provisions of this act except by unanimous permission of the commission. When the position to be filled involves fiduciary responsibility, the appointing power may require the appointee to furnish a reasonable bond or other security, and shall notify the commission of the amount and necessary details thereof. [Amendment of May 27, 1919. In effect immediately. Stats. 1919, p. 1345.]

Temporary appointments.

§ 11. When there is no eligible list from which a position may be filled, the appointing power may, with the consent of the commission, fill such position by temporary appointment; and such temporary appointment shall not continue for a longer period than three months, nor shall successive temporary appointments be made to the same position under this section without the previous consent of the commission, and in no case shall any person hold a position under such successive temporary appointments for a longer period than six months without the unanimous consent of the commission. [Amendment of May 27, 1919. In effect immediately. Stats. 1919, p. 1346.]

Emergency appointments.

§ 12. The commission shall establish rules and regulations under which emergency appointments may be made when those on the eligible lists are not immediately available, and for the time for which such emergency appointments shall be valid; and may fix a different time for different counties or cities and counties of the state for which such emergency appointments shall be valid. [Amendment of May 27, 1919. In effect immediately. Stats. 1919, p. 1346.]

Promotions. Transfer.

§ 13. Vacancies in positions shall be filled, so far as practicable by promotion from among persons holding positions in a lower grade of the department, office or institution in which the vacancy exists. Promotion shall be based upon merit and competition and upon the superior qualifications of the person promoted as shown by his records of efficiency. For the purposes of this section an increase in the salary or other compensation of any person holding an office or position within the scope of the rules and regulations in force hereunder beyond the limit fixed for the grade in which such office and position is classified, shall be deemed a promotion. The commission may authorize the transfer of any person legally holding a position to a similar position in the same class or grade, and may provide for the reinstatement within one year of persons separated from positions without fault or delinquency on their part, if within that time there is need for their services. No promotion, transfer or reinstatement shall be made from a position in one class to a position in another class, nor shall a person be transferred to or reinstated in a position for original entrance to which there is required by this act or the rules and regulations thereunder an examination involving essential tests or qualifications different from or higher than those required for original entrance to the position held by such person. [Amendment of May 27, 1919. In effect immediately. Stats. 1919, p. 1346.]

Tenure of office. Written charges. Public hearing. Judgment not subject to review. Suspension.

§ 14. The tenure of every one holding a position under the provisions of this act shall be during good behavior, but any such person may be removed for any of the following causes:

(a) Incompetence, or inefficiency.

(b) Dishonesty, intemperance, immoral conduct, insubordination, discourteous treatment of the public or of fellow employees, a violation of the provisions of this act or of the rules and regulations of the commission or any other failure of good behavior. The appointing power that could fill such positions under the provisions of this act if vacant or the commission may remove, as hereinafter provided, for such cause. The appointing power in so proceeding must furnish to the person holding such position written charges setting forth such ground for removal and file copy with the commission and allow the accused a reasonable time and opportunity to file with the commission and furnish to said appointing power written answer and explanation and thereafter said appointing power shall publicly hear and determine such charges after reasonable notice to the accused and the commission of the time and place of said hearing and affording the accused an opportunity at such hearing to present whatever competent evidence the accused may desire in defense. In case of charges presented by or to the commission, it shall proceed in like manner. A judgment of removal, in writing, setting forth the findings of said appointing power after such hearing and filed with the commission, shall be final and effect such removal and shall not be subject to review by any other tribunal, except that in case of proceedings against the same person before both the appointing power and the commission the judgment against the accused by either the appointing power or the commission shall control a judgment by the other in favor of the accused. Such appointing power may from time to time peremptorily suspend, with loss of salary or other compensation during such suspension, such person for such cause, and without trial, but only upon written charges so furnished to such person and filed with the commission and with the privilege to such person to so furnish to the appointing power and file with the commission written answer and explanation, but such suspension or total suspensions by that appointing power of that person shall not exceed thirty days. Either the appointing power or the commission may transfer charges to the other for action or investigation.

Employment of laborers.

§ 15. The commission shall provide by rule for the employment of laborers in the labor class in the order of priority of application for employment. There shall be separate lists of applicants for different kinds of labor, and the commission may provide separate labor registration lists for departments, institutions, districts or localities. The commission may require an applicant for registration to pass such examination as they may deem proper with respect to his age, residence, physical condition, ability to labor, skill, capacity and experience. The commission shall establish such time as it may deem expedient for the duration of eligible lists in the labor class. [Amendment of May 27, 1919. In effect immediately. Stats. 1919, p. 1346.]

Reports of appointees, etc. Official roster.

§ 16. It shall be the duty of each appointing power to report to the commission forthwith upon each appointment the name of the appointee, the title or character of the position, the date of the commencement of such service, and the salary or compensation therefor, and to report from time to time, and upon the date of official action in, or knowledge of each case, any separation of the person from the position, or other changes, and such other information as the commission may require in order to keep the roster hereinafter mentioned. The commission shall keep in its office an official roster of all persons holding positions under the provisions of this act and shall enter thereon the name of each and every person who has been appointed to, promoted, reduced, transferred, reinstated or removed from or left any position and require such evidence as it may deem satisfactory as to whether such person was appointed to, promoted, reduced, transferred, reinstated or removed from such position in accordance with the provisions of this act and the rules and regulations of the commission thereunder and as to when and why and how such person was otherwise separated from such position. The official roster shall show opposite, or in connection with, each name, the date of appointment, promotion, reduction, transfer or reinstatement, the compensation of the position, the date of commencement of service and change in or separation from position and when and why and how there was such change or separation. ACT 878. INCORPORATION OF COLLEGES.

880. ASSENT OF STATE U. S. ENDOWMENT OF AGRICULTURAL COLLEGES.

INCORPORATION OF.

ACT 878—An act to provide for the incorporation of colleges.

History: Approved April 20, 1850, Stats. 1850, p. 273. Amended April 13, 1855, Stats. 1855, p. 110; February 21, 1868, Stats. 1867-68, p. 69; March 20, 1868, Stats. 1867-68, p. 218; March 28, 1870, Stats. 1869-70, p. 419. Supplemented April 27, 1863, Stats. 1863, p. 775; January 8, 1872, Stats. 1871-72, p. 10. The supplemental act of 1872 was amended February 7, 1874, Stats. 1873-74, p. 85.

Editor's note: "The code commissioner speaking of this act says: "Section 288 of the Civil Code repealed this act, together with other acts affecting corporations, but provided that corporations which were in existence at the time the codes went into effect might remain subject to the laws under which they were formed. It may therefore perhaps be doubted whether the amendment of 1873-74, p. 85, which was passed after § 288 went into effect is of any validity, seeing that it purports to amend an act already repealed."

It may be suggested, however, that the legislature did not, by § 288, Civil Code, repeal this law, but left it in force as to existing corporations formed under it. Not having lost all its vitality, is it not subject to amendment at least in a detail consistent with the act and not inconsistent with the provisions of the code?

This view finds support in the fact that the amendment referred to is not an amendment of the general act of 1850, but of the supplementary act of 1872, which deals with institutions, existing and to be formed, under the auspices of benevolent, religious, and fraternal organizations and societies. The amendment, so far as it relates to institutions already formed and existing under the act of 1850 or the supplementary act of 1872, is certainly a valid act of legislation, since the amended acts are expressly continued in force, as to existing corporations, by § 288, Civil Code. As to corporations to be formed, covered by section 1 of the amending act, it may be said that, treating that section as an act of original legislation, it is not inconsistent with §§ 649, et seq., of the Civil Code, and has the effect merely of a classification, making provision for this particular kind of an institution.

Whether section 1 of the amending act is properly to be construed as an original act of legislation, and whether the classification attempted is a reasonable one, or not, are questions for judicial determination.

§ 3. It shall be the duty of said commission to investigate and examine the laws of the United States, of foreign nations, of the states of the Union and of this state, and the reports and recommendations of persons, officials, commissions, societies and associations upon the subjects of forestry, water, the use of water, water power, electricity, electrical and other power, mines and mining, mineral and other lands, dredg-

The petition shall set forth:

Contents.

First—The proposed name of said district.

Second—The necessity for the proposed work and that it will be conducive to the public health, safety, convenience or welfare.

Third—A general description of the purpose of the contemplated improvement, and of the territory to be included in the proposed district. Said description of the territory to be included need not be given by metes and bounds, or by legal subdivisions, but it shall be sufficient if a generally accurate description is given of the territory to be organized as a district. Said territory need not be contiguous, provided it be so situated that the public health, safety, convenience or welfare will be promoted by the organization as a single district of the territory described.

Fourth—Said petition shall pray for the organization of the district by the name proposed.

Amendment.

No petition with the requisite signature shall be declared null and void on account of alleged defects, but the board of supervisors may at any time prior to the hearing thereof permit the petition to be amended in form and substance to conform to the facts, by correcting any errors in the description of the territory to be included, or in any other particular. Several similar petitions or duplicate copies of the same petition for the organization of the same district may be filed and shall together be regarded as one petition. All such petitions filed prior to the hearing on said petition shall be considered by the board of supervisors the same as though filed with the petition first placed on file.

At the time of filing the petition, or at any time subsequent thereto and prior to the time of the hearing on said petition, a bond shall be filed running to the board of supervisors of the county in which the petition is filed, with security approved by the board of supervisors, sufficient to pay all the expenses connected with the proceeding in case the said board of supervisors refuses to organize the district. If at any time during the proceeding the said board of supervisors shall be satisfied that the bond first executed is insufficient in amount, it may require the execution of an additional bond within a time to be fixed to be not less than ten days distant, and upon failure of the petitioners to execute the same the petition shall be dismissed.

Notice of hearing. Jurisdiction of board of supervisors. Joint meeting. Hearing objections.

§ 5. Immediately after the filing of such petition, the clerk of the board of supervisors with whom such petition is filed shall cause notice by publication to be made of the pendency of the petition and of the time and place of the hearing thereon and of the hearing of objections to the formation of such district. The board of supervisors of the county in which the petition was filed, shall thereafter, for all purposes of this act, except as hereinafter otherwise provided, maintain and have original and exclusive jurisdiction coextensive with the boundaries and limits of said district and of lands and other property proposed to be affected by said district; provided, that where said district lies in more than one county the board of supervisors of the county where the petition is filed shall forthwith notify the board or boards of supervisors of other counties in which said district is situated by directing a letter and transmitting the same by mail to the clerk or clerks of said board or boards notifying said board or boards of that fact and setting a day for a joint meeting with said board or boards, whereupon said boards shall meet jointly for the purpose of hearing said petition and objections thereto, if any, and for the transaction of business, in the chambers of the board with whom the said petition was filed; provided, that said meetings from time to time may be continued by mutual agreement, whereupon said boards shall sit conjointly thereafter for all purposes of this act, except as hereinafter otherwise provided, and maintain and have original and exclusive jurisdiction coextensive with the boundaries and limits of the district and of lands and other property proposed to be included in said district or affected by said district without regard to the usual limits of their jurisdiction. Said board or joint board shall have and it is hereby given full discretion to approve or deny said petition by a majority vote of its members present. Its decision in the matter shall be final and conclusive except as to the matters hereinafter stated. Objections to said petition need not be in writing, but the determination of said board shall be in writing and entered upon the minutes of said board.

Lands included in district.

Said board shall at said hearing, if it approve said petition, determine what land or lands within said proposed district will be benefited by said proposed improvements, and said board may in its discretion change or alter the boundaries of said proposed district to conform to the needs of the district; provided, that they shall include therein only such land as will in their judgment be benefited by the proposed work or improvement; and provided, that they shall not include therein land not included within the proposed boundaries of the district set forth in the petition; and provided, that said board shall at said hearing or adjourned hearing define the boundaries of the proposed district. The findings of such board shall be conclusive upon the genuineness and sufficiency of the signatures to the petition and of the notice of the hearing.

Election.

§ 6. Said board or joint board of supervisors, unless said petition be denied, must, if said lands of said district lie wholly within the county, within ten days after the determination of a hearing upon said petition, otherwise within thirty days after the termination of a hearing upon said petition, call an election within the proposed district for the determination of the question, whether such proposed district shall or shall not be organized and also to elect five persons who shall act as directors of the district for a term of four years in case such district be organized, and shall divide said district into convenient precincts and fix a polling place in each, and shall appoint three qualified electors in each precinct of said district to conduct said election; which election must be held within forty days from the date of said order.

Notice.

Said election shall be called by posting notice thereof in three of the most public places in such county in said proposed conservancy district, and by publication in a daily or weekly paper in each of said counties, if there be one, at least once a week for not less than fifteen days. Said notices must specify the time, place or places and purposes of said election, give the boundaries of the said proposed conservancy district as determined at the hearing of the petition, designate the respective election precincts and the polling place in each and the election officers and the hours during which the polls will be kept open; provided, that the polls must be opened not later than eight o'clock a. m., and kept open until seven o'clock p. m.

It shall be the duty of the board of supervisors to order placed upon the ballot the names of candidates for the position of director of the district who shall have been endorsed by a petition to said board of supervisors containing the names of ten or more electors of the district, petitioning that the names of candidates designated in the petition be placed upon the ballot to be voted on at such election; provided, however, that such petitions be filed with the board of supervisors calling said election within fifteen days after the first publication of the notice calling said election.

Conduct of election.

Said election shall be conducted in accordance with the general election laws of this state so far as applicable, and except as herein otherwise provided, without reference to the form of the ballot or manner of voting, except that the ballots shall contain the words "for the formation of a conservancy district," and "against the formation of a conservancy district," and the voter shall write or print or stamp a cross after the words that indicate his choice, together with the number of votes he is entitled to cast therefor as hereinafter provided, and that said ballots shall also contain the names of all candidates for the position of director of the district, with instructions to the voter to vote for five of the candidates for said position whose names appear upon such ballot, with the right to vote for each of the five candidates selected by him the number of votes he is entitled to cast as hereinafter provided.

One vote for each acre of real estate owned.

Each and every owner of land in the district shall be entitled to vote in person or by proxy, and shall have the right to cast one vote for each acre of real estate owned by him in the district, such ownership to be determined from the next preceding assessment roll of the county or counties in which the lands of the district are situated, and the board shall, prior to the election, cause to be prepared and certified and furnished to the board of elections at each voting place, a true and correct copy of the entries upon said next preceding assessment rolls so far as such assessment rolls apply to any lands within such district, and to the extent of showing the name of the owner and the number of acres assessed to each such owner, and which said certified entries from said rolls shall be used by the board of election in determining the number of votes each voter is entitled to cast.

Fraction of acre.

In calculating the number of acres owned by any voter any fraction of an acre in excess of the integral number owned by him shall be disregarded.

Joint ownership.

Where land is owned in joint undivided ownership, the votes shall be divided in accordance with the interests of each joint owner.

Unknown owners.

In case such applications are on file, they shall have preference.

Regulations for purpose of determining rates. Rates fixed by railroad commission.

The board of directors may make regulations, subject always to the applicable provisions of the said water commission act and the said public utilities act of the state of California, and other act or acts of said state, for the determination and measurement of the increased, or better, or more convenient use of, or benefit from the water supply of the district, for the purpose of determining rates of compensation, and for the purpose of securing to all parties interested the greatest and best use of the water thereof. Upon the completion of such determination and the receipt of a report thereof by them, the directors of the district shall make their report thereon and file the same with the secretary of said district. Thereupon notice shall be given of the pendency of said report and a hearing thereon, which notice and hearing shall conform as nearly as possible to the notice and hearing on appraisals of benefits and of land to be taken. Upon the determination of the matter by the board of directors, its findings shall be conclusive, and shall be the basis of any future assessment; provided, that in case any party shall thereafter establish in court or through the action of the state water commission any right or property in the waters of the district, or the use thereof, which has not been adjudicated, the existence of such right, or the failure to adjudicate it, shall not affect the operation of this provision nor the findings of the board of directors thereon in any other particular.

The appraisal of benefits made by the appraisers of the district shall not include benefits for such greater, better or more convenient use of, or benefit from the waters of the district, but the compensation for such use or benefits shall be made according to the provisions of this section.

Board of appraisers.

§ 24. At any suitable time after having taken their oath of office, the board of directors shall appoint three appraisers whose duty it shall be to appraise the lands or other property within and without the district to be acquired for rights of way, reservoirs and other works of the district, and to appraise all benefits and damages accruing to all lands within or without the district by reason of the execution of the official plan. Said appraisers shall be freeholders residing within the state of California, who may or may not own lands within said district. Each of the appraisers shall, before taking up his duties, take and subscribe to an oath that he will faithfully and impartially discharge his duties as such appraiser, and that he will make a true report of such work done by him. The said appraisers shall at their first meeting elect one of their own number chairman, and the secretary of the board of directors or his deputy shall be ex officio secretary of said board of appraisers during their continuance in office. A majority of the appraisers shall constitute a quorum, and a concurrence of the majority in any matter within their duties shall be sufficient for its determination. Said appraisers shall continue to hold their office until dismissed by the board of directors, and the board of directors shall fill all vacancies in the board of appraisers, or may appoint a new board for subsequent appraisals, as occasion may require. Such new board, if appointed, shall fill all the requirements of the board of appraisers of the district, and perform its duties.

Appraisal of benefits and damages.

§ 25. When the official plan is adopted and filed with the secretary of the district and said appraisers have been appointed he shall at once notify the board of appraisers, and they shall thereupon proceed to appraise the benefits of every kind to all real property within or without the district, which will result from the organization of said district and the execution of the official plan; and also to appraise the damages sustained and the value of the land and other property necessary to be taken by the district for which settlement has not been made by the board of directors. In the progress of their work, they shall have the assistance of the attorney, engineers, secretary and other agents and employees of the board of directors.

The board of appraisers shall also appraise the benefits and damages, if any, accruing to property or interests in properties of cities, counties and other public corporations, and to the state of California.

Appraisal of property for purchase.

Before appraisals of compensation and damages are made, the directors of the district may report to the appraisers the parcels of land or other property, or any other works to be done, included within the powers granted under the act they may wish to purchase and for which they may wish appraisals to be made, both for easement and for purchase in fee simple. The board may, if it deems best, specify in case of any property the particular purpose for which and the extent to which an easement in the same is desired, describing definitely such purpose and extent. The appraisers shall appraise all damages which may, because of the execution of the official plan, accrue to real or other property either within or without the district, which damages shall also represent easements acquired by the district for all the purposes of the district, unless otherwise specifically stated. Upon such appraisals being confirmed by the board of directors, the board of directors of the district shall have the option of paying the entire appraised value of the property and acquiring full title to it (in fee simple), or of paying only the cost of such easement for the purposes of the district. The appraisers in appraising benefits and damages shall consider only the effect of the execution of the official plan. The appraisers in making appraisals shall give due consideration and credit to any other works or other systems of reclamation already constructed, or under construction, which form a useful part of the work of the district according to the official plan. Where the appraisers return no appraisal of damages to any property, it shall be deemed a finding by them that no damage will be sustained.

Lands outside district.

§ 26. If the appraisers find the lands or other property not embraced within the boundaries of the district will be affected by the proposed improvement, or should be included in the district, they shall appraise the benefits and damages to such land, and shall file notice with the board of directors of the appraisal which they have made upon the lands beyond the boundaries of the district.

Report of board of appraisers.

§ 27. The board of appraisers shall prepare a report of its findings which shall be arranged in tabular form and bound in book form, and which shall be known as the conservancy appraisal record. Such record shall contain the names of the owners of property appraised as it may appear on the last assessment roll of the county, a description of the property appraised, the amount of benefits appraised, the amount of damages appraised, and the appraised value of land or other property which may be taken for the purposes of the district. They shall also report any other benefits or damages or any other matter which in their opinion should be brought to the attention of the board of directors. No error in the names of the owners of real property or in the descriptions thereof shall invalidate said appraisal or the levy of assessments or taxes based thereon, if sufficient description is given to identify such real property.

When their report is completed, it shall be signed by at least a majority of the appraisers and filed with the secretary.

Notice of hearing on appraisals.

§ 28. Upon the filing of the report of the appraisers, the secretary of the district shall give notice thereof by publication. Said notice shall be substantially as in form six of the schedules hereto attached. It shall not be necessary for said secretary to name the parties interested.

Description of lands.

It shall not be necessary to describe the separate lots or tracts of land in giving said notice, but it shall be sufficient to give such descriptions as will enable him, the owner, to determine whether or not his land is covered by such description. For instance, it will be sufficient to state "all land lying in block of the town of," or, "all land abutting on street in the town of," or "all land lying west of river and east of railroad in township," or any other general description pointing out the lands involved and identifying the same.

Where lands in different counties are mentioned in said report it shall not be necessary to publish a description of all the lands in the district in each county, but only of that part of the said lands situate in the county in which publication is made.

Hearing of objections.

§ 29. Any property owner may accept the appraisals of benefits and of damages and of lands to be taken made by the appraisers, or may acquiesce in their failure to appraise damages, and shall be construed to have done so unless he shall within ten days after the last publication provided for in the preceding section file objections to said report. All objections shall be heard by the board of directors, beginning not less than twenty nor more than thirty days after the last publication provided for herein, and determined in advance of other business so as to carry out, liberally, the purposes and needs of the district. The board of directors, if it deem necessary, may alter or amend said report in accordance with such objection or any of them, or may return the report to the board of appraisers for their further consideration and amendments, and enter its order to that effect. If, however, the appraisal roll as a whole is referred back to the appraisers, the board of directors shall not resume the hearing thereof without due notice, as for an original hearing thereon.

Approval of report. Disorganization of district on disapproval of report.

§ 30. If it appears to the satisfaction of the board of directors after having heard and determined all said objections that the estimated cost of constructing the improvement contemplated in the official plan is less than the benefits appraised, then the said board shall approve and confirm said appraisers' report as filed or as so modified and amended. In case the board of directors shall find that the benefits appraised are less than the estimated total costs, it shall report the fact to the board of supervisors who shall disorganize the district after having provided for the payment of all expenditures by an order of said board abandoning all proceedings.

Condemnation of property.

§ 31. If after the approval of the appraisers' report the said board of directors deems it necessary to proceed by condemnation to acquire for the district property to carry out the official plan of the district, it may proceed so to do, under and by virtue of the laws of the state of California, and the passage of a resolution by said board that the lands to be acquired are for a public use shall be conclusive of that fact.

Alterations or additions to plan.

§ 32. The board of directors may at any time before the conclusion of the hearing thereon and the approval by the state engineer, when necessary to fulfill the objects for which the district was created, alter or add to the official plan as in section eleven provided, and when such alterations or additions are formally approved by the said board and by the state engineer and are filed with the secretary, they shall become parts of the official plan for all purposes of this act. Where such alterations or additions in the judgment of the said board neither materially modify the general character of the work, nor materially increase resulting damages for which the board is not able to make amicable settlement, nor increase the cost more than ten per cent, no reappraisal shall be necessary. In case the proposed alterations or additions in the opinion of the board materially modify the resulting damages or materially reduce the benefits, for which the board of directors is not able to make amicable settlement, or materially increase the benefits in such a manner as to require a new appraisal, or increase the cost more than ten per cent, the board of directors shall direct the board of appraisers (which may be the original board or a new board appointed by the board of directors) to appraise the property to be taken, benefited or damaged, by the proposed alterations or additions. Upon the completion of the report thereon by the board of appraisers notice shall be given and a hearing had on their report in the same manner as in the case of the original report of the board of appraisers; provided, that where only a few landowners are affected, the secretary of the district may, on order of the board of directors, if found by them to be more economical and convenient, give personal notice to such landowners of the hearing of the report of said appraisers, instead of notice by publication; and provided, that when the only question at issue is additional damages or reduction of benefits to property, due to modifications or additions to the plans, the board of directors may, if they find it practicable, make settlements with the owners of the property damaged or benefited, instead of having appraisals made by the board of appraisers. In case such settlements are made, notice and hearing need not be had. After bonds have been sold, in order that their security may not be impaired, no reduction shall be made in the aggregate amount of benefits appraised against property in the district.

Validity of proceeding not affected by fault.

§ 33. No fault in any notice or other proceedings shall affect the validity of any proceeding under this act except to the extent to which it can be shown that such fault resulted in a material denial of justice to the property owner complaining of such fault if any appraisal of benefits shall be declared ineffectual by any court.

The board of directors may render a finding as to the amount of benefits to said property, and appraise the proper benefits accordingly, and thereupon said land shall be assessed according to such benefits.

District funds.

§ 34. The moneys of every conservancy district organized hereunder shall consist of four separate funds: (1) Preliminary fund, by which is meant the proceeds of the ad valorem tax authorized by this act and such advancements as may be made from the general county funds as provided in this act; (2) bond fund, by which is meant a fund raised by the issuance and sale of bonds of the district; (3) improvement warrant fund, by which is meant the proceeds of levies made against the special assessments of benefits equalized and confirmed under the provisions of this act; and (4) maintenance fund, which is a special assessment to be levied annually for the purpose of upkeep, administration and current expenses as hereinafter provided. It is intended that the cost of preparing the official plan, the appraisal (except as paid out of the preliminary fund) and the entire cost of construction and superintendence, including all charges incidental thereto, and the cost of administration during the period of construction, shall be paid out of the bond fund.

No vouchers shall be drawn against the preliminary fund (except for advances from the general county funds) or against the maintenance fund until a tax-levying resolution shall have been properly recommended by the board of directors and passed by the board of supervisors and duly entered upon its records; no bonds shall be issued against the bond fund until a tax-levying resolution shall have been properly recommended by the board of directors and passed by the board of supervisors and duly entered upon its records; no moneys shall be transferred from the improvement warrant fund except by order of the board of supervisors, upon recommendation of the board of directors.

§ 35. If the district is not organized, then the costs of publication and other official costs of the proceedings shall be collected by the county from the petitioners or their bondsmen, paid into the county treasury and there held in a separate fund against which warrants may be audited and drawn on the order of the board of supervisors, as other warrants of the county are audited and drawn. Upon the organization of the district, the board of supervisors shall make an order indicating a preliminary division of the preliminary expenses between the counties included in the district in approximately the proportions of interest of the various counties as may be estimated by said board of supervisors. And the board of supervisors of each respective county shall issue an order to the auditor of its respective county to issue his warrant for the pro rata amount to be paid that county, upon the treasurer of his county to reimburse the county having paid the total cost; provided, however, that the joint board of supervisors shall first determine at a previous meeting the pro rata amount to be borne by each county and shall determine the same upon a basis of the assessed value of property benefited in the district in each county.

Advance of funds by counties.

Expenses incurred thereafter prior to the receipt of money by the district from taxes or assessments, bond sales, or otherwise, shall be paid from the general funds of the respective counties proportionately upon the order of the board of supervisors, and shall be paid upon certification of the clerk of the board of supervisors of such order, specifying the amount and purpose of the claims to the auditor of each county, who shall thereupon at once issue his warrant to the treasurer of his county. Upon receipt of funds by the district from the sale of bonds or by taxation or assessment the funds so advanced by the counties shall be repaid.

Tax levy for incidental expenses.

As soon as any district shall have been organized under this act, and a board of directors shall have been elected and qualified, such board of directors shall recommend to the board of supervisors and the board of supervisors shall have the power and authority to levy upon the property within the district an assessment not to exceed three-tenths of a mill on each one hundred dollars of the assessed valuation thereof as a level rate to be used for the purpose of paying expenses of organization, for surveys and plans, and for other incidental expenses which may be necessary up to the time money is received from the sale of bonds or otherwise. This assessment shall be certified to the auditors of the various counties having property within the district and by them to the respective treasurers of their counties. If such items of expense have already been paid in whole or in part from other sources, they may be repaid from the receipts of such levy, and such levy may be made although the work proposed may have been found impracticable or for other reasons is abandoned. The tax collector shall at once proceed to collect said assessment and the collection of such assessment levy shall conform in all matters to the collection of taxes and assessments for the district outlined in this act, and the same provisions concerning the non-payment of taxes shall apply. In case a district is disbanded for any cause whatever before the work is contracted, the data, plans and estimates which have been secured shall be filed with the clerk of the board of supervisors with which the petition thereupon was filed, and shall be matters of public record available to any person interested.

Interest on unpaid warrants.

§ 36. If any warrant issued by the board of directors is presented for payment and is not paid for want of funds in the treasury, that fact with the date of refusal shall be endorsed on the back of such warrant, and said warrant shall thereafter draw interest at the rate of six per cent, until such time as there is money in the treasury of said district sufficient to pay the amount of said warrant with interest.

Bond issue to complete works.

§ 37. At any time after the adoption of the original official plan the board of directors may by majority vote of said board adopt and enter on their minutes a resolution estimating the amount of money needed to complete the works according to said official plan and authorizing and directing a petition to be filed with the board of supervisors of the county in which the original petition for the organization of the district was filed, requesting that a special election be called to submit to the electors of the district qualified under this act the question of incurring an indebtedness in the amount specified in said resolution. Said petition shall set forth the amount of bonds to be issued, the rate of interest to be paid, which shall not exceed six per cent per annum and in general terms the objects and purposes for which the indebtedness is to be incurred. After the filing of said petition the board of supervisors shall without delay call a special election and submit to the electors of said district, qualified under the provisions of this act, the proposition of incurring a bonded debt in the amount estimated by the board for the construction of the works in accordance with said official plan.

Additional issues.

If the amount of money provided in the original bond issue is not sufficient to complete the work according to the official plan nothing herein contained shall prohibit the board of directors from filing petitions for additional issues of bonds in the same form and manner hereinabove set forth for the original issue of bonds. The plan and procedure for the original issue of bonds shall be followed for all subsequent issues of bonds.

Ordinance calling election. Rate of interest.

Said board of supervisors shall call such special election by ordinance, and shall recite therein the objects and purposes for which the indebtedness is proposed to be incurred; provided, that it shall be sufficient to give a brief general description of such objects and purposes, and refer to the official plan on file for particulars; and said ordinance shall also state the estimated cost of the proposed work and improvements, the amount of the principal of the indebtedness to be incurred therefor, and what part of such indebtedness shall be paid each and every year, and which shall be not less than one-fortieth of the whole amount of such indebtedness, and the rate of interest to be paid on said indebtedness, and shall fix the date on which such special election shall be held, the manner of holding the same and the manner of voting for or against incurring such indebtedness. The rate of interest to be paid on such indebtedness shall not exceed six per centum per annum.

Election precincts.

For the purposes of said election, said board of supervisors shall in said ordinance establish election precincts within the boundaries of the said district, and may form election precincts by consolidating the precincts established for general election purposes in said district to a number not exceeding six for each such bond election precinct, and shall designate a polling place and appoint two inspectors, two judges and two clerks for each of such precincts.

In all particulars not recited in such ordinance, such election shall be held as nearly as practicable in conformity with the general election laws of the state.

Said board of supervisors shall cause so much of said official plan as covers a general description of the work to be done, and the map showing the location of the proposed work and improvements, to be printed at least thirty days before the date fixed for such election, and a copy thereof furnished to every elector of said district qualified under the provisions of this act who shall apply for the same.

Publication of ordinance.

Said ordinance calling such election shall, prior to the date set for such election, be published ten times in a daily, or four times in a weekly, newspaper of general circulation, printed and published in said district, and designated by said board of supervisors for said purpose. No other notice of such election need be given.

Any defect or irregularity in the proceedings prior to the calling of such election shall not affect the validity of the bonds.

Majority vote. Form of bonds. Sale of bonds. Tax to pay principal and interest.

If at such election a majority of the votes cast are in favor of incurring such bonded indebtedness, then bonds of said district for the amount stated in such proceedings shall be issued and sold as in this act provided. All bonds issued under this act shall mature serially in equal annual amounts of not less than one-fortieth part of the aggregate principal in each year, and their principal and interest shall be made payable at the county treasurer's office of the main county; in United States gold coin. The board of supervisors by an order entered upon its minutes shall prescribe the form of said bonds, and of the interest coupons attached thereto; the denominations of the bonds, which shall be not less than one hundred dollars nor more than one thousand dollars; the dates of payment of principal and interest, and the serial numbering of the bonds and coupons. Said bonds shall be signed on behalf of the district by the chairman of the board of supervisors of the main county and by the auditor of said county, and the coupons shall be signed by the engraved or lithographed facsimile signature of such auditor; and when so signed said bonds and coupons shall be delivered for safe keeping to the county treasurer of said main county, who shall deliver them to the purchaser or purchasers thereof on receipt of the purchase price. If any officer signing shall cease to be such officer before the delivery of the bonds to the purchaser, such signature shall nevertheless be valid and effectual. Said bonds shall be sold in the manner prescribed by the board of supervisors, but for not less than par, and the proceeds of sale thereof, including any premium received at such sale, shall be deposited in the county treasury to the credit of the construction fund of the district. Payments from said fund shall be made by the county treasurer upon demands signed by the president and secretary of the district and approved by resolution of the board of directors, each of which demands shall recite that it is drawn in payment of work to be done under said official plan, or for expense incidental thereto. Bonds issued under this act shall constitute a continuing lien upon all property within the district. The board of supervisors shall levy a tax each year upon the taxable property in such district, sufficient (when added to the district bond fund in the county treasury available therefor) to pay the annual interest on said bonds, and also such part of the principal thereof necessary to be collected as will become due before the collection of the next general tax levy. Such tax shall be levied and collected on such property in each county containing any part of the district at the time and in the same manner as the general tax levy for county purposes, and when collected shall be paid by the treasurer of each county into the county treasury of the main county to the credit of the district bond fund, to be used for the payment of the principal and interest of said bonds and for no other purpose. The treasurer shall pay therefrom the principal and interest of said district bonds in the manner provided by law for payment of county bonds.

The provisions of the Political Code prescribing the manner and effect of levying, equalizing and collecting taxes, the sale of property for delinquency, and the redemption from such sale, and the duties of the several county officers in respect thereto, so far as they do not conflict with the specific provisions of this act, are hereby adopted and made applicable to the levy and collection of said taxes for the payment of bonds. Such officers shall be liable on their official bonds for the faithful discharge of the duties imposed on them by this act.

Partial sale or pledge.

If at the time the bonds are ready to be issued, the board shall be of the opinion that such bonds can not advantageously be issued and sold in whole, the board may sell parts only for the entire issuer or may pledge all or part of said issue as collateral to a loan, but no partial sale or pledge shall be made without the order of the board made and entered of record, and no pledge shall be made at a greater margin than at the rate of one hundred dollars of bond principal for ninety dollars of loan.

The district may secure the payment of loans from the United States government in the same manner as it may secure the payment of bonds, and the board of directors may make any necessary regulations to provide for such payments.

Validity of bonds. Conversion into registered bond.

This act shall, without reference to any other act of the legislature of California, be full authority for the issuance and sale of the bonds in this act authorized, which bonds shall have all the qualities of negotiable paper under the law merchant, and when executed and sealed and certified to by the state treasurer in conformity with the provisions of this act, and when sold in the manner prescribed herein and the consideration therefor received by the district, shall not be invalid for any irregularity or defect in the proceedings for the issue and sale thereof, and shall be incontestible in the hands of bona fide purchasers or holders thereof for value. No proceedings in respect to the issuance of any such bonds shall be necessary except such as are required by this act. Whenever the owner of any coupon bond issued pursuant to the provisions of this act shall present such bond to the treasurer of the district with a request for the conversion of such bond into a registered bond, the said treasurer shall cut off and cancel the coupons of any such coupon bond so presented and shall stamp, print or write upon such coupon bond so presented, either upon the back or the face thereof, as may be convenient, a statement to the effect that the said bond is registered in the name of the owner and that thereafter the interest and principal of said bond are payable to the registered owner. Thereafter and from time to time, such bond may be transferred by such registered owner in person or by attorney duly authorized on presentation of such bond to the treasurer of the district and the bond again registered as before, a similar statement being stamped, printed or written thereon. Such statement stamped, printed or written upon any such bond may be substantially in the following form:

(Date, giving month, year and day.)

This bond is registered pursuant to the statutes in such case made and provided, in the name of (here insert name of owner), and the interest and principal thereof are hereafter payable to such owner.

Treasurer conservancy district.

If any bond shall be registered as aforesaid, the principal and interest of such bond shall be payable to the registered owner. The treasurer of the district shall enter in a register of said bonds to be kept by him or in a separate book, the fact of the registration of such bond and the name of the registered owner thereof, so that said registry or book shall at all times show what bonds are registered and the name of the registered owner thereof.

Bands [Bonds] legal investments.

§ 38. Bonds of any district issued pursuant to the provisions of this act which are investigated and approved by any commission or officer now or hereafter authorized by the laws of this state to conduct such investigation and give such approval and by authority of which approval said bonds are declared to be legal investments for savings banks may be lawfully purchased or received in pledge for loans by banks, trust companies, guardians, executors, administrators and special administrators, or by any public officer or officers of this state, or of any county, city, city and county or other municipal or corporate body within the state having or holding funds which they are allowed by law to invest or loan.

Improvement warrants.

§ 39. Upon the adoption of the report of appraisers hereinbefore referred to, the board of directors shall certify said report to the board of supervisors. The board of supervisors shall levy against the respective parcels of property within the district the sum set forth in said report of appraisers assessed to the respective parcels of property as therein set forth for special benefits. The board of supervisors shall thereupon issue what shall be known as improvement warrants, under the provisions of this act, to represent such special assessments against each parcel of land, in the form and manner and with the effect in this act provided. Said improvement warrants shall be numbered consecutively, their said numbers corresponding with the numbers given to the respective parcels of land as shown upon the map accompanying the general plan, and shall be deemed to refer to said map. The respective special assessments so levied, as evidenced by said improvement warrants, shall bear the same rate of interest per annum from the date of the issuance of the said warrants until paid as is borne by the district bonds hereinbefore authorized to be issued, and said interest, together with a sum equal to the first installment of principal, plus one per cent of said principal, shall be paid semiannually at the treasury of said district. Said assessments shall be apportioned by said board of supervisors over a period of twenty-six years, both principal and interest payable at the office of the treasury of said district. The said improvement warrants issued to evidence said assessments shall be attested by the seal of said district, and shall be signed by the secretary of the board of directors, and shall be a lien for the amount indicated on the face of such warrants, viz, the amount of said special assessment, together with accrued interest, if any, against the specific parcels of land to which the said improvement warrants respectively refer. Payment of the annual installment of the principal of said assessment, as evidenced by said improvement warrants, together with accrued interest, shall be due on the first day of July and January of each year, and the first payment shall be due on the first day of July next following the date of the issuance of such improvement warrant. In case of default in the payment of any installment of the principal provided for in said improvement warrant, or interest accrued on deferred payments, then and in that event the entire remaining unpaid installments shall become immediately due and payable, and the same, and all liens which are security therefor, may be collected and enforced as in this act provided. Said improvement warrants shall be in the following, or substantially the following form, and of effect as therein stated:

Form of improvement warrant.

This improvement warrant, known as and numbered improvement warrant number of the conservancy district, is issued to represent an assessment for benefits to the amount of $....., levied in the conservancy district, state of California. The amount herein stated is the amount assessed in said assessment against the lot or parcel of land numbered in the report of appraisers on file herein, and in the diagram attached thereto, and which said amount has been divided into fifty-two equal installments of principal, one installment of which, together with accrued interest, is to be paid semiannually, and which said amount, except as indicated on the back hereof, remains unpaid, and until entirely paid, with accrued interest, is a first lien upon the property affected thereby, and as the same is described herein and in said recorded assessment with its diagram, to wit, the lot or parcel of land in the conservancy district, county of, state of California, described as follows:.....

The term of this improvement warrant is twenty-six years from July 1, 19..., and at the expiration of said time the whole sum then unpaid, together with accrued interest, shall be due and payable, but on the first days of July and January of each year after the date hereof, an even semiannual proportion of its principal is due and payable until the whole is paid, with accrued interest, at the rate of per cent per annum. The interest on deferred payments is payable semiannually, on the first day of July and January in each year hereafter until paid, the first of which is due for the interest from date to the first day of July, 19..., and thereafter the interest payments are for the interest due on all deferred payments. Should default be made in the first or any succeeding payments of principal, or in any payment of interest by the owner of said lot or parcel, or anyone in his behalf, the district is entitled to declare the whole unpaid amount to be due and payable, and thereupon have a right to collect the same and to enforce all liens which are security therefor, as by law provided, and as in the case of unpaid state and county taxes.

Secretary of the board of directors of the.....conservancy district.

Amounts due on said improvement warrants shall be payable to the district treasurer, and no mistake or error in the description in said warrant or in the description of the lot or parcel of land assessed shall affect the validity of the lien of any improvement warrant, unless the mistake or error is such that the said lot or parcel of land can not be identified, and in such event, the same, by order of the board of directors, may be corrected upon application to the treasurer and to the officers or board who or which made the assessment to represent which such warrant is issued.

Record of improvement warrants.

§ 40. The treasurer of the district shall enter in a book kept for that purpose in his office a record of each improvement warrant issued hereunder, specifying the date of its issue, the amount for which issued, its duration, and a description of the lot or parcel against which issued. Payments of principal and interest on account of any warrant issued hereunder shall be made to the treasurer of the district, who shall keep a separate account of all such payments, entering the same in the record herein required to be kept, and credit the same on the back of the warrant, and place the same in appropriate funds for the payment of principal and interest of the improvement warrants on account of which paid.

Amount of warrant lien on property.

§ 41. Such warrants issued hereunder shall by their issuance be conclusive evidence of the regularity and validity of all proceedings thereto. The amount due upon any such improvement warrant shall be a lien upon the lot or parcel described in such improvement warrant, superior to all other liens, charges and encumbrances until paid, except the liens of prior assessments and of state, county and municipal taxes, assessments levied or assessed by statutory authority and taxes levied to pay off the principal and interest of the bonds hereinbefore referred to.

Improvement warrant fund.

§ 42. The proceeds derived from the payments of such improvement warrants shall be paid into what shall be known as the improvement warrant fund of the district, to represent, and shall represent, assessments for which said improvement warrants were issued. Upon recommendation of the board of directors, and upon order of the board of supervisors, proceeds received from the payment of the principal and interest of such improvement warrants shall be employed for the purpose of retiring the bonds of the district hereinbefore first authorized to be issued, and for no other purpose.

Sale of land on default of owner.

§ 43. Whenever, through the default of the owner of any lot or parcel of land against which any such improvement warrant or warrants is or are issued to represent the assessment and interest against such lot or parcel of land, payment of the principal or of the interest is not made when the same has become due, the treasurer of the district, upon order of the board of supervisors, shall proceed to advertise and sell said lot or parcel of land as herein provided, and provided there is money in any available fund so to do, the board of directors, in the name of the district, may buy in said lot or parcel of land. Thereupon the whole improvement warrant or its unpaid remainder, together with accrued interest, shall become due and payable immediately, and on the day following shall become delinquent.

Delinquent improvement warrants.

§ 44. If the payment of principal or interest of any improvement warrant issued shall become delinquent, as hereinbefore provided, the said treasurer shall publish twice in a newspaper of general circulation to be designated by him, published in the city where his office is situated, a notice which must contain the date and number of the delinquent improvement warrant, a description of the property mentioned in said warrant, and the name of the owner of such property, if known, and if unknown, the fact shall be so stated, the amount due thereon, and a statement that unless the amount of said improvement warrant and the interest due thereon, together with the cost of publication of such notice are paid, the real property described in said improvement warrant will be sold at public auction on a day to be therein fixed, which shall not be less than fifteen nor more than thirty days from the day of the first publication of said notice, and the place of such sale, which must be the office of the said treasurer. A like notice shall be served upon any such owner, if known, either personally or by depositing the same in the post office at such city, addressed to such owner at his address if known, with the postage thereon prepaid. At any time prior to the sale, the owner or person in possession of any real estate offered for sale under the provisions of this act, may pay the whole amount of said improvement warrant then due, with costs, and said improvement warrant and the assessment evidenced thereby shall thereupon be canceled; but in case such payment is not made by such owner, or person in possession, or by some one in behalf of such owner, or of the person in possession, the property subject thereto shall be sold at public auction, first, preferably to the district; secondly, if the district does not bid therefor, to the bidder offering to pay the amount due on the warrant with costs for the least portion of such lot or parcel of land offered for sale.

Affidavit of publication.

§ 45. The district treasurer, before the day of sale hereinafter provided for, must file with the secretary of the board of directors a copy of the publication, with an affidavit of the publisher of such newspaper or some one in his behalf attached thereto, that it is a true copy of the same, and that the publication was made in a newspaper, stating its name and place of publication, and the date of each appearance in which such publication was made, which affidavit is prima facie evidence of all the facts stated therein.

Added costs.

§ 46. The treasurer of the district must collect, in addition to the amount due on such improvement warrant, the cost of the publication of such notice, and fifty cents for the certificate of sale delivered to the purchaser as hereinafter provided.

Record of sale.

§ 47. The treasurer of the district, before delivering any certificate of sale, must, in a book kept in his office for that purpose, enter the date, number and series of the improvement warrant, a description of the land sold corresponding with the description in the certificate, the date of sale, purchaser's name, the amount paid, and regularly number the descriptions on the margins of the book, and put a corresponding number on each certificate. Such book must be open to public inspection during office hours when not in actual use, and he shall enter on the records and on the improvement warrant the words, "Canceled by sale of the property," giving the date of such sale.

Purchaser divested of lien.

§ 48. Immediately on the sale, the purchaser shall become vested with the lien on the property so sold to him to the extent of his bid, and is only divested of such lien by the payment to the treasurer of the district of the purchase money, including costs herein provided for, with interest thereon at the rate of one per cent per month from date of sale.

Redemption of property sold.

§ 49. A redemption of the property sold may be made by the owner of the property or any part in interest within twelve months from the date of purchase, or at any time prior to the application for a deed, as hereinafter provided. Redemption must be made in lawful money of the United States, and when made to the treasurer of the district he must credit the amount paid to the person named in his certificate and pay it on demand to him or his assignees.

Certificate of sale filed.

§ 50. On receiving the certificate of sale, the secretary must file it and make an entry in a book similar to that required of the treasurer of the district, the fee for which shall be fifty cents, and on presentation of the receipt of the treasurer of the district for the total amount of the redemption money, the secretary must, without charge, mark the word "Redeemed," the date, and by whom redeemed, on the margin of the book where the entry of the certificate is made.

Deed to property sold.

§ 51. If the property is not redeemed within the time allowed by the provisions of this act for its redemption, the treasurer of the district or his successor in office, upon application of the purchaser, or his assignee, must make to said purchaser or his assignee a deed to the property, reciting in the deed substantially the matter contained in the certificate, and that no person has redeemed the property during the time allowed for its redemption. The treasurer shall be entitled to receive from the purchaser two dollars for making said deed, which shall be deposited in the treasury of the district for the use of the district after payment has been made therefrom for the acknowledgment of said deed; provided, however, that the purchaser of the property, or his assignee or agent, must, thirty days prior to the expiration of the time of the redemption, or thirty days before his application for a deed, serve upon the owner or agent of the property purchased, if named in such certificate of sale, and upon the party occupying the property if the property is occupied, a written notice, stating that said property, or a portion thereof, has been sold to satisfy the improvement warrant lien, and stating the date of sale, the number, the amount then due, and the time when the right of redemption will expire, or when the purchaser will apply for a deed, and the owner of the property shall have the right of redemption indefinitely until such notice shall have been given and such deed applied for, upon the payment of the fees, penalties and costs in this act required. In case of unoccupied property, a similar notice must be posted in a conspicuous place upon the property at least thirty days before the purchaser applies for a deed, and no deed to the property sold in accordance with the provisions of this act shall be issued by the treasurer of the district to the purchaser of such property until such purchaser shall have filed with such treasurer an affidavit showing that the notice hereinbefore required to be given has been given as herein required, which said affidavit shall be filed and preserved by the said treasurer as other records kept by him in his office. Such purchaser shall be entitled to receive the sum of fifty cents for his services of such notice and the making of such affidavit, which sum of fifty cents shall be paid by the redemptioner at the time and in the same manner as the other sums, costs and fees are paid.

Deed conclusive evidence of proceedings.

§ 52. The deed, when duly acknowledged or proven, shall be conclusive evidence of all things which the improvement warrant upon which it is based is conclusive evidence and prima facie evidence of the regularity of all proceedings subsequent to the issue of the warrant, and conveys to the grantee the absolute right to the lands described therein, free of all encumbrances except the lien for state, county and municipal taxes and assessments levied or assessed by statutory authority.

Paying off warrant.

§ 53. Nothing in this act contained shall be construed to deprive any person or persons whose land has been assessed, as evidenced by said improvement warrants, of the privilege of paying off and having said warrant canceled by the payment of the principal and accrued interest of said warrant at any time when payments may be made during the life of said warrant.

Conservancy maintenance assessment.

§ 54. To maintain, operate and preserve the reservoirs, ditches, drains, dams, levees, settling basins or settling wells, canals or other improvements made pursuant to this act and to strengthen, repair and restore the same, when needed, and for the purpose of defraying the current expenses of the district, the board of directors may recommend, and the board of supervisors upon such recommendation may upon the substantial completion of said improvements and on or before the first day of September in each year thereafter, levy an assessment upon each tract or parcel of land and upon property within the district, subject to assessments under this act, to be known as a "conservancy maintenance assessment." Said maintenance assessment shall be apportioned upon the basis of the total appraisal of benefits accruing for original and subsequent construction, and shall be levied, collected, audited and deposited in each county in which lands of said district are situate, in the same manner as county taxes are levied, collected, audited and deposited; provided, however, that said funds shall be deposited to the credit of the "conservancy maintenance assessment fund," hereby established.

The amount of the maintenance tax paid by any parcel of land shall not be credited against the benefits assessed against such parcel of land; but the maintenance tax shall be in addition to any tax that has been or can be levied against the benefit assessment.

Readjustment of appraisal of benefits.

§ 55. Whenever the owners or representatives of twenty-five per cent or more of the acreage or value of the lands in the district shall file a petition with the clerk of the district, stating that there has been a material change in the values of the property in the district since the last previous appraisal of benefits, and praying for readjustment of the appraisal of benefits for the purpose of making a more equitable basis for the levy of the maintenance assessment, the said clerk shall give notice of the filing and hearing of said petition in the manner hereinbefore provided.

Upon hearing of said petition if said board of directors shall find there has been a material change in the value of property in said district since the last previous appraisal of benefits, the board of directors shall order that there be a readjustment of the appraisal of benefits for the purpose of providing a basis upon which to levy the maintenance assessment of said district. Thereupon the board of directors shall direct the appraisers of the conservancy district to make such readjustment of appraisal in the manner provided in this act, and said appraisers shall make their report; and the same proceedings shall be had thereon, as nearly as may be, as are herein provided for the appraisal of benefits accruing for original construction; provided, that in making the readjustment of the appraisal of benefits said appraisals shall not be limited to the aggregate amount of the original or any previous appraisal of benefits, and that after the making of such readjustment the limitation of the annual maintenance assessment to one per cent of the total appraised benefits shall apply to the amount of the benefits as readjusted; and provided, further, that there shall be no such readjustment of benefits oftener than once in six years.

Invalid assessments.

§ 56. If any assessment made pursuant to the provisions of this act shall prove invalid, the board of directors shall by subsequent or amended acts or proceedings promptly and without delay remedy all defects or irregularities as the case may require by making and providing for the collection of new taxes or assessments or otherwise.

Collection of tax levied against county or city.

§ 57. Whenever, under the provisions of this act, an assessment is made or a tax levied against a county or city, it shall be the duty of the governing or taxing body of such political subdivision, upon receipt of the order of the board of directors which established the district, confirming the appraisal of benefits and the assessment based thereon, to receive and file the said order, and to immediately take all the legal and necessary steps to collect the same. It shall be the duty of the said governing or taxing body or persons to levy and assess a tax, by a uniform rate upon all the taxable property within the political subdivision, to make out the proper duplicate, certify the same to the auditor of the county in which such subdivision is, whose duty it shall be to receive the same, certify the same for collection to the tax collector of the county, whose duty it shall be to collect the same for the benefit of the conservancy district, all of said officers above named being authorized and directed to take all the necessary steps for the levying, collecting and distribution of such tax.

Nothing in this section shall prevent the assessment of the real estate of other corporations or persons situated within such political subdivision, which may be subject to assessment for special benefits to be received.

Designation of district.

Every conservancy district formed or established under the provisions of this act, must be designated by the name and under the style of, conservancy district (using the name of the district), of, county, (using the name of the county in which such district is situated), and in that name the board of supervisors may make and award contracts, and may sue and be sued.

Dissolution of district.

The district may at any time be dissolved upon the vote of two-thirds of the qualified electors thereof voting at an election called by the board of supervisors, upon the question of dissolution. Upon a petition signed by fifty or more property owners and residents of such conservancy district, or by thirty-three per cent of the property owners and residents, asking for the dissolution of said district, the board of supervisors shall within thirty days after receiving said petition, by resolution, order that an election be held in the said district, for the determination of the question. Such election shall be called and conducted in the same manner as other elections of the district. Upon such dissolution, any property which may have been acquired by such conservancy district shall vest in the board of supervisors of the county wherein such conservancy district is situated; provided, however, that if at the time of the election to dissolve such district there be any outstanding indebtedness of such district, then, in such event, the vote to dissolve such district shall dissolve the same for all purposes excepting only the levy and collection of taxes for the payment of such outstanding indebtedness; and from the time such district is thus dissolved, until such indebtedness is fully paid, satisfied and discharged, the board of supervisors is hereby constituted ex officio the governing board of such district. And it is hereby made obligatory upon such board to levy such taxes and perform such other acts as may be necessary in order to raise money for the payment of such indebtedness, as herein provided.

Liens not affected by dissolution. Duty of officers in event of dissolution.

In the event of any dissolution or disincorporation of any conservancy district organized pursuant to the provisions of this act, such dissolution or disincorporation shall not affect the lien of any assessment for benefits imposed pursuant to the provisions of this act, or the liability of any land or lands in such district to the levy of any future assessments for the purpose of paying the principal and interest of any bonds issued hereunder, and in that event, or in the event of any failure on the part of the officers of any district to qualify and act, or in the event of any resignations or vacancies in office, which shall prevent action by the said district or by its proper officers, it shall be the duty of the county tax collector and of all other officers charged in any manner with the duty of assessing, levying and collecting taxes for public purpose in any county, in which said lands shall be situated, to do and perform all acts which may be necessary and requisite to the collection of any such assessment which may have been imposed and to the levying, imposing and collecting of any assessment which it may be necessary to make for the purpose of paying the principal and interest of the said bonds. Any holder of any bonds issued pursuant to the provisions of this act or any person or officers being a party in interest, may either at law or in equity by suit, action or mandamus, enforce and compel performance of the duties required by this act of any of the officers or persons mentioned in this act.

Failure of tax collector to make prompt payment, § 58. If any county tax collector or other person entrusted with the collection of these assessments refuses, fails or neglects to make prompt payment of the tax or any part thereof collected under this act to the treasurer of said district upon his presentation of a proper demand, then he shall pay a penalty of ten per cent on the amount of his delinquency; such penalty shall at once become due and payable and both he and his securities shall be liable therefor on his official bond.

Use of surplus funds.

§ 59. Any surplus funds in the treasury of the district may be used, upon resolution of the board of directors for retiring bonds, reducing the rate of assessment to purchase lands sold for taxes or assessments as hereinbefore provided, or for accomplishing any other of the legitimate objects of the district.

Report to board of supervisors.

At least once a year, or oftener if the board of supervisors shall so order, the board of directors shall make a report to the board of supervisors of its proceedings and an accounting of receipts and disbursements to that date which shall be filed with the clerk of the board of supervisors. Thereupon the board of supervisors shall order the auditing of said accounts by public accountants of recognized standing who shall file their report thereon with the clerk of the board of supervisors.

Per diem and expenses of directors and appraisers.

§ 60. Each member of the board of directors shall receive not to exceed ten dollars a day and his necessary traveling expenses, when away from home, for the time actually employed in performing his duties. Each appraiser shall receive not to exceed ten dollars a day and his expenses for the time actually employed in his duties.

Land in more than one district.

§ 61. The same land, if conducive to public health, safety, convenience or welfare, may be included in more than one district and be subject to the provisions of this act for each and every district in which it may be included; provided, that no district shall be organized under this act in whole or in part within the territory of a district already organized under this act until the board or joint boards of supervisors determine whether the public health, safety, convenience or welfare demand the organization of an additional district, or whether it demand that the territory proposed to be organized into an additional district shall be added to the existing district; and in case the proceedings concerning two or more such districts are before the board of supervisors of two or more counties, such determination shall be as provided in the next section.

Conference of supervisors to determine jurisdiction of districts.

§ 62. In case any district or districts are being organized within, or partly within and partly without, the same territory in which some other district or districts have been or are being organized, the board of supervisors of every such county in which such districts have been or are being organized shall confer at the earliest convenient moment after they ascertain the possibility of a conflict in jurisdiction, the sitting to be had in the county having the largest assessed valuation in the proposed district or districts, anything to the contrary herein stated notwithstanding.

At such conference, the several supervisors shall determine to what extent the several districts should be consolidated, or to what extent the boundaries should be adjusted in order to most fully carry out the purposes of this act; and they shall by suitable orders make such determination effective. At such conferences, the decision of the majority of the supervisors shall be necessary for the determination of any matter.

The provisions of this, and of the preceding section shall not operate to delay or to interrupt any proceeding under this act until the question of jurisdiction has been finally determined by the court or courts.

Subdistricts.

§ 63. Whenever it is desired to construct improvements wholly within any district organized under this act, which improvements will affect only a part of said district, for the purpose of accomplishing such work, subdistricts may be organized upon petition of the owners of real property, within the district, which petition shall fulfill the same requirements concerning the subdistricts as the petition outlined in this act is required to fulfill concerning the organization of the main district, and shall be filed with the clerk of the same board of supervisors, and shall be accompanied by a bond as provided for in this act in the first instance. All proceedings relating to the organization of such subdistricts shall conform in all things to the provisions of this act relating to the organization of districts, including also the provision in regard to holding an election excepting as to an election of directors. Whenever the board of supervisors shall by its order duly entered of record declare and decree such subdistricts to be organized, the clerk of said board shall thereupon give notice of such order to the directors of the district, who shall thereupon act also as directors of the subdistrict. Thereafter, the proceedings in reference to the subdistrict shall in all matters conform to the provisions of this act, with the same officers, directors and appraisers; except that in appraisal of benefits and damages for the purposes of such subdistricts, in the issuance of bonds, in the levying of assessments or taxes, and in all other matters affecting only the subdistrict, the provisions of this act shall apply to this subdistrict as though it were an independent district, and it shall not, in these things, be amalgamated with the main district.

Officers of main district to serve.

The board of directors, board of appraisers, chief engineer, attorney, secretary and other officers, agents and employees of the district shall, so far as it may be necessary, serve in the same capacities for such subdistrict, and contracts and agreements between the main district and the subdistrict may be made in the same manner as contracts and agreements between two districts. The distribution of administrative expense between the main district and subdistrict shall be in proportion to the interests involved and the amount of service rendered, such division to be made by the board of directors with an appeal to the board of supervisors establishing the district. This section shall not be held to prevent the organization of independent districts for local improvements under other laws within the limits of a district organized under this act.

Protection of works.

§ 64. The board of directors shall have the right to police the works of the district, and in times of great emergency may compel assistance in the protection of such works, and shall, also, have the right to prevent persons, vehicles or live stock from passing over the works of the district in any manner which would result in damage thereto.

Penalty for injuring bench marks, etc.

§ 65. The wilful destruction, injury or removal of any bench marks, witness marks, stakes or other reference marks, placed by the surveyors or engineers of the district or by contractors in constructing the works of the district, shall be a misdemeanor, punishable by a fine not exceeding one hundred dollars.

Liability for damages.

§ 66. All persons and corporations shall be liable for damages done to works of the district by themselves, their agents, their employees, or by their live stock, in the same manner, and punishable in the same manner as persons and corporations are liable for damage committed to property or works belonging to private persons.

Districts for forestation and reforestation.

§ 67. Districts may be formed under the provisions of this act for forestation and reforestation of the lands leased or owned by said district or upon federal or state lands upon receiving proper permits therefor, when deemed necessary for and incidental to the conservation or control of flood waters against damage by floods, by a substantial compliance with the terms of this act. But no such district in its construction or operation shall in any manner interfere with works for the prevention of floods, or the drainage of lands, or materially diminish their protective value. And the board of supervisors organizing such district for the conservation of water by forestation or reforestation solely, shall require a statement in the petition and proof of the effect that the organization and operation of the same will not materially interfere with any works or plans for flood prevention or the drainage or protection of lands, but will assist in preventing such damage. Nor shall any improvement under this act deprive the owners of lands lying upon any streams of water, of the ordinary flow in said stream without compensation therefor.

Subject to the above, the board of directors shall have the same powers as are herein conferred generally by its provisions so far as applicable.

If notice is not properly given.

§ 68. In any and every case where a notice is provided for in this act, if the board of directors finds for any reason that due notice was not given, the board of directors shall not thereby lose jurisdiction, and the proceeding in question shall not thereby be void; but the board of directors shall in that case order due notice to be given, and shall continue the hearing until such time as such notice shall be properly given, and thereupon shall proceed as though notice had been properly given in the first instance.

In case any individual appraisal or appraisals, assessment or assessments, or levy or levies, shall be held void for want of legal notice, or in case the board may determine that any notice with reference to any land or lands may be faulty, then a petition may be filed with the board of directors asking that the board of directors order notice to the owner of such land or lands given and set a time for hearing as provided in this act. And in case the original notice as a whole was sufficient, and was faulty only with reference to publication as to certain tracts, only the owners of and persons interested in those particular tracts need be notified by such subsequent notice. And if the publication of any notice in any county was defective or not made in time, publication of the defective notice need be had only in the county in which the defect occurred.

Early hearing on question of validity.

§ 69. All cases in which there arises a question of the validity of the organization of conservancy districts shall be advanced as a matter of immediate public interest and concern, and heard in all courts at the earliest practicable moment.

Construction of act.

§ 70. This act being necessary for securing the public health, safety, convenience or welfare, and being necessary for the prevention of great loss of life and for the security of public and private property from floods and other uncontrolled waters, it shall be liberally construed to effect the control and conservation and drainage of the waters of this state.

Constitutionality.

§ 71. In case any section or sections or part of any section of this act shall be found to be unconstitutional, the remainder of the act shall not thereby be invalidated, but shall remain in full force and effect.

Alternative act.

§ 72. All existing laws of the state and parts of laws relating to drainage, flood control, protection from storm waters, irrigation and subjects of which this act treats, shall not be in any other way affected by this act, but this act shall be treated and shall be in effect an alternative act thereto.

Jurisdiction of supervisors over proceeding.

§ 73. For the sake of convenience:

(a) In any orders of the board of supervisors, the words, "the board of supervisors now here finds that it hath jurisdiction of the parties to and of the subject matter of this proceeding," shall be equivalent to a finding that each jurisdictional act necessary to confer plenary jurisdiction upon the board of supervisors beginning with the proper signing and filing of the initial petition to the date of the order to meet every legal requirement imposed by this act, has been conferred.

Bonding resolution.

(b) No other or further evidence of the legal disposition of the special assessment to the payment of the bonds shall be required than the passage of a bonding resolution by the board of directors recommending to the board of supervisors the issuance of bonds in accordance therewith.

Abbreviations.

(c) In the preparation of any assessment or appraisal roll the usual abbreviations employed by engineers, surveyors and abstractors may be used.

Land described by reference to record.

(d) Where properly to describe any parcel of land, it would be necessary to use a long description, the appraisers after locating the land generally, may refer to the book and page of the public record of any instrument to which the land is described, which reference shall suffice to identify for all the purposes of that act the land described in the public record so referred to.

Unnecessary to specify names in notice.

(e) It shall not be necessary in any notice required by this act to be published to specify the names of the owners of the lands or of the persons interested therein; but any such notice may be addressed, "to all persons interested" with like effect as though such notice named by name every owner, of any lands within the territory specified in the notice and every person interested therein, and every lienor, actual or inchoate.

District a political subdivision.

(f) Every district declared to be a conservancy district in accordance with this act shall thereupon become a political subdivision and a public corporation of the state of California, invested with all the powers and privileges conferred upon such districts by this act.

Powers of state commissions not limited.

Nothing in this act stated shall be construed to limit or abridge the rights and powers now vested in the railroad commission of the state of California, the water commission of the state of California, the reclamation board, any other commission, officer or agency created by law, and all things herein enumerated to be done shall be performed subject to and in compliance with the authority now vested or hereafter to be vested by law in such commission, board, officer or agency, anything appearing herein notwithstanding.

Form of procedure.

§ 74. The following forms may suffice to illustrate the character of the procedure contemplated by this act; and if substantially complied with, those things being changed which (to meet the requirements of the particular case) should be changed, such procedure shall be held to meet the requirements of this act.

ACT 946. UNION LABOR INJUNCTIONS.

947. CONSPIRACY AGAINST THE PERSON OF THE PRESIDENT AND OTHER OFFICIALS.

UNION LABOR INJUNCTIONS.

ACT 946—An act to limit the meaning of the word "conspiracy," and also the use of "restraining orders" and "injunctions," as applied to disputes between employerz and employees in the state of California.

History: Approved March 20, 1903, Stats. 1903, p. 289.

Combinations in trade disputes not criminal when.

§ 1. No agreement, combination, or contract by or between two or more persons to do or procure to be done, or not to do or procure not to be done, any act in contemplation or furtherance of any trade dispute between employers and employees in the state of California shall be deemed criminal, nor shall those engaged therein be indictable or otherwise punishable for the crime of conspiracy, if such act committed by one person would not be punishable as a crime, nor shall such agreement, combination, or contract be considered as in restraint of trade or commerce, nor shall any restraining order or injunction be issued with relation thereto. Nothing in this act shall exempt from punishment, otherwise than as herein excepted, any persons guilty of conspiracy, for which punishment is now provided by any act of the legislature, but such act of the legislature shall, as to the agreements, combinations, and contracts hereinbefore referred to, be construed as if this act were therein contained; provided, that nothing in this act shall be construed to authorize force or violence, or threats thereof.

§ 2. This act shall take effect immediately.

1. Constitutionality—Special legislation—Special privileges and immunities.—If the act is to be construed so as to prohibit the court from granting preventive relief against irreparable injury done by a labor union in the course of a trade dispute, it would be void as special legislation (art. IV, § 25, subds. 3, 33, constitution), and as an attempt to grant special privileges and immunities to one class of citizens, not granted to all citizens.—Pierce v. Stablemen's Union, 156 Cal. 70, 103 Cal. 324.

2. Construction of act.—The act can not be construed to prohibit the court from enjoining the main wrongful acts committed by the parties in a trade dispute; but if it could be so construed, would, to that extent, be void, as violative of the constitutional right to acquire, possess, enjoy and protect property.—Goldberg, etc., Co. v. Stablemen's Union, 149 Cal. 429, 117 Am. St. Rep. 145, 9 Ann. Cas. 1219, 8 L. R. A. (N. S.) 460, 86 Pac. 806; Pierce v. Stablemen's Union, 156 Cal. 70, 103 Pac. 324.

Editor's Note: The legislature of 1850 passed the first act relating to corporations (April 22, 1850, Stats. 1850, p. 347). From that date to March 23, 1872, two days after the adoption of the Civil Code, but more than nine months prior to its taking effect, something like forty separate acts were passed and approved, covering practically every phase of the subject, a large proportion of which were amendatory and so called supplementary acts. The bulk of this mass of statutory law passed into the Civil Code on its adoption, and is no longer in force in its original form. Section 288 of the Civil Code expressly continues it in force as to corporations formed thereunder and in existence on the going into effect of the code. Section 287 authorized existing corporations to continue existence under the code, and it is assumed that many took advantage of the authority. Some did not, and their entire corporate existence and government, their rights and liabilities, all rested upon the statutes now under consideration; but, in view of the lapse of time, few or none of these corporations remain, or, if they are still in existence, they exist by reorganization and reincorporation under code provisions, and are, therefore, practically new corporations.

For this reason, all acts relating to corporations, enacted prior to January 1, 1873, when the Civil Code went into effect, are treated as of no longer any force, and are omitted. There are certain exceptions in particular instances, but where these occur, a proper note is made of the reason for the exception.

7. Double taxation.—The imposition of the state corporation license-tax is not double taxation.—Lewis v. Curry, 156 Cal. 93, 103 Pac. 493.

8. Unconstitutionality declared.—In conformity with the decisions of the supreme court of the United States in Baltic, etc., Co. v. Massachusetts and White, etc., Co. v. Massachusetts, it is held that the prepayment by a foreign corporation, engaged in both interstate and intrastate business in California, of the license tax prescribed by section 2 of the act of 1905, is exacted as a privilege or occupation tax exclusively upon the right to do domestic business; that it is an excise tax and not a property tax; that it is not based on, but measured by, the capital stock of the corporation; and that it is practicable to segregate the interstate and intrastate business of such a corporation; and that, therefore, for these reasons, such corporation is required to pay said license tax or fee.—Albert Pick & Co. v. Jordan, 169 Cal. 1, 2, Ann. Cas. 1916C, 1237, 145 Pac. 506.

9. Mulford Co. v. Curry, 163 Cal. 276, 125 Pac. 236, holding the act of 1905 unconstitutional, because imposing a direct burden upon interstate commerce, and an illegal tax upon property outside the state, declared to be no longer regarded as an authority in view of Baltic Min. Co. v. Massachusetts, and White Dental Mfg. Co. v. Massachusetts, 231 U. S. 48, 59 L. ed. 127, 34 Sup. Ct. 15, in which such exactions were declared to be valid.—Albert Pick & Co. v. Jordan, 169 Cal. 1, Ann. Cas. 1916C, 1237, 145 Pac. 506.

10. The conclusion of the court as to the unconstitutionality of the act is based upon the decisions of the supreme court of the United States in Western Union, etc., Co. v. Kansas, 216 U. S. 1, 54 L. ed. 355, 30 Sup. Ct. 190; Pullman Co. v. Kansas, 216 U. S. 56, 54 L. ed. 378, 30 Sup. Ct. 232; and Ludwig v. Western Union, etc., Co., 216 U. S. 146, 54 L. ed. 423, 30 Sup. Ct. 280.—H. K. Mulford Co. v. Curry, 163 Cal. 276, 281, 125 Pac. 236.

11. Rule of Ex parte Young, 209 U. S. 123, 52 L. ed. 714, 28 Sup. Ct. 441, 14 Ann. Cas. 764, 13 L. R. A. (N. S.) 932.—The act is not unconstitutional on the ground stated in Ex parte Young, 209 U. S. 123, 52 L. ed. 714, 28 Sup. Ct. 441, 14 Ann. Cas. 764, 13 L. R. A. (N. S.) 932.—Kaiser, etc., Co. v. Curry, 155 Cal. 638, 103 Pac. 341.

12. Same — Constitutionality depending upon complicated and technical investigation.—Where the validity of a legislative act depends upon a complicated and technical investigation, and at the same time imposes such severe penalties as to intimidate parties from resorting to the courts to test such validity, it is a practical denial of the equal protection of the law, and is unconstitutional.—Ex parte Young, 209 U. S. 123, 52 L. ed. 714, 28 Sup. Ct. 441, 14 Ann. Cas. 764, 13 L. R. A. (N. S.) 932.

13. Foreign corporations.—The act of 1905, commonly known as the corporation tax law, is, so far as foreign corporations are concerned, imposes a direct burden upon interstate commerce, as is unconstitutional as in violation of the commerce clause of the constitution of the United States.—H. K. Mulford Co. v. Curry, 163 Cal. 276, 281, 125 Pac. 236.

14. The conditions prescribed by the act as to foreign corporations are absolutely the same as to domestic corporations, and it is not obnoxious to section 15, article XII of the constitution as imposing more favorable conditions upon foreign corporations than upon domestic corporations.—Kaiser, etc., Co. v. Curry, 155 Cal. 638, 103 Pac. 341.

15. The act is unconstitutional as to foreign corporations although doing exclusively a domestic business.—H. K. Mulford Co. v. Curry, 163 Cal. 276, 286, 125 Pac. 236.

16. As to foreign corporations the charge is not a tax on property, but is a charge imposed as a condition of the state's consent, without which such corporation can not come into the state and do business.—Kaiser, etc., Co. v. Curry, 155 Cal. 638, 103 Pac. 341.

16a. The license fee provided for in the act is a tax, where it imposes a burden upon interstate business.—H. K. Mulford Co. v. Curry, 163 Cal. 276, 286, 125 Pac. 236.

16b.—Domestic corporations.—The act is also unconstitutional as to domestic corporations engaged in interstate business and having property without the state.—

H. K. Mulford Co. v. Curry, 163 Cal. 276, 286, 125 Pac. 236.

II. CONSTRUCTION.

17. Nature of tax.—The tax imposed by this act is substantially the purchase price which the state sees fit to charge for the continuance of the privilege of being and acting as a corporation.—Kaiser, etc., Co. v. Curry, 155 Cal. 628, 103 Pac. 341.

18. Under our law, there is no difference in principle between the fee required to be paid to the state "as a condition or for the privilege of being a corporation" and the annual charge required by the act or an excise for the privilege of continuing corporate existence, and so far as such charge is a tax at all, it is a mere privilege or license tax, in other words, the mere purchase price of the privilege.—Kaiser, etc., Co. v. Curry, 155 Cal. 638, 103 Pac. 341.

19. Same—License tax on privilege of existing and doing business as a corporation, not a tax on "property" within the meaning of section 1, article XIII of the constitution.—Kaiser, etc., Co. v. Curry, 155 Cal. 638, 103 Pac. 341.
